

NINETY-FIVE BODIES OF MINE EXPLOSION VICTIMS RECOVERED

BOYS ON THAMES BANK FOUND DYNAMITE CACHE NEAR TRACTION BRIDGE

Twenty-Seven Sticks of Powerful Explosive Confiscated by the Police—Tragedy Averted by Quick Action of Detroit Visitor—One Stick Exploding Rocks South London Homes.

BOYS UNCOVER YEGGMEN'S STOCK?

Twenty-seven sticks of dynamite, sufficient to blow up the City of London, were discovered by boys twenty feet east of the Carrae Crescent entrance to the old traction bridge at 10:30 this morning. Two minutes later London South residents were rocked to their foundations, when the 17-year-old lad who made the find purposely set off one of the sticks, escaping with his life only by great good fortune.

Hundreds of excited citizens streamed out of their homes when the explosion occurred. Police arrived five minutes later, and the frightened residents could only be persuaded to return after the officers, Police Constables Thomson and Williams, departed with the remaining 27 sticks. Two dozen dynamite caps were included in the discovery. When the explosives were hidden, who put them there, and for what reason, are questions that baffle local detectives. Many theories have been advanced, but all are based on conjecture.

No Thought of Plot.

Possibility of the dynamite having been placed for the purpose of blowing up the old traction bridge is considered remote. It may have been stolen by boys and hidden. Or it was possibly taken from a Hamilton concern by yeggmens to be used later for safe cracking. The latter theory was supported by F. P. Thomson, one of the officers who arrived on the scene shortly after the explosion.

At 10:15 one of the gang of boys who customarily haunt the riverbank near the Hunt dam, found the dynamite while wandering through the thick underbrush near the bridge. It was hidden in a small hole in the earth. He immediately called the attention of companions to it, and proceeded to carry the sticks to the safety of the bridge, where he said he would "see them off."

Harry Millard, of Detroit, aged 24, visiting his mother, Mrs. W. Millard, Grief street, heard the boy's threat and forced him to replace the dangerous articles. The boy complied grudgingly. Then he suddenly seized one of the sticks and a dynamite cap, ran 200 yards west of the bridge, and

REMAINDERS MORTON, ACCUSED OF PART TORONTO HOLD-UP

Detroit Man Greatly Chagrined at Inconvenience Caused by Allegation.

BAILED AT $15,000

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, Aug. 15.—William S. Morton, of Detroit, charged last week with robbing Messenger Dook of the Imperial Bank of Canada, of the sum of $12,000 during the holdup staged at Jordan and Melinda streets on July 24, and remanded until today, appeared in police court this morning before Judge Denton, and on the application of the crown was further remanded for a period of eight days. It was understood last week that a further remand would be given, and for that reason W. H. Furlong, of Windsor, counsel for Morton, was present. Gordon E. Morton, brother of the accused appeared, however, and renewed the $15,000 bail bond on which William Morton now holds his liberty.

Morton, who was well-dressed and well-groomed, interviewed by a reporter after he left court this morning, seemed rather chagrined at the great inconvenience and expense he is being put to without any apparent redress.

My Mother. he said, "has been very ill and she is not quite out of danger yet. Luckily she was at the summer cottage when all this trouble started, and so far we have managed to keep the news of my arrest from her. I think that if it had reached her she would have been dead by now."

Morton also complained that the affair had been the cause of some bitterness to his two children. "They are both under eight years of age," he explained, "and on the streets of Windsor the other day two other children came to my youngsters and said: 'Your daddy has been arrested for robbing a bank.'"

Morton is in ill-health himself, and although he did not complain of the danger to his two children, "they are both under eight years of age," he expressed opinion that his confinement in jail for three days had not improved his physical condition.

TORONTO GAS PRICES REMAIN UNCHANGED

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, Aug. 15.—Gasoline prices in Toronto remain unchanged. The visit to Toronto of Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and formerly president of the Imperial Oil Company, was believed in some quarters to foreshadow a reduction in gasoline prices here. However, it was stated this afternoon by an official of the Imperial Oil Company that Mr. Teagle's visit had no commercial significance, he having merely stopped off here while enroute from the Georgian Bay district where he has been spending his vacation.

LONDON MEN NOW HAVE THE CHANCE FOR LONGER LIFE

City Physicians Treating Age-Enfeebled Patients With Animal Glands.

