A. SERIES OF FOURTEEN DIALOGUES

ON THE SUBJECT OF UNIVERSALISM:

WHEREIN all the chief arguments of the WHEKEIN all the chief arguments of the advocates of that system are distinctly stated and refuted, and the truth of the leading doctrines of the Christian faith, viz.—The Fall of Man, Origin f Sin, Immortality of the Soul, Divinity of Christ, The Trinity, The existence of a Devil—of a Hell—and a future Judgmont,—vindicated: whereby any person of ordinary understanding may be able to defend the orthodox faith against the insidious arguments and calumnies of its Universation and Sociation adversation. With copious indexes to the controverted pas-

BY HENRY EVANS, Esq. Kingsey, C. E. The author having dedicated the profits of the above Work,—the compilation of which has occupied much of his time for the past three years,—to aid the completion of a church now erecting in his neighbourpletion of a church now erecting in his neighbourhood, trusts that any lengthened appeal to his brethren of the orthodox faith, io en ibling him, by subscription to the above, or by donations to the nearly exhausted building fund, to carry a much required object into effect—will be unnecessary. The work will contain nearly 400 pages, 8vo., and will be sold to Subscribers at 63. 3d. per copy.

PROSPECTUS OF A NEW SERIES OF THE

CHRISTIAN MIRROR:

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

AT 7s. 6p. PER ANNUM.

IN proportion as the influence of the Religion IN proportion as the influence of the Religion of Christ prevails—just in the same ratio will enlightened and liberal views prevail.—Men will forget the minor shades of difference in their theological notions, and, with common consent, rally round those great truths, and fundamental principles, which all Evangelical Churches believe to be essential to salvation.

We are fully satisfied, that every disciple of Christ, to whatever section of the Christian Church he may believe the great the results of the christian Church he may to whatever section of the Christian Church he may belong, has quite enough to do in combatting with his enemies, "the world, the flesh, and the devil," without disputing, or in any wise interfering, with his fellow pilgrims on their way to the promised rest. Believing these views to be scripturally correct, and with an ardent desire to be made instrumental, in some with an ardent desire to be made instrumental, in some small degree, in promoting love and harmony between Christians of different names,—the conductor of the Christian Mirror commenced its publication—under a conviction that such a religious periodical was a desideratum in Canada: a publication in which the most fustilious Christian should find nothing to interfere in the past to the product of the control most fustitious Christian should find nothing to interfere, in the most remote manner, with his pecular predilections, but much that might contribute to his edification and instruction. The fact that the Mirror is now patronized by nearly all denominations of Christians in this Province, is to the publisher a gratifying proof that he was not mistaken. The Christian Mirror has been published for upwards of two years; and it is pleasing to be able to say, that it now enjoys so large a share of patronage, as to induce the Proprietor, at the earnest solicitation of a large number of the subscribers and friends, to issue the present Prospectus—intending, should a sufficient the present Prospectus—intending, should a sufficient number of names be obtained, to publish it WERKLY, at the close of the present quarter, (say November quainted with the character of the Mirror, it has been thought proper to publish the following synopsis:—

Conceiving that Missionary efforts are among the most important and interesting movements of modern Christianity, a large space is devoted to the advocacy of Christian Missions, and the publication of the latest Missionary Intelligence. It may here be remarked, that an additional supply of Missionary and other religious Periodicals is about to be ordered.

A portion of the paper is also devoted to the interests of the great Temperance Cause—which has been so signally blessed to thousands of our fellowmen.

its management, the discussion of all party In its management, the discussion of all party polities is most sedulously avoided; while in its pages will always be found a summary of the lutest secular News, state of the Markets, &c.

The Mirror also comprises:—
Extracts frem Modern Travels, especially those which tend to throw light on Biblical History and Biblical Records.

Religious Literature, being extracts from the most popular writers on Divinity, that is, such as interfere not with the neutral principles of the paper.

Moral Tales, Anecdotes, and Short Articles for Youth.

In consequence of the increasing circulation of the Mirror, it is strongly recommended to the commercial community as a good advertising medium. Agents and friends generally are respectfully requested to procure new subscribers, to meet the additional outlay consequent upon a weekly issue. Subscriptions thankfully received by the understrond publisher.
