

Good, Homemade Bread—Made of "Beaver Flour"

Light, flaky biscuits made of "Beaver" Flour—these are real foods for growing children. "Beaver" Flour is a blended flour. That is, it is made of exact proportions of nutritious, delicately flavored Ontario wheat and a little of the stronger Western wheat.

"Beaver" Flour is both a bread flour and a pastry flour—and makes the real nutty flavored home-made bread and delicious pastry such as cannot be made with any purely Western wheat flour.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

She turned from him and entered the booking office.

"A ticket for Hereford," she said, tremulously.

"First class?" said the official, sharply.

She hesitated a moment.

"No—third."

"The other side of the booking office."

Mrs. Grant looked at him in a rather bewildered manner, then she began dimly to understand, and found her way to the other side of the booking office, where the second and third class tickets were issued.

There was no third class to the next train, the booking clerk said, and Mrs. Grant's heart sank heavily.

"What is the price of second class?" she said tremulously.

"Nineteen-and-threepence."

"Will you give me a ticket?" she said eagerly, and having paid for it, thus reducing her stock of ready money to one shilling, she hastened out of the office.

"Any luggage, ma'am?"

"No," she answered shrilly, and she fancied as she got into the train that the porter looked at her suspiciously; but, to her alarm

WOMAN SICK FOR YEARS

Wants Other Women to Know How She was Finally Restored to Health.

Hammond, Ont. — "I am passing through the Change of Life and for two years had hot flushes very bad, headaches, soreness in the back of head, was constipated, and had weak, nervous feelings. The doctor who attended me for a number of years did not help me, but I have been entirely relieved of the above symptoms by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Purifier and Liver Pills, and give you permission to publish my testimonial." — Mrs. LOUIS BEAUCAGE, Sr., Hammond, Ont., Canada.

New Brunswick, Canada. — "I can highly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any suffering woman. I have taken it for female weakness and painful menstruation and it cured me." — Mrs. DEVERE BARBOUR, Harvey Bank, New Brunswick, Canada.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

and excited fancy, every one appeared to watch her.

It was an unutterable relief to the weary woman to find herself alone in a second-class compartment speeding away from the great wilderness of London where she had known so much misery—away from the glare and dust and hot sun—away from the smoke and dirt, the noise and wretchedness of the house where she had lodged.

"It will be easier and pleasant to die in the country," she said, haltingly, with a faint little smile, "under a blue sky, and it will be easier to sleep in fields than here."

She shuddered a little as she thought of the room she would not see again, although her worldly possessions were in it, and then leaned back in her corner, resting her head against the back of the carriage and looking out of the open window through which, as London was behind, the soft fresh air came in with such pleasant refreshment.

The rest and quiet and solitude were inexpressibly welcome to her; the wild hunted expression died out of her eyes as she leaned back on the padded seat; and now, with her veil thrown back and the weary line smoothed from the still lovely face, one who had known her in former days might perhaps have recognized in Mrs. Grant, the rejected applicant of the agency office, the terrified fugitive, the once brilliant and beautiful and admired and envied Lady Glynn.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

The rays of the sun, setting over the western hills beyond the pretty village of Erindale, seemed to linger tenderly upon the scene of unusual beauty which they were filling with golden light—green fields, fresh air, fragrant, studded with yellow buttercups and silver daisies, full-leaved trees, a wood in the distance, the village lying in the valley with its pretty cottages, and the quaint red brick school-house standing on the hill. Down the road was the pretty gray-stone lodge at the gates of Erindale Park, where the only great people in the village lived—the Squire, Sir Frederic Oliphant, his wife, the gentle, kindly, stately lady of the manor, and Miss Madge, the only daughter—sweet, bright-eyed madcap Madge, who could be so full of fun and yet so full of tenderness who had never had a care of her own in the world, but who could nevertheless sympathize with the cares of others with a gentleness which was so great a consolation to them all.

Not that there was much care or trouble at Erindale. The villagers were chiefly well-to-do, and those who were not so received such help from the people at the Hall that they never knew the biting misery of want. Not many villages, even in "merrie England," were so greatly favored as Erindale, for it was not only beautifully and healthily situated, and so blessed by Nature, but Sir Frederic, who had a hobby for improving, had brought all kinds of modern innovations to bear upon the land and the cottages, so that it might well have passed for a model village.

If Sir Frederic had a hobby for improvements, Lady Oliphant had a steed of her own likewise. Her hobby was the village schools; and she devoted much time and money to them, and not only time and money, but a great deal of good sense, which saw that the children's instruction consisted of those branches of education which were likely to be of use to them in their future lives.

Altogether Erindale was a model little settlement; and the Oliphants spent nearly the entire year at home, Lady Oliphant being hardly strong enough for travelling, and Sir Frederic and Madge both preferring Erindale to every other place on earth.

The red light of the setting sun which fell upon the little ivy-grown lodge and down the road with the tall leafy hedges on either side fell also upon a pretty little pony-carriage containing two ladies who were driving slowly homeward. Lady Oliphant and her daughter were alone—they usually drove out unattended in the golden summer evenings—and the girl was chattering gaily, as was her wont, while Lady Oliphant was listening and smiling indulgently at Madge's merry speeches.

