Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Daughter's Health.

Plover, Iowa.—"From a small child my 13 year old daughter had female weakness. I spoke to three doctors about it and they did not help her any. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had been of great benefit to me, so I decided to have her give it a trial. She has taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound according to directions on the bottle and she is cured of this trouble. She was all run down when she started taking the Compound and her periods did not come right. She was so poorly and weak that I often had to help her dress herself, but now she is regular and is growing strong and healthy."—Mrs. MARTIN HELWIG, Plover, Iowa.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old remedy.

If you are ill do not drag along and continue to suffer day in and day out but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a woman's remedy for woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Guelph Mercury: There is one noticeable feature about all the taxation that has been imposed up to this time, and that is that it falls heaviest upon the married man—the one who is the head of a family. Almost every move he makes brings him in contact with the war tax. Very often he does not know it, because the grocer, the general merchant and other dealers are all collecting taxes for the government. The single man is not in the same position.

What is patriotism? A young man engaged with a Enniskillen farmer, on Fair Day evinced a desire to enlist but did not care to do so until he had talked the matter over with his employer. This he did but his employer did not want to let him go until the time stipulated in the agreement had expired. Is this patriotism?—Petrolea Advertiser.

Victoria Times: If any newspapers or speakers in Great Britain are citing Canada's percentage of enlistment as an example to the men at home, it is only fair to suggest that they should investigate the figures. If Canada's enlistment percentage were as high as that of the United Kingdom she would have more than half a million men under arms instead of 150,000. The three million who volunteered for Kitchener's army represent more than seven per cent of the population. Of course, neither this Dominion nor any of the other overseas British countries will be able to enrol such a large proportion, and they are not expected to. Geographical and economic difficulties stand in the way, but our percentage will have to be increased considerably before we shall be justified in feeling that we have done our full share. The voluntary enlistment of three million men in Great Britain is one of the finest things of the war to date.

Look Out for Air Battles

The air continues to claim its share of interest in the war. The watchers for the Allies are easily one to the mile, and they often crowd closer up. They seem to be on the look out for a lot in the new offensive. They are to go behind the German lines and blow up railway junctions, troop trains, munition depots, in fact do everything to prevent the requisite amount of defensive force being at the selected on the long battle line for a rushing offensive.

Inasmuch as the two rushes of Saturday had much of the element of successful surprise attack about them, there is a big chance that the aeroplanes got home their blows most usefully in the areas chosen for the onrush. This sort of thing is bound to relegate observation flying to a position of relative unimportance and to lead to pitched battles in the air as a regular, not to say constant, occurrence.

For years Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator has ranked as the most effective preparation manufactured, and it always maintains its reputation.

What is a Slacker?

It takes all sorts to make a world. What wonder then that in the same country, in the same city, in the same street, yea, in the same house, there should be found soldiers and slackers. After all, what is a slacker. He is simply a man who has no imagination—or who has too much. The war means nothing to him or it means everything. He sees in it no reason why he should give up his creature comforts for the hardships of the trenches, or he sees in it the big possibility of coming home maimed if he even comes home at all. In other words, he is indifferent or a coward. But you cannot get the material of a victorious army out of such. The Germans have a conscript army. They have to make their brave men fight doubly hard in making up the deficiencies of their cowards. It was the unwilling element of their army that stained German honor with the horrors and shame of the Belgian atrocities. Let us be glad we of the Empire take no such risks.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

PLIGHT OF A POET.

His Vivid Imagination Once Nearly Got Coleridge In Trouble.
From his early youth Coleridge lived in a world of books and dreams, yet his favorite walk seems to have been the Strand, the last place in the world for a poet to lose himself in reverie. As he strolled down the street he imagined himself swimming the Hellespont, the feat of which other poets had written and which the poet Byron was to accomplish later. Once while the mind of Coleridge was thus far from the busy Strand he absentmindedly thrust his hands before him to the manner of one swimming. Suddenly one hand came in contact with a gentleman's pocket.

The gentleman, thinking to capture a thief, seized the hand and exclaimed: "What! So young and so wicked!" He accused the poor, poetic boy of an attempt at pocket picking. With some fright and a few tears the boy explained, and we can imagine that words did not fail him who was to become the most brilliant writer of his age. The gentleman was delighted with Coleridge's imagination, which could turn the Strand into the Hellespont. The intelligence of the young Leander made the stranger inquire into Coleridge's tastes, and when he found the boy liked books he opened for him a subscription at the circulating library in Cheapside.—Westminster Gazette.

ORDER OF THE BATH.

It Was a Realistic Ceremony in the Time of Charles II.

The last Knights of the Bath made according to the ancient forms were at the coronation of Charles II., when various rites and ceremonies, one of which was bathing, were enforced. According to Froissart, the court barber prepared a bath, and the candidate for membership in the order, having been undressed by his esquires, was thereupon placed in the bath, his clothes and collar being the perquisites of the barber. He was then removed from the water to the words "May this be an honorable bath to you" and was placed in a plain bed quite wet and naked to dry.

As soon as he was quite dry he was removed from the bed, dressed in new and rich apparel and conducted by his sponsors to the chapel, where he offered a taper to the honor of God and a penny piece to the honor of the king. Then he went to the monarch and, kneeling before him, received from the royal sword a tap on the shoulder, the king exclaiming, "Arise, Sir," and then embraced him, saying, "Be thou a good knight and true."—London Strand Magazine.

"Choir"

Churchgoers who follow the service in their prayer books would certainly miss the "dear old phrase" concerning "quires and places where they sing," and in time the old fashioned "quires" may be made new fashioned again by the coming of rationalized spelling. "Choir" was a most unnecessary outrage upon the language. The old English "quer" or "quere" became quite naturally "quyer" or "quiere," and so it remained until the end of the seventeenth century, when somebody seems to have introduced "choir" because it looked more like the French "choeur," as if that were a valid reason. There could have been no danger of confusing a church "quyer" with a "quiere" of paper, which is a different word, the French "choeur," probably from Latin "quaternarium," a collection of four leaves.—London Standard.

Seventeenth Century Sheep.

"The best and biggest sheep," says Fuller in his famous "Worthies of England," published in the year 1622, "are those of the vale of Aylesbury, in Buckinghamshire, where it is nothing to give £10 or more for a breed ram. So that should a foreigner hear of the price thereof he would guess that ram rather to be some Norman engine of battery than the creature commonly so called. Foreigners," he adds, "much admire our English sheep because they do not, as those beyond the seas, follow their shepherds like a pack of dogs, but wander wide abroad."

Locating the Laughs.

Once upon a time De Wolf Hopper was required to play Falstaff in a special performance of "The Merry Wives of Windsor." He sought the help of William H. Crane, a famous Falstaff twenty-five years ago. "I will help you," Mr. Crane said. "I will lend you my wig, my beard, my costume and my pad, and I will go page by page through the text with you, pointing out as I go just where the laughs are not."—Indianapolis News.

They Came Back.

"How's this, son? Yesterday you cleaned up the back yard nicely, but today it looks worse than ever." "It's not my fault, dad. I fired everything over the fence, but last night the kid next door slammed 'em back."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
