As a result August Garrison and Frank Jones are dead and Thomas Jones probably fatally wounded.
The Garrison and Jones families are among the most prominent planters in this section of Texas, and have been on the best of social relations for many years. Augustus Garrison had a daugher 16 years old named Lois. The Jones brothers were single. Frank Jones had paid attention to Garrison's daughter, and recently the girl charged him with having ruined her under promise of marriage They succumbed to the charms of our life of the betrayer of his daughter. He spent half an hour devouring choice plants and expensive flowers near the museum, then made his way across the wooden bridge to Beach Lawn, back of the large cafe, just when the beer pumps were being cleaned. Two buckets of stale beer stood near the door. The donkey plunged his head in and never withdrew it until his nostrils pressed close to the bottom. Then he turned his attention to the second bucket, and finished it, when an attendant attempted to drive him His efforts were futile, and he called for assistance. Jim was not in a mood to permit liberties, and when one of the men took him by the tail and began to twist it, both of his hind legs shot out and caught the man on the chest. The man lit in the water ten feet away in a sitting position. He had to be fished out.

Then Jim started into the cafe and began to knock the chairs and small tables about. He was king of the place for ten minutes. Then he walked down to the edge of the water and went to sleep.

The animal men strapped his legs and pressed a cart into service as a patrol wagon, and he was carried to his inclosure. Up to the hour the last boat left Glen Island last night, Jim had not regained his feet. He did not