"There is Mrs. Ford at the gate, mamma," Madge said, as the lodge came in view. "She looks very important. I am sure she has something to tell us. I wonder what it can be? Shall I drive slowly to have the pleasure of trying to guess what it is, or shall I drive fast, and spare myself the agony of suspense and the pleasure of anticipation?"

"I think I should drive fast," Lady Oliphant said laughingly, "unless the pleasure of anticipation are greater than the agony of suspense."

"Ah!" Madge ejaculated. "I am afraid, mamma, that I am very curious and inquisitive; so I will drive on. From whom could I have inherited that little falling? Not from papa, certainly, because he is the least inquisitive of mortals."

"Saucy girl! Ah, Mrs. Ford, what a pleasant evening! Were you waiting for little Joe?"

"No, my lady," said the lodge-keeper, curtseying, "I was waiting for your ladyship. I was hoping you would return this way, as you went out by the other gate."

"You wanted to see me?"

"If you please, my lady. If you and Miss Madge would be kind enough to get out and come in for a moment have something to show you."

"Of course, we will get out," said Madge quickly; then, turning to her mother,—"What did I tell you, mamma? I said nurse had something to tell us or something to show us 'ake care, dear"—carefully assisting her mother to alight. "That's right; stand at their heads. You need not touch them. Stand still, my beauties!" And, with a parting pat on her little gloved hand on the ponies' heads she followed her mother into the lodge.

The lodge door opened into a little comfortable sitting room, furnished in a rather heavy and substantial manner, a room where Madge had spent many a pleasant hour in her childhood, for Mrs. Ford had been her nurse, and had married for the Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents worth) in a 16-ounce bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. It has a pleasant taste and lasts a family a long time. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

Specialist Could Not Remove Stone in The Bladder

GIN PILLS PASSED IT

JOLIETTE, P. Q. — "During August last, I went to Montreal to consult a specialist as I had been suffering terribly with Stone in the Bladder.

He decided to operate but said the stone was too large to remove and too hard to crush. I returned home and was recommended by a friend to try GIN PILLS.

They relieved the pain. I took two boxes and went back to the specialist. He said the stone was smaller but he could not remove it although he tried for two hours and a half. I returned home and continued to take GIN PILLS, and to my great surprise and joy, I passed the stone.

GIN PILLS are the best medicine in the world and because they did me so much good, I will recommend them all the rest of my life!" — J. ALBERT LESSARD.

Hall, where her husband, since dead, had been coachman. She was a kindly-looking woman, plump and short, with a pleasant rosy face, which wore a very pitiful expression just now, as she bent over a woman who was lying on the horse-hair sofa, her head resting back upon it, her eyes closed, and her face as pale as leath itself. Lady Oliphant stood looking at her in silence; Madge drew nearer the sofa.

"What a lovely face! Who is she, nurse? Mamma, dear, what is the matter? Is she asleep or has she fainted?"

"I think she is asleep now, Miss Madge, half asleep and half stupefied," Mrs. Ford said. "She looks very ill, poor pretty!"

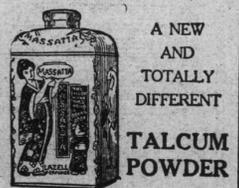

"Very ill," Lady Oliphant said. How did she come here, Ford?"

"I will tell you, my lady. It was his morning, just as little Joe was coming home from school, he ran in saying there was a lady sitting by the road-side who seemed very tired. Went out to her and asked her if she would come in and rest a little. When I spoke to her, she looked up at me with such pitiful eyes, my lady, and she said in such a low faint tone that she could not—she was too tired. She was that exhausted, my lady, that I was obliged almost to carry her into the house, and she dropped down there on the sofa just as you see her. I asked her if she had been ill, and she shook her head; she had walked a long way, she said. I brought her some bread and milk, and at first she drank so eagerly and tried to eat that—oh, my lady, it seems strange to say it and she so nicely dressed, but I think she had not tasted food for a long time!"

"Oh, nurse!" Madge said, tremulously.

"Telephone" is the word.

The people of the Maritime Provinces use about 30,000 telephones at present. To be on a par with the United States they should use 72,000. Of this increase 10,000 will be used by the 40,000 farmers of Nova Scotia. With farmers it has hitherto been a luxury. Hereafter it will become more and more of a necessity. Every farmer who aspires to be a business man will have a phone. He has to keep in touch with the markets, with the people about him, and with the occurrences of everyday life. Every subscriber added to a system increases its importance to other subscribers.

It is needless to add that the larger the number of patrons the greater the revenue and the consequent profits. As the Maritime Telephone and Telephone Co. controls all the telephone companies of Nova Scotia worth while, one can thus see what splendid prospects the Company has in this respect and also understand the excellent position of the preferred stock as an investment.

The par value of these shares is $10, and we are offering a block in lots to suit purchasers. Price upon application.
