

Canadian Assistance in South Africa

Canada's concerns for the disadvantaged population in South Africa are both developmental and humanitarian. Canada has for several years maintained a program of development assistance aimed at providing educational and training opportunities to black South Africans that might not otherwise be available.

Canadian assistance is provided multilaterally and through programs that involve non-governmental organizations and institutions. More than $8 million in Canadian Official Development Assistance was disbursed for these programs in 1989/90 through the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA). In 1990/91, total disbursements are expected to exceed $9 million. None of the monies provided through CIDA is received by the South African government.

Canadian Education Program for South Africa (CEPSA)

Canada instituted a program of educational assistance in South Africa in 1985. As a result of an evaluation early in 1989, a second phase of this program was approved with a budget of $14.7 million. (i) Internal Scholarships:

CIDA currently supports an internal scholarship program for black students in South Africa. Administered by the Canadian Embassy in Pretoria, a total of $1.3 million is being channelled through the Educational Opportunities Council (EOC) to assist undergraduate study and academic-bridging support programs which are designed to bring the academic standards of disadvantaged students up to university requirements.

(ii) The Canadian Education Fund:

The Canadian Education Fund is a special fund administered by the Canadian Embassy in Pretoria. It supports small-scale initiatives in adult education, alternative schooling, teacher upgrading, literacy, bridging, student support services and leadership training.

(iii) Labour Education:

Funds are being provided to the Canadian Labour Congress (CLC), the Canadian Teachers' Federation and the Confédération des Syndicats Nationaux (CSN) to contribute to
