Most brilliant and successful was the grand military concert given in the Pavilion last night by the combined bands of the 13th Batt. of Hamilton and that of our own Queen's Own. The efforts of the Q.O.R. committee were amply rewarded by the sight of Toronto's wealth and beauty, every seat and foot of standing space being filled. This was the program: But the objection may be made: Too the Jesuits are already incorporated; lowat has already won the victory for ovinces. We would reply: Don't be too done, that the time is past now, and that it is no use crying over spilt milk. But be not deceived by this cunning pretence. In a little while more, just after you have settled down to the belief that all is already done and that that thing cannot be undone, you will be that thing cannot be undone, you will be some. down to the beheft that all is already done and that the thing cannot be undone, you will be surprised to learn that the aggressors are still eager for what remains. They will want this thing for the Church and that other thing for the Province, and between the two they would leave little for the nation. Now it would be a grand mistake to give it up to them, supposing that they had won the fight already. How much more they still want, and how much more you can still keep from them, you will see if you try. Don't, now, make the mistake of imagining that the fight is all over, when it is only just beginning in surnest.

This Jesuit business is of course the main trouble with us now; it is what is most prominently before the public eye. But remember that the most potent ally that Jesuitian has all through in this mattor is Provincialism. And we venture to offer this counsel: that the Dominion of Canada cannot too soon brace herself up to resist both. If Canada is ever to be anything as a nation, she had better preserve, as best she can, what national power and standing she has already. How much she has already you will scarcely conceive, until you realize how much more the Jesuits breath and the matter of the voice and her engaging and the world on Tuesday exposed the methods which Professor Schurman, now at Cornell University, is employing to keep himself before the Canadian making and hoom his

The Spread of the Telephone.

The usefulness of the telephone is growing ateadily. An illustration in point: On Wednesday night The World heard of the railway tragedy as St. George. The news editor as once called up St. George, some 70 miles from here, conversed intelligently with the operator thers, also with Paris and Hamilton, and got information from all these points. Reporters were sent out by the 11.15 train to Hamilton, and when they reached that eity they telephoned where they were what the situation was, and they were immediately directed what bo do and what information to work up. They were under instantaneous control by means of the telephone. As for the city it could be "scoured" not exactly without going out of the office, but with ten times the effect of the days when there was no telephone, the feet of the days when there was no telephone, the feet of the days when there was no telephone, the feet of the days when there was no telephone, the feet of the days when there was no telephone, the feet of the days when there was no telephone, the feet of the days when there was no telephone, the feet of the days when there was no telephone, the feet of the days when there was no telephone, the feet of the days when there was no telephone, the feet of the days when there was no telephone to send a done of the telephone as a waitresses trimly dressed.
