The Stuff that is Real.

The test of a man is the fight he makes. The grit he shows. The way he stands in the heat and takes. Fate's numerous bumps and blows. A coward can smile when there's aught to fear. When nothing but progress bars. But it takes a man to stand up and cheer. While some other fellow stars. It isn't the victor after all. But the fight that a brother makes. The man who, driven against the wall, still stands up erect and takes. The blows of fate with his head held high. Breeding and braved and pale. Is the man who'll win in the long run. For he isn't afraid to fail.

And the shocks your courage stands. The hours of sorrow and vain regret. The prize that escapes your hands. That test your mettle and prove your worth. It isn't the blows you deal. But the blows you take on the good old earth. That shows if your stuff is real.

Life's Real Values.

One does not usually look to a trade journal for a thoughtful article on real values in life as the following, which appears in the American Lumberman.

"The person who spends his entire life in accumulating money—who devotes all his time and energies to promoting his own selfish interests—no matter what the financial return may be, is at last acquired only a livelihood for himself and family. All the surplus, when it is the product of narrow penuriousness as it altogether too often is, is evidence of a misdirected ambition.

"When one can expand his fortune without narrowing his mind, when one can enlarge his property interests without sacrificing his right to growth in character and influence, the accumulation of wealth may work no appreciable harm. But when the pursuit of wealth so narrows the vision and so limits the ambition that they do not extend beyond the single purpose, the seeker of wealth is hardly above, if indeed he is not below, the lower animals.

"Of course there are not many persons in the world who deliberately set out with a determination to follow Iago's advice—to get money in their purses at any cost, but there are many who in the pursuit of that object deprive themselves of finer pleasures that lie along the pathway of life's direct from sources of supply. Having ample capital, they pay cash, thus securing everything at the very lowest market price.

"The policy of the 'Big Store' is 'large sales and small profits.' This has built up a tremendous business, nothing like it east of Montreal. That's the reason why the 'Big Store' prices are always so reasonable, and why you can keep down the cost of living if you trade here.

Three Hundred Fox Companies.

The solid and staple character of the silver fox for breeding industry in Canada, attested by the manner in which Canada's fox companies have during the past two years stood the stress and strain of war conditions, closed markets and diminished values, is a credit to the 300 companies engaged in the industry. It is a credit to the industry as a whole, and to the men who have sought and secured the best of the foxes for their business, and are increasing their herds.

Small sheds and other shelters are dangerous if isolated from larger buildings.

Thick timber is undoubtedly the safest place to seek out of doors, since a single tree in a forest is not so likely to receive a stroke as a single person or an object in an open space or equal area.

Specific for Bronchitis.

The turpentine used in Dr. Chase's Syrup of Limes and Turpentine is not the ordinary commercial article, which is little used because of the unpleasantness of taste, but is especially extracted from limestone and spruce gum and so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be at the same time pleasant to use and wonderfully effective in the cure of affections of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs.

During a Thunderstorm.

Do not use the telephone. The telephone wires may receive a heavy shock.

Keep away from stoves, radiators, and the like. They are large metallic masses, likely to become heavily charged.

Avoid screen doors or other metallic bodies connecting with the exterior of the building.

Keep away from chimneys and open screened windows.

Out of doors the most dangerous places are under isolated trees and near wire fences in open fields.

Small sheds and other shelters are dangerous if isolated from larger buildings.

Thick timber is undoubtedly the safest place to seek out of doors, since a single tree in a forest is not so likely to receive a stroke as a single person or an object in an open space or equal area.

No Law's Delay Here.

In Pease, in the Malay peninsula lawyers find no business, for a modified form of trial by ordeal decides all disputes. In place of the legal practitioner the pleader is a native boy who is assigned to one or the other of the sides and is given a bamboo tube in which is sealed the pleading of the person or party whom he represents. When all is ready the two stakes are driven in the bed of a stream, and by aid of a bamboo pole the heads of the two boys are submerged at the same time. By grasping the stakes they are enabled to remain under water for quite a while after their natural inclination would bring them to the surface, but at least one of them gives up and releases his hold on the stake. The one who remains under water is held to be the winner. The other is held to be the loser. The ordeal is a simple one, and the document containing therein stands as the decision in the case.

Baby's Great Danger During Hot Weather.

More little ones die during the hot weather than at any other time of the year. Diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera, infantum and stomach troubles come without warning, and when a mother is not at hand to give promptly the short delay too frequently means that the child has passed beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in homes where there are young children. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent stomach troubles and relieve the bowels. Tablets will cure the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Tommy Relating His Experiences.

The wounded 'Tommy' was relating his experiences. 'Yes,' he said, 'I was in a bit of a hole over there. There were two German snipers at me, and I only had one bullet left. They were a good bit apart, too, so I couldn't work round to get them in line. I shot at one of the other would get me. What did I do? Well, my knowledge of mathematics saved me. I got behind a stone and angled on a scrap of paper, stuck up my bygone in the sand with the edge towards me, took careful aim at it, and let her go. And boys, the plan worked, for the bullet struck the bayonet and the bullet was split clean in halves, and one hit and killed the German on the right while the other blotted out the blighter on the left. Another time I was—' But his audience had fled.

The Quebec Bridge.

