PROGRESS IN DENTISTRY
It has been raised from a Trade to a Profession.
The great progress made by the dental profession during the past few years is a fact which is well known to all. The dental profession has been raised from a trade to a profession. The dental profession has been raised from a trade to a profession. The dental profession has been raised from a trade to a profession.

IS NEAR DEATH.
Sherbrooke, Que., May 21.—Unconscious and hovering between life and death, Harry Bertouck, one of the prominent figures in an unsuccessful hold-up at Black Lake, yesterday, lies in St. Joseph's Hospital, at Bedford Mines. Bertouck is severely wounded in the head, the bullet entering just above the left eye and coming out behind the right ear. A large posse has been actively engaged in searching the woods in an endeavor to locate Bertouck's companion.

Twenty-five years ago any one who had a little experience around a dental office could get a certificate from the County Clerk, could practice dentistry at his own sweet will. But now, "but the young man who aspires to be a dentist now must be a high school graduate, he must have completed at least one year's work in a recognized college of liberal arts and sciences, and he must spend four studying dentistry. I believe that by 1936 the requirements will be exactly the same as they are in the field of medicine which is a great field for a young man to enter, for more dentists are needed.

"Scientific research in this profession has developed a wonderful technique in dentistry, and dentistry has given one very important thing to the world, credit for which is usually given to the medical profession, and that is ethics. It is the name of Norton, who discovered sulphuric ether and its use, and gave his discovery as a free gift to the world. From dentistry also we have learned conductive anaesthesia, that is, the injecting of anaesthesia directly into the nerve centres. For instance, there are two places of the upper jaw where the nerve comes out through the jaw to supply the nerve centres of the teeth. By finding one of these openings and injecting directly into the nerve filaments, it is possible to anaesthetize the whole side of the jaw and perform without pain operations which before were very much to be dreaded."

Dr. Terry's work is mainly in detecting and driving out of the dental profession charlatans and quacks and doing away with the so-called "dental parlors" where painless dentistry is practiced. "We have raised dentistry from a trade to a profession," he said.

Nothing on Him.
It was in the smoking compartment of a Pullman, and an obviously self-satisfied little man had been doing most of the talking for some time. "I tell you," he declared emphatically, "there is nothing like good old American stock that goes right back to the beginning. Now I don't like to boast, but facts are facts—an ancestor of mine signed the Declaration of Independence!"

"That so?" a young Jewish traveling man responded mildly. "Interesting of course, but—well, one of my ancestors signed and certified to a rather more important and older document."

"Nothing on earth more important than the Declaration?" the little man queried. "What sort of a document are you talking about?"

"The Ten Commandments," was the gentle rejoinder.

LONDON PAPERS ON HARVEY'S SPEECH
London, May 21.—Two very cordial editorials were included in this morning's newspapers comment on the address made by George Harvey, U. S. ambassador to Great Britain, on Thursday night. They were published in the Morning Post, which never had any use for the League of Nations, and the Daily Telegraph.

The Post said that Lloyd George's assertion that the "future well being of the world depends mainly upon Anglo-American friendship and co-operation" was true, and it continued—"This being so, the League of Nations cannot, as we have been told rather frequently, be the only and unique guarantee of the future peace of the world."

Referring to Anglo-American relations, the Post declared that nothing in recent years more thoroughly dissipated misunderstanding than President Harding's memorable statement of U. S. policy to which Mr. Harvey referred during his speech.

"The British public," the newspaper added, "may well wish the policy of the British government was as definite and simple as that of the United States."

The Daily Telegraph's comment, which was largely a personal appreciation of Ambassador Harvey, cordially agreed it was "high time to give the quietus to the idea that the U. S. may yet be beguiled into the League."

The Daily News continuing its championship of the League of Nations, remarked that the English League of Nations Union had just attained a membership of 100,000, and said there was "no need to take Mr. Harvey's words too tragically."

Assuming that the U. S. will keep out of the League during the term of President Harding, the newspaper said this would be a matter of "grave regret, but it will mean, at the worst, that the league will go on without the U. S. as it has done hitherto."

The News made the point that the whole of America was not ignoring the League of Nations, saying that Canada was taking a valuable part in its operations as was virtually all of Latin America except Mexico.

"So long as the nations now members of the league stand loyally by it" the newspaper concluded, "we can afford to wait until the U. S. is of another mind."

Hardware Specialty Firm Experiences Good Demand at Home and Abroad.

Notwithstanding that its activities are largely confined to the building trades, Col. Arthur P. Hatch, general manager of the Canada Steel Goods Co. Limited, of Hamilton, told The Globe that he and other officials had reason to be optimistic regarding the future, for the reason that the company with present prices 20 per cent. less than they were one year ago, had done a volume of business during the year that was considerably greater than the year before.

Col. Hatch, whose company manufactures all kinds of hardware specialties, said that conditions of the building trades in Hamilton, Sarnia, Windsor and the Province of Quebec looked particularly promising. Even in Oakville and vicinity a brisk building season was probable.

"It is the export trade, however," said Col. Hatch, "that is most gratifying at present. We have found this trade to be fairly good, and have experienced no difficulty in getting our money. We have found good markets for our wares in Cuba, Panama, India, New Zealand and Australia. South America does not appear to be quite normal yet, as the large ports, I understand, are congested with merchandise, which no one can buy because the banks refuse to lend any money."

While several other local plants are running on short time the Canada Steel Goods Co. Limited, has kept its staff fully engaged. Its steel mill is operating day and night, and a large forging plant is likely to be erected at not distant date.

Exactly!
Pat had got hurt—not much more than a scratch. It is true—but his employer had visions of having to pay him compensation, so he adopted the wise course of sending him at once to the hospital. After the house surgeon had examined him carefully, he said to the nurse:—

"As subcutaneous abrasion is not observable, I do not think there is any reason to apprehend legimental destruction of the wound." Then turning to the patient, he asked, quizzically:—

"What do you think, Pat?"

"Sure," said Pat, "you're a wonderful thought-reader, doctor; you took the very words out of my mouth. That's just what I was going to say."
