

HELP FOR WORKING WOMEN

Some Have to Keep on Until They Almost Drop. How Mrs. Conley Got Help.

Here is a letter from a woman who had to work, but was too weak and suffered so much to continue. How she regained health.

Frankfort, Ky.—"I suffered so much with female weakness that I could not do any work, had to hire it done. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I tried it. I took three bottles and I found it to be all you claim. Now I feel as well as ever I did and am able to do all my own work again. I recommend it to any woman suffering from female weakness. You may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. JAMES CONLEY, 516 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it will be confidential.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Toronto Telegram: With all her preparedness, all her military training, and all her alleged 'intellect,' Germany has not been able to strike one blow so decisive that any one nation is crushed beyond resistance.

Canadian single taxers at their annual convention at Niagara Falls recently, decided to urge upon the Dominion Government, in view of the enormous war expenditure, the necessity of raising revenue by a tax upon the land values of the Dominion. A tax of one per cent. on land values would produce an additional revenue of $90,000,000 yearly with a maximum of equity and certainty, and might be collected through existing municipal organizations with a minimum of expense.

The man who runs an auto should have a clear, level head, and keep it clear and level. As soon as he shows signs of the speed bug, he should be chained up to insure public safety. The speed limit allowed by law is at the rate of 20 miles an hour. As we understand it, this doesn't mean 20 miles an hour up hill and down dale, but a speed not in excess of 20 miles an hour at any time. At the rate fixed by law, or even lower, a man can go a long distance in a day, and the accidents would be fewer than we hear of now.—Durham Chronicle.

Remarkable prodigality is often displayed by Canadian officers and soldiers on their return to England from the front on a short leave, according to Col. F. H. Laing, of Windsor, who spent four months in the old country visiting his sons, who are serving in the overseas forces. "The boys land in England with their pockets full of money, and they start out to have a good time," said the colonel. "They do not know whether or not they will ever see 'blightly' again once they return to the front, and they proceed to make up for the time they have practically been buried in France, far away from opportunities of spending their money." One young officer, an acquaintance of the Windsor man, spent $26 in five days, nearly $100 a day, while on leave, and this was only one example cited by the colonel.

Theodore Tribune: Ptes. George Pearson, D. McLane and J. Miller, who have been with the 143rd Bn. for nearly a year, were discharged last week as "physically unfit." These seem to be the little, or no, system in the military medical department. These men look very much fit today, and have been passed out on slight defects, which did not deter them in doing military duties in any way. The time to have passed these men out was when they were first taken on—not a year later. There are thousands of such cases throughout Canada, no doubt, which means thousands of dollars of good money thrown away.

For The Farmer Boy

How to keep the boy on the farm? The white lights of the city are always big attractions for the boy brought up on the farm, and his school education still further draws him city ward. Still there are many things occurring which are helping the farmer to make it easier for him to keep the boy at home. The electric roads, the rural route, the daily newspaper, the automobile and other agencies at work are bringing the country nearer the city, and making life on the farm in some ways preferable to city life. The question arises, does the farmer sufficiently encourage the boy to stay at home? Are the prospects held out to him bright enough to keep him on the farm?

One of the U. S. agricultural journals, the Farm and Fireside, tells a story that is worth repeating and for the farmer to take to heart:

Last spring, a year ago, a 10-year old neighbor boy was given 10 cents by his grandmother. He purchased a packet of cucumber seeds with his money and grew a nice patch of cucumbers for the local village market. His crop brought him a little more than $6 in money, all of which his mother allowed him to keep and spend as he pleased. With $1 of his money the boy purchased a few little things for himself, and with the other $5 he purchased a ewe lamb. By this spring his ewe lamb had grown into a mature mother sheep, and she gave birth to two lambs. So now the boy has three for his investment. The mother sheep is now worth $10, and the lambs are worth $5 each, making a total value of $20. He has earned with his 10 cents in a year and a half. Besides he sold the wool this spring from the mother sheep for $2.45, which he has placed in the savings bank as the beginning of a bank account of his own.

