DEATHS SIX MORE THAN LAST YEAR

Tuberculosis Victims Fewer Than in 1910 and Year Before

BOARD OF HEALTH REPORT

Five Suicides and Twenty-Three Other Deaths by Violence—Thirty-Six Deaths Caused by Contagious Diseases

The statement of the Board of Health for the year ended October 31, shows a total of 760 deaths to which should be added the deaths of twenty-two non-residents making a grand total of 782. This is a slight increase over last year's total, which was 776, and shows a rate of 18.4 to the thousand. The number of infectious and contagious diseases for St. John city and county is 324 with the number of deaths at fourteen. This is a decrease from last year, when the total was 330, but the deaths are exactly the same number.

The number of suicides was five, three poisoning, one drowning, one by fire. There were twenty deaths by violence, as follows: Seven fracturing, two burns, four accidental drowning and seven through other accidental ways.

There were 288 males and 371 females in the death list. Of the total, 616 were Canadian, 140 foreign, and four not stated. There were 337 single and 388 married and not stated five. The ages are as follows:

Under one year—146. One to five—55. Five to ten—14. Ten to fifteen—14. Fifteen to twenty—15. Twenty to twenty-five—25. Twenty-five to thirty—25. Thirty to forty—30. Forty to fifty—21. Fifty to sixty—71. Sixty to seventy—11. Seventy to eighty—11. Not given—1.

This does not include the non-residents. By months, the death list is as follows: November, 57; December, 69; January, 56; February, 57; March, 79; April, 72; May, 57; June, 33; July, 36; August, 22; September, 24; October, 28. This shows August to have had the largest death rate, and July the smallest.

Of the diseases, tuberculosis claimed ninety-four; cancer thirty-six; meningitis, twenty-six; congestion and cerebral hemorrhage, twenty-eight; general paralysis, fifteen; infantile convulsions, ten; organic disease of the heart, sixty-three; endocarditis, twenty-one; syphilis, eighteen; pneumonia, thirty-six; acute bronchitis, sixteen; bronch pneumonia, fourteen; infantile disease, thirty-six; acute nephritis, ten; Bright's disease, eight; old age, seventy-eight; marasmus, infantile and premature birth, sixty-three.

Last year there were 107 deaths from consumption here, and in 1910 the number was 118, so there is something of a decrease.

The statement of infectious and contagious diseases for the city and county for the year is as follows: Diphtheria—November six, December eighteen, January sixteen, February five, March fourteen, April two, May five, June ten, July fifteen, August seven, September nine, October sixteen, total 123. Scarlet fever—November eight, December sixteen, January ten, February five, March sixteen, April five, May six, June one, July three, August four, September nine, October sixteen, total ninety-eight. Typhoid fever—November five, March two, April five, June two, July four, August ten, September thirty, October thirteen, total seventy-two.

Measles—December one, February one, March one, April seven, total ten. Small Pox—February one.

The total number of contagious diseases, which is 302, is as follows: November nineteen, December thirty-five, January twenty-six, February twenty, March thirty-three, April nineteen, May eleven, June thirteen, July twenty-two, August twenty-two, September forty-eight, October forty-four.

From diphtheria there were six deaths from scarlet fever one and typhoid fever seven.

LOST LIFE TRYING TO SAVE YOUNG WOMAN

She Fell Into Canal While on Way Home After a Party

Utica, N. Y., Nov. 4.—William McSweeney, 25 years old, lost his life while endeavoring to save Miss Charlotte Smith from drowning in the Erie canal.

The young woman, dressed in ball gown and furs, fell into the water, while going home after a party. Her cries attracted McSweeney, who plunged in. He helped her out and then sank. His body was recovered half an hour later. Miss Smith suffered no harm beyond a drenching.
