Trouble Threatened, But Officer Gave Way.

Voyage Was Wearying and Men Were Tired of Labors.

All was not "beer and skittles" for the veterans who returned to Canada on the Cassandra and arrived here on Sunay, according to some of the local men, and it was only by the narrowest market it was only by the narrowest market in that serious trouble was averted on board on the last day of the trip.

The cause of the disturbance was an order from the O. C. that the boys scrub the decks before leaving, this command coming after everyone was dressed, with brass polished and shining, ready to disembark. The men flatly and positively refused to do this work, which they had done during the voyage with little grumbling. Eventually the officer gave way and the work was turned over to the deck hands.

The order was the last straw. During the whole voyage, which was longer than usual because of teebergs holding up the vessel for two nights fi succession, hardly any amusement of any kind had been provided for the rank and file, who were confined to very narrow quarters aboard. It was asserted to The Advertiser that no Y. M. C. A. man was in evidence on the ship and no one else undertook to organize any pastimes, so that life aboard was rather dreary and monotonous.

Tired out and eager to get ashore, the All was not "beer and skittles" for the Tired out and eager to get ashore, the boys were astounded and disgusted when informed that they had to scrub the decks before getting off the boat, and that fallure to do so would mean dropping the anchor outside the harbor and lying to until the command was dropping the anchor outside the harbor and lying to until the command was obeyed. Despite threats all joined in the "strike" and refused.

One bright spot in the trip overseas was provided by Glasgow. There the troops were given a magnificent send-off. The bands of the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders and the pipers of the city police force played on the docks for three hours, and the lord provost of Glasgow, with the council, came in state to express thanks for what the Canadians had done, the high commisstate to express thanks in the commis-sioner of Newfoundland returning thanks on behalf of the troops.

During the voyage, Pte. A. H. Rowe, formerly of Queen's avenue, donated three paintings to help the Sailors' Orphanage funds, and these were sold for

NEW NATIONAL OUTLOOK Getting of Riches Not Standard of Success Any Longer.

The united congregations of the First Presbyterian and St. Andrew's churches filled St. Andrew's to its capacity on Sunday evening, when Rev. D. C. Mac-Gregor, pastor of the latter, preached a stirring patriotic sermon on the subject of "Canada and the New Era." At the conclusion of the service, he asked the congregation to remain standng while the organist played the 'Hallelulah Chorus,' from "The Messiah," music expressing the feelings of thanksgiving at this time for the restoration of peace to the world.

Of Supreme Moment.

Three things were declared by Mr.
MacGregor in the course of his sermon to be of supreme importance to Canada in entering upon a new era in Its history as a nation (1) the setting up of a great Canadian national ideal; (2) emparking on a thorough definite Canadan parking on a thorough definite Canadan barking on a thorough, definite Canadianizing program; and (3) establishing all institutions, beginning with the home, on a foundation of high ideals.

Much sympathy is shown generally with the plea of veterans of the war who are serving sentences in jail for trivial crimes that they be allowed out in time to take part in the peace celebration on Saturday, July 19. There is a growing feeling that it would be a graceful and not unjust act if pardons were given to all ex-soldiers who are now in confinement because they were caught with liquor illegally in their possession.

The G. W. V. The plan likely will be brought to the notice of other branches throughout the Dominion within the next few days.

Lieut.-Col. W. G. Coles, president of the local G. W. V. A. command, is heartily in favor of all the veterans being released to allow them to participate in the day of rejoicing.

When the bylaw authorizing the increase of the street railway fares comes before the council tonight, the vote at the special meeting will be practically the same as the one at the meeting last week. The vote at the special meeting was seven to five in favor of the bylaw, with Alderman Manness, Holmes, Watkinson, Moorhead, and Seabroock opposing and Alderman Little, Harley, Cunningham, Keene, Drake, Wilson and Colbert supporting it. The two readings of the bylaw will be received tonight, but the 'third reading will meet with some objections necessitatmeet with some objections necessitating the postponement of its reading until Wednesday. They point out that, even if it goes into effect and prevents a strike at the present time, the question involved will be submitted to the electors next January and if they then dectare against increased fares the bylaw will have to be rescinded, and the condition which precipitated the strike last week will automatically be restored. They argue that, aside from the illegality of the bylaw, its probable only effect will be to postpone a strike on the street car system from the summer to the winter time, and that of the two evils the former would be the less.
