Not Unworthy.

It is an interesting coincidence that the English reading public should be mourning the passing of Mark Twain on the anniversary of the death of Shakespeare, and on the Patron Saint Day of England.

Mark Twain was a master-workman in words. He moulded American humour into artistic form. His finished style, however, almost escapes observation in the fascination of his wit and the magnetism of his humor. Few, if any, American writers have done more to bring American literature before the English reading public. His readers have been legion for forty years, and his influence in promoting a style of humor free of offence to childhood and chivalric to women has been profound. It is not out of place then that the passing of Mark Twain should be associated with the memory of the greatest master of the English tongue. They are of different ages, different in degree, different in capacity, but both have added greatly to the joy of the nation and the innocent enjoyment of the people in their own tongue. It is also not unworthy that one whose devotion to womanhood, as shown in his pathetic affection for his daughter and reflected in his writings, should be mourned on the Patron Saint Day of England, for St. George typifies chivalry in his idealized form.

Much of his wit is not unworthy of Shakespeare, and his fight for right not unworthy of St. George.

In a Terrible Plight.

Mr. Jno. Currie, business man of Britannia Cove, had a terrible experience recently. He had a motor boat which is run by kerosene oil and was putting a supply into the blow torch, which contained about three gallons, when there was a sudden explosion and the burning fluid was thrown over his clothing which soon was enveloped in flames. He endeavored to quench the blaze but in vain, and had to jump overboard to get away from the fire and save his life. He did not escape unscathed for his legs and arms were badly burned and his pants were reduced to tinders. The boat also clattered on board after much difficulty he quenched the flames.

Sudden Death.

Mr. Hutchings, Deputy Minister of Justice, was yesterday advised that Richard Penton, of Joe Batt's Arm, died suddenly on Tuesday, the 12th inst. He was lying at Wild Bight for the winter. The mailman on his trip from Lewisporte sent to Penton's house asking him and his two sons to give him a "lift" across a neck of land. Penton after speaking to the messenger suddenly threw up his arms and fell, dying almost instantly and without a struggle. The body was taken to Joe Batt's Arm and interred there on Thursday last. Deceased left a widow and several grown up sons.

The Prospero Returns.

The s.s. Prospero, Capt. T. Fitzpatrick, arrived here from the westward at 7 a.m. to-day. The ship had a splendid run up and down the coast, making good time, and arrived at Channel Saturday night, last, after which she crossed to Sydney to bunk and returned Monday morning. Leaving Channel Tuesday morning she had fine weather until reaching St. Mary's and Trepassay when thick fog was encountered, and this prevailed on her run to port. She brought a half cargo of fish, etc., and the following passengers: Rev. Fr. Verker, Messrs. ### Ex-Pupils' Presentation

A number of the ex-pupils of Holy Cross Schools, Riverhead, proceeded to Mount St. Francis Monastery last night and presented Rev. Bro. Conway, their former tutor, with a handsome silver watch appropriately engraved. Bro. Conway, who taught for 20 years past at Holy Cross Schools, was taken completely by surprise and was much affected by this generous token of appreciation on the part of his former pupils. He thanked one and all cordially for their kindness and hoped to again visit St. John's in the near future. Mr. Conway left for Ireland by the Siberian.

Mrs. Nottall Returns.

Mrs. Nottall, who was deported from Sydney and arrived here last week, returned from Bell Island to-day with her two children. She could get no employment. The police hope to get her children in an orphanage when the woman will be enabled to go out and earn her living.

Titled Lady Elopes.

