THE COW

The cow is a female quadruped with an alto voice and a countenance in which there is no guile. She collaborates with the pump in the production of a liquid called milk, provides the filling for hach, and at last is skinned by those she has benefited, as mortals commonly are.

The young cow is called a calf and is used in the manufacture of chicken salad. The cow's tail is mounted aft, and has a universal joint. It is used to disturb marauding flies and the tassel on the end has a unique educational value. Persons who milk cows and come in contact with the tassel, have vocabularies of peculiar and impressive force.

The cow has no upper plate. All of her teeth are paired in the lower part of her face. This arrangement was perfected by an efficiency expert to keep her from gumming things up. As a result she bites up and gums down.

A slice of cow is worth 5c in the cow, 14c in the hands of the packer and $2.40 in a restaurant that specializes in atmosphere. The man cow is labelled a bull and is lassoed out West, fought in Mexico and shot in Ottawa when parliament sits.

HA! HA! (?)

A good-natured traveler asked a Pullman porter the amount of his average tip. The negro replied that the average amount was one dollar. The man handed him a one dollar bill. The porter creased the bill affectionately and said, "Yassuh, boss, but you is the fust purson what has come up to de average."

Last week as you may recall our column was just about eradicated. Our dignified editor didn't approve the first chapter of our new book of which we intended giving you a preview. Having our literary abilities squelched was quite a blow to us at first, but we began to realize that banning it from the press is just exactly what we want... excellent publicity you know. We can't even quote you any choice lines from it because we must "maintain the dignity of our campus journal". Therefore, the following is a sort of book review of our most recent masterpiece, which we have prepared in lieu of direct quotations.

"FOREVER AMBROSE"

Men... at last... the book you have been looking for (when nobody was watching you) has just oozed off the press. This torrid novel was distilled from the interesting parts of the life of Ambrose, who died of old age and other natural causes at the age of twenty-eight. Thrill to the wild adventurous episodes of a man who was on the inside as told by a couple of pals who were also on the inside... locking out.

Be the first in your boarding house to receive this first edition by simply joining the "Monstrosity of the Month Club". Beautifully bound in asbestos this volume comes in two sizes, the handy pocket edition which can be referred to in a hurry while out on a date and the large economy size that you can get both arms around while reading in bed. You'll find nothing left to the imagination, you'll find nothing taken for granted, if your mother catches you reading it you'll find nothing!...

Put your feet on it when they get cold... light the stove with it in the morning... throw it at your mother-in-law... we don't care, we've been insulted before. Guaranteed to make you twitch and thrash in just thirty pages. A chapter a day keeps frustration away! (We guess the Editor was right when he gave us the bite. More columns like these and we'll be getting the squeeze.)

Coal Forum

there are no poison gases in the mine.

He pointed out that the air contains dust and carbon monoxide and that this, together with a miner's cramped position, makes work for more than five or six hours a day almost physically impossible. He stressed that modern mechanization and proper ventilation would both increase the coal output.

The miners, he said, were asking for an increase of $1.40 per day. The recommendation of the Carroll Commission that one dollar be granted by the government and forty cents by the company contingent on increased production demanded a physical impossibility. To get the dollar per day, he explained, would mean that production would have to be doubled. This could not be done, he said, without better working conditions. The meeting closed with a discussion period.

The Bailey Geological Society attended the Forum in a body, this talking the place of their regular meeting.
