EMBROIDERY FOR TOWELS AND TRAY-CLOTHS

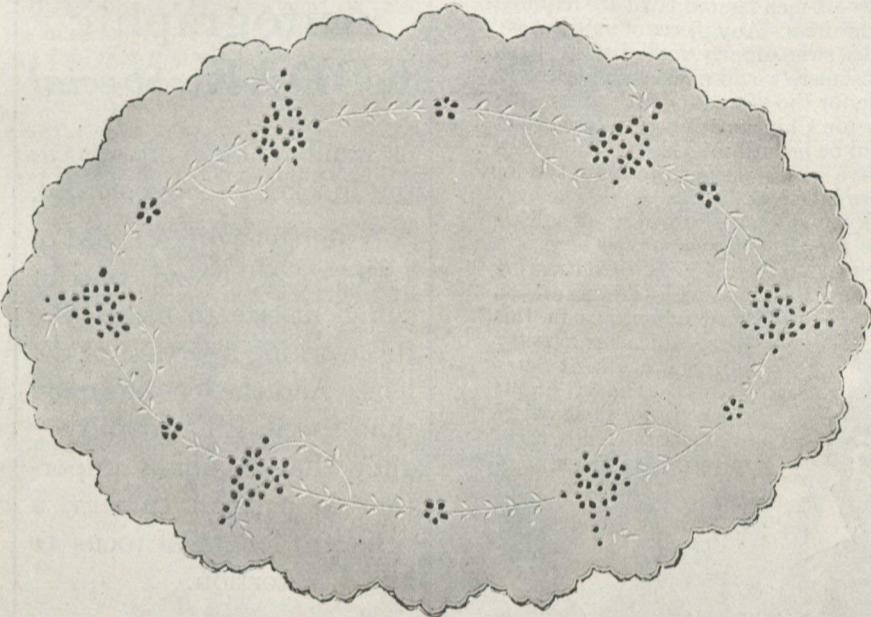

By KATHERINE LANGTHORPE

THE lovely cloth in transfer 323 may be used for a tray-cloth or oval centerpiece. It is embroidered in eyelets and satin-stitch on a fine firm weave of white linen.

The scalloped edge has a very pretty and graceful outline.

Eyelet stitch is simple and effective and is worked by whipping over and over running stitches which border the hole to be surrounded. These running stitches should be small and in large eyelets a solid outline is often made by running around twice, the position of second line stitches alternating with the first. In the case of small round eyelets use a stiletto to punch through the material, working it around until the cloth is pushed back to run line. Stitch over and over around the running line through the hole, making the stitches even.

TRANSFER 323 FOR TRAY-CLOTH. PRICE 10 CENTS. BLUE.

Transfers for stamping one tray-cloth twenty-two inches long by fourteen inches wide and a sample sheet for testing the heat of the iron come in a pattern. In transfer 322 we have two beautiful each side are embroidered in shadow eyelets. Within the circle of eyelets a monogram or initial of script letters will look very lovely.

Shadow or padded eyelets are very pretty and effective and are made as are simple eyelets, the difference lies in the running stitches which surround the hole to be embroidered. For shadow eyelets there should be several rows to form sufficient padding.

Transfers for stamping two towels each twenty-two inches wide and a sample sheet for testing the heat of the iron come in a pattern.

TRANSFER 322 FOR TWO TOWELS. PRICE 10 CENTS. BLUE.
