PRECUTIONS,

The Committee for the Society for the Capital Punishments, convinced that the least effective mode of protecting life and property, is by sanguinary laws, address the public on this important subject.

The arguments against taking human life for crimes are too numerous to allow more ones on the present occasion. The penalty of death excludes that which should be the immediate object of human punishment-the reformation of the offender. It partakes of Once weighing at Suez in the ship Robert Stuke, the nature of revenge, which man is not alfellow-creatures: "Vengeance is mine, saith the Lord." It inevitably leads, in consequence of the fallpility of human tribunals.

Oh! that said his mother I feetly receive,
to the ignominious destruction of innocent life of which the history of criminal law in our awar country hears ample record and our own country bears ample record—and. For I've read about Pharach in Scripture.

CONTAINING an account of his extraor-dinary and surprising adventurs in this and stancial proof, the fatal error is irreparable.
