

ferent Methods of carrying on the Fur Trade;--Superiority of the Canada Trade;--Stock of the Hudson's-Bay Company;—List of the original Proprietors;—Account of the Exports for ten Years;—Charges, Profits and Dividends, during that Time;—Comparative View of the present and former Expences;—Account of Imports or Sales for ten Years;—Present State of the several Establishments;—Standard of Trade with the Natives;—Impositions of the Traders;—Valuation of Peltry;—Decay of the Trade at York-Fort, and Cause thereof;—Ravages of the Small-Pox among the Indians.

Reflections on the Company's Trade, shewing in what Manner it may be improved to the general Benefit of the Nation - - p. 95

Conduct pursued by the Company;—Their first Charter expired;—Advantages that would arise from an extension of the Sea Fishery;—Means by which the Trade may be extended in the inland Parts;—the Improvement of them neglected.