Unless some unexpected obstacle presents itself, the central span of the Quebec bridge will be floated in to place the first week in September. The actual day has not been fixed yet, but fair notice will be given of an event which is destined to become historic.

When the estimates for work on the Quebec bridge were under discussion at the recent session of the House of Commons, the Hon. J. D. Reid, then acting minister of railways, announced that a parliamentary party would be taken to Quebec to see this tremendous feat of engineering.

The bridge, which is the greatest work of engineering hitherto attempted, consists of two shore spans and a central suspension span. The latter is being erected at Sillery Cove, a point some three miles below the bridge site. When completed it will be floated to the site on six pontoons 100 feet long and 36 feet wide, each having a working draft of 8 feet. This span, which is 643 feet long, 110 feet high at the centre, 88 feet wide, and weighs about 5,000 tons, will then be attached to long ladders from the ends of the cantilever arms and jacked into place by means of heavy jacks. The operation is a complex one, will not take more than twenty-four hours. When it is completed the bridge is clear 150 feet above the high water level of the river; the magnitude of this feat of engineering becomes apparent.

The building of the Quebec bridge was begun eight years ago. The present bridge will cost $17,000,000. The first structure collapsed during construction, entailing the loss of many lives.

An old Scotch farmer, who had been hounded all his life, was about to die. His wife left her duty to comfort him such consolation as she might, and said: 'Handy you are about to go, soon I will follow you.'

'I suppose so,' said the man meekly, 'but as far as I'm concerned you needs be an extraordinary hurry about it.'

One woman can call another 'desire' and make it sound like a swear word.

Crowns Worn in War.

Monarchs no longer ride forth crowned to battle, as did Richard III. to his fatal fight on Bosworth Field. Nevertheless, every day crowns figure in the spectacular side of war more often than is commonly supposed. The King of Italy, for instance, although he does not of course always wear it, carries his crown with him wherever he goes, and frequently dons it when he reviews his troops on ceremonial parades.

This is in accordance with the custom and tradition of his house. The crown is supposed to render its wearer immune from harm, because included with the gold is a tiny circle of iron, said to have been made out of the Sympathy.

The man and his wife in the motor car came face to face with the man on a fully laden hay wagon in a narrow lane.

Quite as a matter of course the husband of the woman made a movement to back out and allow the wagon to pass. But his wife objected.

'Let him back out,' she said coldly. 'We were here first; he must have seen us coming!'

Her husband pointed out that a sharp curve in the road rendered this impossible.

'I don't care!' reiterated the dame in the car. 'I don't intend to move! I'd rather remain here all day!'

'But—' her husband began feebly.

'Give over, man!' said the car man, and the tone of his voice expressed wondrous sympathy. 'I don't argue any more! I'll back out! I've got one like 'er at home!'

Eugene was a very mischievous little boy and his mother's patience was worn to the limit. She had spoken very nicely to him several times without effect. Finally she said: 'You are a perfect little heathen! Do you mean it?' demanded Eugene.

'Indeed I do,' said the mother.

'Then, mother, said the boy, 'why can't I keep that to rent a week you give me for the Sunday school collection? I guess I'm as hard up as any of the rest of 'em.'

Forced to Leave School, Had St. Vitus' Dance

Astonishing Cure of This Nervous Trouble Effected by Use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Here is a case where life-long gratitude will be felt for Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. As a school girl and in later life Dr. Chase's Nerve Food came to the rescue when the nerves gave out. Now a healthy, robust woman, happily gives the credit to this great food cure for restoring her to health and strength.

Miss Madie M. White, 11 Waterloo street, Fredericton, N. B., writes:—

'When ten years of age a friend of mine had St. Vitus' Dance and she had to leave school and go under a doctor's care. Instead of benefiting by the treatment she appeared to get worse. Her tongue and tongue became so swollen that she could scarcely take any nourishment. For two weeks she was this way and then took convulsions and nearly choked to death. She was ordered to the hospital, but soon got worse again. I recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to her and she used nine boxes, steadily growing better. Three years later a severe fright brought on the nervous trouble again, and she suffered everything a human being could endure. Her mother bought a dozen boxes of the Nerve Food, and with this treatment she was fully restored. I wish you could see her now, a strong, healthy, robust woman with two lovely babies. She still uses the Nerve Food when she feels out of sorts, but has had no return of the old nervous trouble.'

'For weak, puny, nervous children there is nothing like Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to enrich the blood, restore the starved nerves and start them on the way to health. When they fail to get proper nourishment from the food they eat, this food sure presents the necessary ingredients in condensed and easily assimilated form, and gives strength and vigor to restored. It costs a box, 6 for $3.50, all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Company, Limited, Toronto.'

It was "somewhere in the North Sea." Bill was sent aloft just after darkers set in and was told to report if any lights could be seen. Somehow the officer who gave the order to Bill clear forgot the patient "tar" and so Bill remained aloft for some hours. The officer suddenly remembering giving the orders to the shivering sailor, called out: "Aloft there!"

Bill—Aye, aye, sir.

Officer—See any light?

Bill—Y-e-s, sir! One!

Officer—What is it?

Bill—Daylight.

Mrs. Green: 'They seem to think the war will be over very soon now, Mrs. Arris.'

Mrs. Harris: 'I shouldn't be surprised, Mrs. Green; twenty-five shillings a week and 'twentysix away—I always said it was too good to la t.'
