with his creditors while in the jewellery business in Woodbridge, and commenced in Orangeville with a cash capital of 'only about $1,100. He has been steady, honest and industrious, but, in addition to slow sales, heavy doctor-bills have been accumulated, and it is stated that latterly he lost some $300 by one of his salesmen, who, it is alleged, collected notes for machines, got them cashed, and cleared out. This, with some minor losses, almost inseparable from such a business, and slow sales, resulting from the farmers not marketing their grain, have operated against him. The immediate cause of his present difficulty, however, is said to be a dispute with the issuer of the writ over some machines that were not giving satisfaction. He has already paid the claim in part, and it is thought will be able to settle the balance with a little time. The other creditors have looked into his affairs, and are said to be willing to afford him all required consideration. The total of liabilities is estimated at $1,200, and assets at $2,000,—in stock of sewing machines, musical instruments, watch-makers' tools etc., and notes for organs and machines, on which some advances have been made.

SUTHERLAND, MILLAR & Co., wholesale and retail stationers, began business in St. Francois Xavier street, this city, about three years since, succeeding Wm. Millar, of the firm, who had carried on business in a small way, but profitably, for many years before. Jas. Sutherland, it will be remembered, succeeded to his uncle's established business some years ago, but, after a brief career, failed in February, 1879. The agreement between the recent partners contained some laudable provisions, but after a run of a short time in the small, quiet premises where Millar had at least made a living for many years, they removed into larger premises on Notre Dame street. did not agree too well as to business methods, one was progressive and the other more conservative. In July last they dissolved, Mr. Millar retiring. In the course of the following month, Mr. Sutherland felt obliged to consult his creditors. A statement was made showing an apparent surplus of $700 over liabilities of some $8,000, and arrangements were made for an extension on the basis of 25 cents on the dollar, cash, and the balance of 75 cents in 3, 6 and 9 months. To pay the ready cash portion he borrowed about $2,500 from a shrewd and successful but liberal-hearted cheese merchant of the city. Mr. Sutherland now finds himself unable to meet the second instalment, and the result is an assignment to Mr. Andrew Boyd of the firm of A. Buntin & Co., while the friend is said to be left out in the cold. Mr. Millar has returned to his former premises, and is again running on his own account.
