A Catholic Chapel in Japan Built by Freemasons.

We extract the following charming episode from the 'Freemason's Religious Journal' of Lyons, France. It is taken from a letter written by the Right Rev. Dr. Cousin, of the Foreign Missions, Vicar-Apostolic of Southern Japan...

'I have seen,' thus said the Rev. Gentleman, 'the chapel which I have just mentioned to you in the early history of our Mission, and I must frankly own that at the very outset, that which I had to do was to build a chapel, not to build a church...'

Entertainment Under the Auspices of the League of the Cross.

One of the leading features in connection with the entertainment given on Wednesday, the 23rd inst., in St. Patrick's Hall, was the address by the Rev. D. J. G. Macdonald, of St. Margaret's, on the 'Froesone of the Roman Catholicism.'

'I have seen,' thus said the Rev. Gentleman, 'the chapel which I have just mentioned to you in the early history of our Mission, and I must frankly own that at the very outset, that which I had to do was to build a chapel, not to build a church...'

To Help the Lepers.

AN ENGLISH CATHOLIC LADY VOLUNTEERS TO HELP FATHER DANIEL. They are for Father Daniel, the leper priest of the Sandwich Islands, and I am taking them out,' she said. This made no impression whatever upon the selfish soul of the inspector; he said that the owner should pay 50 per cent. duty.

When seen at her pleasant quarters in this city Miss Fabian willingly told the story of the vestments, and also the story of her strange mission to the Sandwich Islands. 'I am going out to Molokai as a volunteer nurse to the lepers there. It has been my intention for two years past, but it is only now that there is a hospital erected to furnish suitable shelter for women, that I could go. As soon as this was done I was notified and now I am on my way.'

'But when do you return to England?' 'Return? Why, I can never return. When once I take up my work I am an invalid and an outcast, and much as I should like to see those whom I shall nurse, I have a brother and two sisters living in England whom I shall never see again. When under modern excavation I was met by a spiritual ambition which I have been able to conquer over my love for them. For two years I have been waiting. I have studied everything, and have got ready to go. I have got the subject of leprosy, and have gone through a course of hospital training as well. Of course there are no opportunities for studying the actual disease in London, though I did see one instance in a hospital there.'

'Will you be the only woman nurse out there?' 'No, there are six more. Two years or more ago I was sent out by the Church of Rome to forty different Orders of women, but only one reported, and that was at Sydney, N. S. W. The only other visit to this special Grand Loo was a foreigner, so far as is known, was that of Dr. Moran, nearly sixty years before the date of Mr. Kennan's visit. Mr. Kennan's article describes an interesting and amusing episode of his Siberian tour.

In fiction there is begun a three-part story by Mrs. Mary Hallock Foote, entitled 'The Last Assembly Hall: A Pseudo-Romance of the Far West.' Mr. Edwards, the author of 'Two Runaways,' in 'The Rivals Soule' tells a story in a new vein, and, without a dissent, and Mr. Jewett, in 'The Correspondence of Mr. Miles Grogan,' gives a study of the progress of a New York politician from a liquor saloon to a residence in Montreal. The 'History of Alric de Moraville' is another 'Strange True Story,' edited by Mr. Cable.

In the same number of the 'Century Magazine' are 'Election Laws for Congression,' 'The English Language in America,' and 'Lincoln's Disinterestedness.' Merion J. Verdery, in 'Open Letters,' writes of the South under the Harrison Administration, from a Southern point of view.

The 'Messenger of the Sacred Host' (Philadelphia, Pa.) for March keeps up the high character of the last few numbers. The finely engraved centrepiece—a Holy Family, after Defregger of Munich—is followed by the chief illustrated article—'Crough Patrick'—evidently by a native of County Mayo. It is a most picturesque description of one of the boldest spots of Ireland. There is a second illustrated article on Samoa and its missions—a subject of present interest.

'The story of the number—'Mink'—is by Mr. Joseph B. Brough; it begins the tale of a Catholic drummer—'told to the tune of a jingling bell that hung at the neck of a street-car horse on the Ridge in Philadelphia.'

Among the usual devotional articles, the biography of 'The Father of the Apostleship of Prayers' is specially instructive.

'The Soeder' has a reasoned discussion of the relations of the Catholic Church to the monthlies in America. The 'Centenary of the American Catholic Missionary Society' is also dealt with.
