

the missionary and other connexional funds, there has also been a wonderful growth, and especially during the past seven years, but the time allotted to me for the preparation of this paper being so brief, in connection with the pressure of other duties, renders it impossible for me to examine the necessary data for the preparation of schedules showing the annual or quadrennial increases. I would, therefore, refer all who may desire further information on the items referred to, to Vol. II. of the "Cyclopedia of Methodism in Canada," covering the years from 1880 to 1891, which we hope to publish shortly.

In view of what has been achieved in the century of Methodism in Canada, now closing, and the foremost position occupied by Methodism in this growing Dominion, may we not expect that by the blessing of God this great Church, with her multiplied and ever-increasing agencies, will go forward in the work of winning souls to Christ, and so haste on the millennial glory of His kingdom?
