Roads and Streets..... 2.25

The water committee reported on the coal contract, stating that the contractor, E. H. Allen, had not yet delivered the coal he had contracted for. They also reported that John Palmer's petition for lower water rates, had not been granted.

Returned His Release.

Before Judge VanWart, Monday, J. W. McCredy, counsel for the prisoner McKenzie, whose arrest at the instance of Edgcombe Bros. was noted in THE HERALD last week, applied for McKenzie's discharge, under habeas corpus, the grounds relied on being that he had been arrested under the wrong name, Frank instead of Frederick, that McKenzie's arrest at Macdonald Junction on a telegram from Alfred G. Edgcombe and his detention there without service of a copy of the writ was illegal.

Wesley VanWart, Q. C., appeared for the prisoner, and produced an affidavit from Donald MacCatherine, which stated that McKenzie had been in his employ for about one year; that he had told Mr. McCatherine his name was Frank when he employed him, and that he had always known him as called him Frank. Judge VanWart held that MacCatherine's affidavit was a complete answer to the question of the legality of McKenzie's arrest at Macdonald Junction. In the meantime, McKenzie remains in jail.

Since, however, the Judge has refused the application for discharge, holding that while Cain's detention of the prisoner was illegal, it did not invalidate McKenzie's arrest by Deputy Sheriff Hawthorn.

Linus Again on the Road.

Linus, the handsome chestnut stallion, with the wonderful tail and mane, who died a few months ago, is not to be allowed to rest from his labors, says the Herald. Though his spirit has departed to the happy hunting-ground his frame goes marching on. This result has been brought about by the labor of F. E. Newell, taxidermist, who took the hide of the defunct equine wonder and spread it over a frame, composed in part of Linus' bones, and a large percentage of iron, wood, excelsior and string. Mr. Newell has produced a horse that looks almost as well as the original, and not so difficult to maintain.

The ladies of McLean settlement are to hold a tea meeting and an affair at the church grounds next Tuesday, to raise funds for the completion of the Methodist church. Some of our cricketers if they would practice a little more diligently, might equal the score of Macintosh, of the Halifax Wanderers, who at Truro, Monday, made 100 runs and so on. He went in first and carried the bat through the whole innings. The entire Truro eleven made forty-three runs less than Macintosh's score.

Robert McDonald, secretary of the Canadian branch of the North British and Mercantile fire insurance company at Montreal, was among the visitors here this week, and he was much impressed with the beauty of the city. He was shown the principal points of interest by the company's local agent, F. I. Morrison.

Before Judge Steadman, Tuesday, Wm. Wilson moved for a new trial in the suit of Timothy Lynch vs. John and Wm. McDonald, in which the plaintiff obtained a verdict at the last York county court. J. H. Barry opposed the motion. Judgment was reversed.

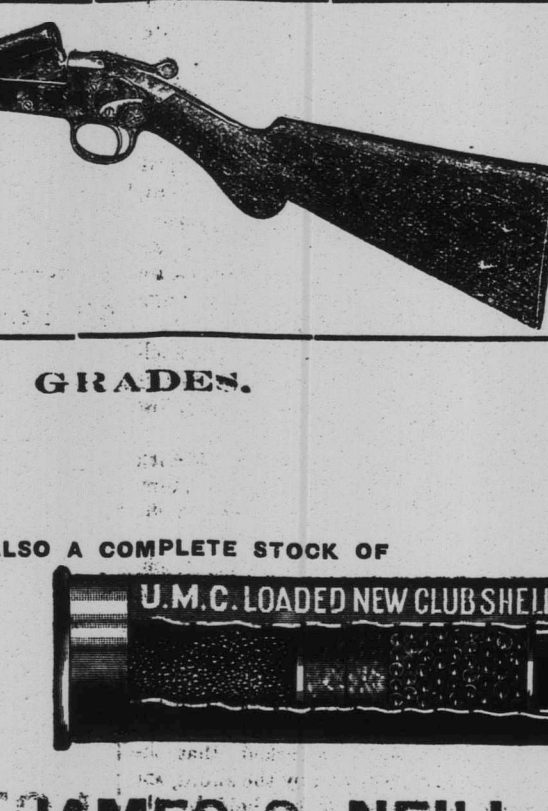

Monday afternoon in Wilmut's Alley, George Winter and Henry Doherty had some words which ended in a lively scrap in which these two and Geo. Nowlan took part. Doherty and Nowlan were arrested, on a charge of assaulting Winter, and were fined respectively $7 and $12 with costs.

