The work of the Guild in its various sections has been vigorously prosecuted throughout the year.

The monthly meetings have been well attended, and the reports from the different sections have shown unabated interest and lively work carried on in Rockwood Asylum, the General Hospital, the House of Industry; in providing clothes for the needy and especially for poor children; in visiting the aged and sick for the reading of Holy Scriptures and Services of Praise.

There is no branch of work that seems forgotten by the Guild; the sphere of activity is wide and every woman in the church may find under its name a field to labour in. There is absolutely no need for any woman of the church to go searching for Christian work away from the directing eye of the church.

There has been nothing of a special nature to mention in the work of the year in this report. All has been cheering work.

In the name of the Guild,

M. VOLUME,
Secretary.

Young Men's Guild.

The principal work of this Guild during the past year has been the conducting of meetings for Bible study every Sunday morning at ten o'clock. The attendance has never been large, but to those of us who have had the opportunity of attending regularly they have been found both interesting and profitable.

The subject of study has been the International Sunday School Lessons, and, as many of the members are engaged in Sabbath School work these meetings have afforded them great help.