This ten cents was a small matter. But its results may shape the whole course of the boy's life. It is not unusual, we are told, for a farmer to give his son a pig or a calf or a sheep and perhaps a colt, but the boy has a rude awakening when he comes from school one day to make the discovery that his property is missing. Father has sold it in his absence and pocketed the proceeds as a matter of course. We suspect, says an authority, that there are many boys, now with heads sprinkled with gray who can recall experiences of this kind. It is no wonder that so many youngsters have become discouraged just at a time when they stood at the forks of the highway of life.

It has never been pushed by sensational methods, but has simply gone on effecting relief and making new converts.

THE ARCH OF CTESIPHON.

Large Remnant of a Once Wonderful and Magnificent City.

Just below Bagdad, on the Tigris, there stands a wonderful ruin known as the Arch of Ctesiphon—all that remains today of a once mighty city, the one time capital of the Parthian kingdom.

The ruins consist of an immense chamber, 21 feet wide by 254 feet long, with an arched roof in one single span of the whole width, the crown of the arch being 294 feet high. The edifice has a back, but in front is entirely open from top to bottom, displaying the whole of the magnificent vaulted chamber. On one side, at the same height as the arch, extends a kind of facade. The whole building is constructed of burnt bricks about a foot square, and it is supposed that the front was originally cased with marble.

Historical records show Ctesiphon was a second Babylon in point of size and in the splendor of its palaces and princely houses. When taken by the Romans 669,000 captives and a rich booty fell into their possession. Later it became the capital of Persia. Here Chosroes, the twenty-third king of Persia, lived in great style. His throne was in a palace of prodigious height and so vast that it was supported by 40,000 silver columns. Its roof was enriched with 1,000 golden globes, which all had different movements and represented the planets and the various constellations.

Some centuries later this wonderful palace and city were sacked by the Arabs, since when it has gradually decayed, all that remains today being this single arch.—Wide World Magazine.

THE CULPRIT CAME BACK.

Because "Big Sim" Was Only a Sheriff and Not a Surveyor.

A Salt Lake City man tells this story of one "Big Sim," a deputy sheriff of Eureka, from whom no criminal could get away by the 'cross country method. Sim was familiar with every foot of ground in eastern Nevada and could outrun a coyote.

As deputy sheriff he engaged in several long chases, always with success. His capture of a horse thief known as "Spanish Abe" was the toast of Eureka for a long time.

This Spanish Abe was a "bad actor," who made it his business to appropriate stray cattle and the blooded mares of the neighborhood. With a companion he was finally rounded up and incarcerated in the Eureka jail. The next night, however, the criminals forced the window of their cell and took to the brush, mounted on the fleetest animals they could steal.

Big Sim, hours later, hit the trail in pursuit. Spanish Abe turned toward Utah and was changing horses along the road. Big Sim, renewing his mount likewise and cutting across country, gained on the fugitives in the desert. Pursued and pursued he had been riding continuously, and the horses were giving way under the strain. But Big Sim kept on, and it is said he was well into Utah when he brought Spanish Abe and his companion upon a level with his gun and clapped on the handcuffs.

"You have no right to take us, Sim," the Mexican whined. "We are in Utah."

"Rats!" Big Sim replied. "I ain't no surveyor. Come on."—Case and Comment.

A Stream of Water.

A high pressure jet of water will bowl over a man as easily as if he were a box of matches and leave him half stunned. It will even turn a bullet from its path. Experiments have shown that a jet of water can be produced at such a high pressure that it becomes practically a bar of iron. Swords have been blunted in attempting to cut through these extra high pressure jets. Some years ago an armed thief attempted to hold up a high official of the Bank of England in his private office. The official managed to get out of the room unharmed and locked the door. A resourceful attendant brought the fire hose. He opened the door sufficiently to insert the nozzle. In a few minutes the would be thief was picked up senseless.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Family Affair.

It was at the information bureau—the place set apart for inquiries about wounded men in the various hospitals. In dattered a particularly pretty girl and addressed the rather severe looking lady in charge.

"I wish," she said, "to see Lieutenant Ernest Wagner. In what hospital is he?"

"Lieutenant Wagner can receive visits only from his relatives."

"I am his cousin."

"And I am his mother."
