Kitchener Unlucky.

The locals were rather unlucky. Not only did they pass up nice chances when close in, but they seemed jinxed. In the first period Ike Master in trying to clear away a shot, scored on his own team, and in the third Zuber, the clever Green Shir goalie, got one of Ashley's shots in the ace and opened up a nasty gas Delay was necessary, while Klem, the new junor goalie, was rushed into uniform. He finished the last three mnutes of the second, and the third period for the locals. One long shot beat him in that time, but apart from that he was good.

The visitors jumped into the lead early, persistent combination scoring in less than two minutes, and by the time the period was over they were eading 5 to 1, due to their back-

The second period was more evenly contested, but the visitors got the only counter, when Berger was allowed to run loose, and in the third lowed to run loose, and in the third the Indians played pretty much a defensive game. Tex Rickard-king of fight pre noters, wizard of crowds and juggle a story filled with ring secrets every fight follower wants to know. It is a story like a movie scenario—but every reel from life. Cowboys, the Jesse James gang, the Klondike, lynching bees, gun fights in Texas and Nevada, gambling for high stakes, with poverty in a turn of the wheel—this is the background of the man who has staged the most amazing series of big bouts in the history of pugilism. Here is life—the kind Jack London used to write about.
