Everyday Mind - Reading.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

Ruth Cameron.

Did you ever happen to interest yourself in the science of mind reading? I don't mean the abstract science which we read about in books, but the simple, concrete kind which you and I can practice every day if we have our wits about us.

For instance, a young engaged couple who have been absent from each other for some months come together again, and after the customary greetings have somewhat subsided, she asks him, "Do you ever wonder if I'll look the way you think I do, when you see me again?" "No," he answers, "but you do, or else you wouldn't have asked me that." In which conclusion he was quite correct, and showed that he understood the everyday science of mind reading to a T.

Suppose you are with a group of girls, and one of them looks at you thoughtfully and then observes, "Does your nose look shiny?" do you thoughtlessly say "No," or "Yes," as the case may be, and let it go at that? Or do you read the thought that made her wonder about the condition of her nose, and reach for your own powder puff.

Again, our judgments of other people's motives and characters are often excellent sidelights on our own inward workings to him who has the wit to look for them. "He says he gets fifty dollars a week," a man said to me the other day, speaking of a fellow employee, but they all four-

HOW TO PRESERVE YOUTH AND BEAUTY.

One great secret of youth and beauty for the young woman or the mother is the proper understanding of her womanly system and the delicate mechanism which may not be overworked. Every woman, young or old, should know herself and her physical make up. A good way to arrive at this knowledge is to get a good doctor book, such for instance, as "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," by R. V. Pierce, M.D., which can readily be procured by sending thirty-one cents for cloth-bound copy, addressing Dr. Pierce, at Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. Williams.

The womanly system is a delicate machine which can only be compared to the intricate mechanism of a beautiful watch which will keep in good running order only with good care and the proper oiling at the right time, so that the delicate mechanism may not be overworked. Very many young women get old or run down before their time through ignorance and the improper handling of this human mechanism. Mental depression, a confused head, headache, or hot flashes and many symptoms of the womanly system can be avoided by a proper understanding of what to do, in those trying times that come to all women.

Mrs. G. H. Williams, of Lynhaven, Va., writes: "It is six years since my health gave way. I had female trouble and all the doctors (I employed three) said I would die. I was unable to do my work, had to hire someone all the time. Finally, I read in the papers about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and decided to try it. I had not taken but one bottle until I found it had done me good. I took in all five bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and now I am able to do all my house and business, and weigh fourteen pounds. I advise all women who suffer from female trouble to try your 'Favorite Prescription.' It is the only medicine on earth."

Fads and Fashions.

Revivals from the crinoline period are making their appearance in the hats of the moment. Black-and-white foulard will be greatly in favor for morning frocks for wear in the parks. Taffetas, crepes, satins and Turkish toweling are equally in the foremost march of fashion. Mechlin lace is very much worn just now, and appears on many of the smartest evening gowns. Accordion pleating has been revived, and many of the newest skirts are treated in this manner. The panier gown is being vigorously exploited, but its ultimate success is by no means certain. Many hats are trimmed with a color which is repeated in the hose worn with the smartest suits. Nearly all the new parasols have a nineteenth century air about them and are fancied or fringed. Stockings are frequently inset with real lace, and this again even bordered with beads or jewels. The short white kid glove will be worn again with tailor-made and long-sleeved frocks for afternoon wear. White in millinery, particularly in combination with a single strong color, is another evidence of its popularity. The linen of this summer is soft and drapes as well as the new woolen materials, making exceedingly pretty models. It is a fad nowadays to make the sleeve begin low down on the shoulder, the actual shoulder seam being still missing. Scalloped edges are a feature of the season, and are met with on taffeta frocks, lingerie, laces and embroidery. Silk suits are most invariably relieved with lace or lingerie, but lace plays the greatest role in the season's fashions. There are beautiful effects in lingerie and embroidery seen on tailor suits of silk ren and sole cotelet; also on taffetas. Trimmings beneath the brim on a large hat are seen now and again, often in the shape of a big bow of soft ribbon. The Byron collar is now in vogue, and the Byron cascade of lace is a delightful variation of the ubiquitous fichu.

HEALTH RESTORED TO THIS FAMILY

Wife's experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food led to husband's cure. "Since childhood I was afflicted with biliousness and sick headache," writes Mr. A. K. Van Wyck, Park Hill, Ont., "and as all the doctors' medicines and prescriptions failed to do me any permanent good, I had lost faith in all medicines. It was by accident that I came to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, for it had been recommended for Mrs. Van Wyck and did her so much good that she wished me to try it. "I did so, and was surprised at the results. It is now three years since I discontinued the medicine and I have not had an attack of the old trouble. I hope that others may benefit by my experience." The cures effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food are lasting because it builds up the system and removes the cause of trouble. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50; at all dealers, or Edmanison, Bates & Co., Toronto.