Chicago, April 16.—The world-wide search Baron de Forest, of England, is making for his eloping wife has been unsuccessful in Chicago. For a time it was thought the baroness—Ethel Calhoun de Forest is her full name—and Lieut. Frank Ashton, of the Second Life Guards, with whom she fled from England, might be here. Mercier, employed by the nobleman in the search, spent several days in Chicago and yesterday left for California, when they hope to locate the elopers. Baroness de Forest, 29, beautiful, vivacious and fond of gay life, created a sensation in London when she departed with the boyish lieutenant, who is 21. Baron de Forest was furious and threatened all sorts of vengeance on Ashton. It is thought the desire to revenge himself on the lieutenant more than a wish to get his wife back, is responsible for the great expense the baron has gone to in his search. The elopers first went to Spain, then to Gibraltar, where it was found they had taken steamer for the United States.

Fifty Horses for Newfoundland.

On a through freight which arrived about midnight, was a consignment of fifty horses from Perth, Ont., for the Reid Railway Company, Newfoundland. The animals will be used in construction work on the Island. Owing to the Boston train being two and a half hours late a car was attached to the freight at Fredericton Junction for the accommodation of passengers from the capital.—St. John Standard.

Here and There.

The s.s. Rosalind arrived at 2.30 p.m. to-day.

A BIG SHED.—The D. I. S. Co. at Bell Island are now building a large shed there composed of brick for storing freight. Six masons from the city are there at the work.

MORE SPURIOUS COIN.—A young man in a down town office, who was recently on business up in Fortune Bay, received a spurious 50 cent piece which he took with some other cash. It bears the date of 1900 and is cleverly composed of metal other than silver.

TWO SKIPPERS FINED.—Mr. LeMessurier, the Asst. Collector, had a wire to-day to the effect that John Organ, of the schr. Shamrock, and Wm. Morris, of Pass Island, were fined by Magistrate McGrath, at St. Jacques yesterday $25 each for a violation of the Customs Act.

The farmers are now very busy getting out the manure on their meadows.

Mrs. Wm. Andrews, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Howe, at Port Blandford, arrived home by Thursday's express.

A pulpit and a reading desk arrived from Chatham, Canada, Wednesday for the new Anglican Church at hope-well. It will greatly enhance the beauty of the building.

A meeting of the congregation was held Tuesday evening to decide about the rebuilding of the Parsonage at Foxtrap. A committee of energetic men was formed, and before long we expect to see it under way.

I suppose when the airships come over to Newfoundland, we will be able to refer to it as a "flying visit."

We deeply regret to record the death of Mrs. Susannah Scott, wife of Mr. Charles Scott of this place. For two weeks or more she had been lingering between life and death. Drs. Anderson and Chisholm, performed an operation on her Monday night, but her constitution was not able to bear it. She passed away Wednesday, at two o'clock leaving a husband and four little children, the oldest being twelve years old, to mourn her loss. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved husband, and poor motherless children. Interment will take place to-morrow, Friday, in the C. of E. Cemetery, Hopewell.

The road along the shore is very rough, and I should think the authorities should see about repairing it. The wheel of the carriages go down to the axle in places. The keeping of this road in repair is not for our benefit alone, but for the benefit of the whole shore, even St. John's. Now is the time to repair it, and not in the fall.

Dead Dogs That Bark.

Dr. Marage, of Paris, who a short time ago demonstrated his discovery that voice sounds are produced by the larynx exclusively, has been showing the Academy of Science that dead dogs can be made to bark and even howl most dismally. The importance of his experiments lies in his theory that in a person suffering from a lost voice a slight electric shock given the larynx may restore its muscular activity, and hence be attended by a return of voice.

While studying the functions of the larynx he hit on the curious fact that dead animals, by means of electric on the larynx, can be made to emit the same sounds as when they were alive. He applied a feeble electric current to certain muscles of the throat of a dead dog, which immediately caused it to bark. The sound was produced evidently by a series of simple contractions of the larynx, causing a vibration. He multiplied his experiments and found that big dead hounds, for instance, could be made to emit a deep-voiced bark as if they were alive, and smaller dogs could be made to produce a long, pitiful howl, such as is usually heard when they are said to be barking or howling at the moon. The various kinds of howls and barks can be produced at will by changing the electric current.