TABLETS OF MAGIC

Individuals in good physical condition at 20 usually have their own ignorance to blame for not living a 100 or more years. With proper care and a general knowledge of physiology everybody should live to be a centenarian.

The above summarizes the opinions of local medical men in regard to the declaration yesterday of Dr. G. S. Porter at Guelph that the span of human life should be 100 years. They willingly gave the recipe for longevity—moderation in everything and a physical examination not less than once every six months.

In this connection it is interesting to know that a new substance supposed to have the power of rejuvenating mankind arrived in London this week for the first time in medical history. It is a mixture of animal glands in tablet form and is being administered by local doctors to patients enfeebled from old age.

Following the discovery in England recently that transplantation of glands from monkeys and dogs to human beings added 30 and 40 years to a man's life, members of London's medical fraternity procured quantities of glandular mixture which they give to patients internally. This represents the first local attempt to wrest the secret of prolonged vigorous life from science. It is too early to judge just how effective the new ingredient will be.

Miraculous Cures.

Miraculous cures have been made in Europe by gland transplantation prominent members of the profession told The Advertiser today. Nothing of that nature has been tried in the city, however, and for the time being only gland tablets will be used.

The average life 60 years ago was about 40, one doctor said. Nowadays it is 50 owing to improved medical treatment and better individual care. It could and should be anywhere from 90 to 100.

"If a man is in first-class condition at 20," one doctor stated, "he could, barring accidents, live 80 years more. The trouble is that the average citizen courts disease by imprudent living. This would not be so serious if he were subjected to a thorough medical examination twice or more a year. But he invariably allows the disease to become acute before resorting to medical aid."

How To Live Long.

"Regular diet, exercise, plenty of sleep and primarily lots of fresh air and sunshine are the elements that make centenarians. Cancer is now about the only disease that cannot be definitely checked with care and moderation."

Of five doctors interviewed on the subject four emphasized the body-racking of worry and the fifth denied that worry had anything to do with premature death. He thought everything depended on the ability of a man to resist temptation and conserve the natural forces of life. His contemporaries, however, declared worry was a physical condition in so far as it impairs the function of vital organs.

"I believe with Dr. Porter," one doctor said, "that most men could live to be 100 if they tried. The majority, however, seldom think their bodies require care. This is unfortunate for it often cuts tens of years from a man's life."

PAYS HEAVY FINE FOR OPERATING WHISKEY STILL

Benjamin Levine Pleads Guilty to Charge Laid Under Revenue Act.

FARMER IS FINED

Pleading guilty to breaches of the inland revenue act and the Ontario temperance act, Benjamin Levine, St. Thomas, Russian Jew, was fined $500 and costs this morning or 12 months in jail.

Levine, in company with his son John, and William Griffiths, was arrested yesterday afternoon at Griffiths' farm, H. R. Dorchester Township, by Inland Revenue Inspector Cecil Webb, License Inspector Walter Bolton and County Constable George Chittick, when they paid a surprise visit to the premises and found Levine in the basement of the farmhouse distilling liquor.

No evidence was taken in court, although Deputy Magistrate Gladman was told that when the officers arrived on the scene Griffiths was on the cellar with the still, the second largest one ever seized in the county. Eleven large barrels of mash ready for running off, three kegs of the finished moonshine, two 100-pound sacks of sugar, six malted grains, a tub of yeast and other materials were also found.

The equipment belonged to Levine, who had leased the basement of Griffiths' farm for $20 a week. They had first become acquainted three years ago over the sale of sized grain. He was but Griffiths did not know for what purpose the cellar was required until some days later he smelt the odor of the brew. He had been manufacturing for the past ten days.

Griffiths was charged under the inland revenue act with having in his possession, or on his premises, a still suitable for the manufacture of spirits. He pleaded guilty and was fined $200, six months in jail, and also charged with keeping liquor for sale, but this was withdrawn.

Benjamin Levine, who gave his address as 131 Center street, St. Thomas, pleaded guilty to a charge of unlawfully distilling spirits, contrary to the provisions of the inland revenue act. He also pleaded guilty to keeping liquor for sale, although he stated that he had been sold, Magistrate Gladman divided the fine proportionately between the federal act and that of the province, fining him $300 and costs and six months in jail, and $200 and costs or an additional six months under the O. T. A.

The charge against John Levine of unlawfully assisting in the distillation of spirits contrary to the act, was withdrawn, and he was allowed to go.

The fines were paid.
