> The new Cunard steamship Aquitania, which has just arrived in New York on her maiden voyage, is not the largest vessel in the world, but she is the largest under the British flag. She is 901 feet long, while the Imperator is 919, and the Vaterland 950. If not the largest, she is believed to be the fastest of the big steamships. On her voyage across the Atlantic she averaged 23.63 knots an hour, and on one day the average was 24.24. She seems also to be better handled than the German ships. She was docked without the least mishap in the Hudson river, where the Vater land had so much trouble recently, both in getting in and out. Captain Turner, in charge of the Aquitania, became well known to patrons of the Cunard line as commander of the Lusitania and the Mauretania He has circumnavigated the globe
