

dious and well-illustrated presentation of the present status of Gynecology. The name of its author is a sufficient guarantee of the trustworthiness of the work. Entire originality is of course neither possible nor desirable in a work intended to summarize the best knowledge in a modern progressive branch of medicine. The reader has the benefit of the author's experience at every point which needed rounding out and illuminating, and the result is a remarkably judicious and even presentation of the entire subject. For the student, Crockett's Gynecology will prove of great convenience and utmost value, while the practitioner may well refer to it for the latest points on every phase of its subject. It is amply illustrated and exceedingly low in price.

---

A Manual of the Practice of Medicine. Prepared especially for students. By A. A. STEVENS, A.M., M.D., Professor of Pathology in the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania, and Lecturer on Terminology and Instructor in Physical Diagnosis in the University of Pennsylvania. Fifth edition, revised and enlarged. Illustrated. Philadelphia: W. B. Saunders. Toronto: J. A. Carveth & Co. Price, $2.00.

Admirably bound, neat and concise in arrangement of text, this work will appeal to all students, who wish to get the salient points well mastered on the eve of an examination. The reviewer remembers perfectly laying the heavy works on the practice of medicine aside about a month before examination, and reading this manual alone. The result was first place in medicine.

---

REPRINTS RECEIVED.

"Sterility and Pelvic Deformity." By JOSEPH BROWN COOKE, M.D., New York City.

"A Review of the History and Literature of Appendicitis." By GEORGE M. EDEBOHLS, A.M., M.D., New York.

"Acute Inflammation of the Middle Ear, Complicating Scarlet Fever and Measles." By CHARLES H. MAY, M.D., New York.

"Some Considerations in Sugar-Testing, with Description of a Method for the Detection and Estimation of Sugar in the Urine." By ARTHUR R. ELLIOTT, M.D.