The Fredericton cricketers went to St. John this morning to play a return match with the club in that city. The following composed the visiting eleven: Hutter (capt), Barker, Wetmore, Kenney, Hawthorn and Crockett. H. V. Bridges went along as umpire. BURGLARY AT CANTERBURY.
Three Suspects are now in Jail at Machias, Me.

Some particulars are given on our first page respecting the burglarizing of L. A. Hopper's store Monday morning, at Canterbury, and now it appears the suspected parties are under arrest. The Bangor News of Thursday says:
"Yesterday arrived in the city from Danforth, an officer with three friendly citizens as assistants in charge of three tough looking men, who are undoubtedly as tough as they are looked. The latter are under arrest for safe blowing and robbery at Danforth, Canterbury, and other places, and a rich find has been made. One of the robbers gives his name as John Powers, another as James Lamb and the third has nothing to say in that respect, but he is known to be James Riley, one of the tramps who were sent to the jail in this city last winter from Belfast. The three men had in their pockets the entire lot of stamps, etc., taken from the Danforth post office, and Postmaster Derry is able to identify the stolen articles. Each was armed with a five-chamber, self-loading revolver, fully loaded with .38 Smith & Wesson for caliber, and a can of powder. They passed the day and night in jail in this city, and this morning will be taken to Machias for trial. The three men are between 30 and 35 years of age."

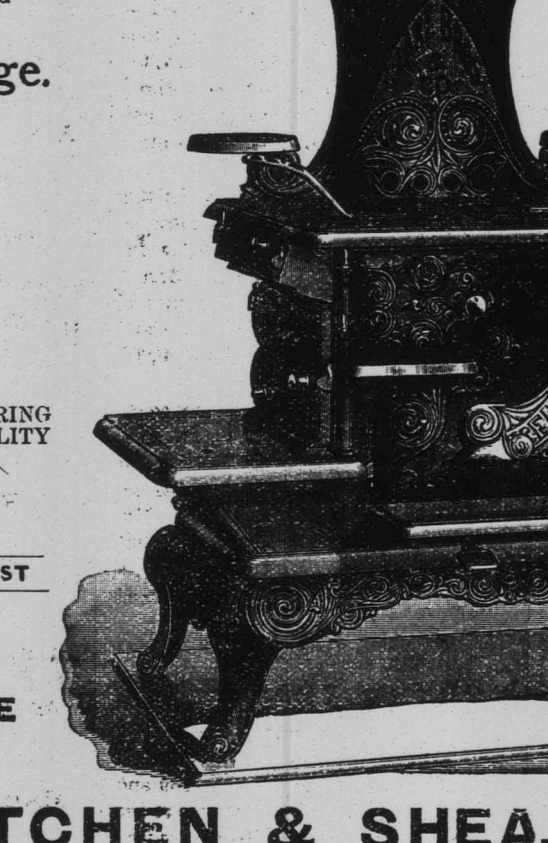

Mr. Hopper left Canterbury for Bangor Wednesday night, and he writes that he has identified the men as the ones he is looking for.

The Church Was Spid.
A Bostonian correspondent writes:
"The Rev. Edward Bell sold the Smith church on Parker's Ridge, to the Bloomfield Grange for the sum of twenty dollars, money down, and the grange intends to use it for a store. "Make not my Father's house a house of merchandise."
The bible was taken from the pulpit, the Sunday school teachers took out their books, and Mr. Smith had the mortification of seeing the church in which he took so much interest, dragged out from among the tombstones of his deceased wife and children, to become the property of the grange for the paltry sum of twenty dollars. Mr. Smith is an old feeble man, and his death is not far off, and his Christian faith tells him that he has another house, which cannot be destroyed."
