Mr. Mackenzie moved the House into committee on the resolution, declaring it and the Diplomatic Corps, and many expedient that no person having a pecuniary interest in the Pacific Railway Com pany, shall be eligible for election to the House of Commons. He considered it necessary for securing the independence of Parliament, that such motion should be adopted, so that no one connected with the railway should be in a position

Dr. Tupper opposed the resolution; ast year the question had been discussed, and the sense of the House was against such a resolution. He wished to see as many Canadians as possible take hold of the enterprise, and if Mr. Mackenzie's resolution passed, no member of the House could buy any stock. Or if any member received stock as a legacy, he would have to resign. He considered that such a resolution was fraught with danger to this great enterprise. to the fact, that the motion could not city boat called forth eager watchers who pass, as it affected the seats of members. had sought protection from the rain.