The Boarding House

BY H. L. RANN.

H. L. Rann.

The boarding house is a dietetic institute which is used as a teaser for people with ingrowing appetites. It is visited three times a day by gloomy spendthrifts who put in most of their time trying to subdue the stewed prune and the sole-leather pancake. This is a very exhausting process, and usually results in causing the boarder to fall back on the cheap but filling corn meal mush, which preserves the countenance of the teeth and discourages new boarders from making gratuitous reservations for the desert. The boarding house is the only institution in this country which has not been lotted from chin to fetlock by the high cost of living. It is presided over by a stern, female despot who does all of the serving that is necessary and whose business it is to wither with one lethal glance meek boarders who interject indelicate remarks about a second helping. Every once in a while somebody who has enjoyed the friendly contact of plain home cooking centers into a boarding house with a virgin meal ticket and an expectant look, and tries the patience of the landlady by cuddling up to everything on the table that isn't nailed down. Boarders who try to popularize themselves in this manner are generally planted at the immediate right of the landlady, where she can steer them up against the dark meat and the wholesome society of the codfish patty. It is a pathetic sight to see a tall, eager boarder, in whose breast the spark of hope has not yet wholly died out, trying to wrap a Poland-China appetite around a thimbleful of corned beef hash, yet who has not seen this and weeps in secret? A great many people dislike to board on account of having to mingle with the gizzard and the neck, two of the most entertaining sections of the shredded hen, while others rant from one boarding house to another in the hope of running into a new breakfast menu.

One always admires a beautifully kept kitchen range. To do this keep a small bucket of lard, an old glove to protect the hand and a large woolen cloth in a convenient place; about twice a day dip the cloth into the lard and rub the range before it cools.

Successful Students.

We take a deep interest in our students abroad and feel justly proud of them when we find them in the front rank and a credit to themselves, their parents and country. To-day it gives us much pleasure to note from the "Kingston Whig" of the splendid success of Mr. Stanley H. Martin, son of Mr. A. W. Martin, cashier of the G. P. O., at Queen's University of that city, Ontario, Canada. His class taking their fifth year in medicine numbered seventy-five, and out of eight subjects he was first with three others; was fifth with equals in Anatomy and Chemistry, and in Materia Medica, &c., obtained approximately high place. Mr. W. J. Brown, of Bonavista, his class, stands near him in the same subjects. We congratulate the young men and hope that their future studies may be crowned with such good results. Mr. Martin was formerly a student at the Methodist College.

That Drowning Fatality.

By the seer, J. R. Rodway, which arrived yesterday from Balne Harbor, Placentia Bay, we learn of the sad drowning fatality of the three men, J. H. Joyce, Joseph Upshall and Walter Upshall, as previously alluded to in the Telegram. Very little information is to hand regarding the tragedy as nobody witnessed the happening. It appears the three men in question left Haystack on Tuesday last in a boat, which was filled with fishing gear, for Little Harbor East. They were not heard of afterwards. The theory held out is that owing to the strong gale that raged from the southeast at the time the boat had not gone far when she capsized and the occupants were drowned. Search parties were organized, but despite their earnest endeavours they could not find the bodies, nor are they likely to be recovered as the exact place is unknown where the men were lost. The sad affair has cast a gloom over the settlement.

Selman Stock Co.

Last night a very large audience filled the T. A. Theatre to witness "The Bells," a drama which certainly appeals to the emotions. Alsace-Lorraine, the captured French province, is the territory wherein the principal plot has its home, and the plotters themselves are "racy of the soil." There was something about the performance which brought one back to a Victorian era, was it the talent of the lady and gentlemen performers or the lively vivid work of Joseph Selman in a role which suited him and which he suited to a nicety. Mr. Selman played well last night and sustained a role which must have been a critical one. What none expected was his versatility. As Matthias he impersonated a striking character. Debonair, dashing and handsome his youth slips by, middle age finds him a secret criminal, and the "sere and yellow leaf" brings him to task with his secret discovered—the commission of a crime. When mesmeric influences were brought to bear last night and when an aureole of light was thrown round Mr. Selman's head one of the most graphic delineations of a role hard to fill was given. Mr. Selman has sustained his old time reputation nobly, and his talented aides—both ladies and gentlemen—did the same. The costumes were quaint and old, the apparel, the description of which enthralls when we read old books. In respect it put us in mind of "Twelfth Night," "Sir Toby Belch," et al. The "supports" of Mr. Selman were not lacking. They were in splendid form. Miss Macken delighted the audience with her vaudeville feature. She mimicked the mocking bird capitably, and her "Every Little Movement" from Madame Sherry was an encore which was highly appreciated. None should miss the reproduction of this excellent drama to-night.
