

AUTUMN

The trees are bending in the wind,
The leaves are falling fast.
The cold drear winter has set in
And summer has gone past.

The lofty pine is sorry for
The dead leaves on the ground,
But he himself has nought to fear
From Jack Frost on his round.