TO OBSERVE STRICT NEUTRALITY

The Manchester Guardian in an editorial article on the exploits of the U-53, declares its conviction of the this forenoon said that advices so far received indicated that all rules of international warfare have been compiled with by the German subs. operating off the New England coast. The Secretary said while complete reports from American warships in the neighbourhood of the commerce destroyers are not yet in, reports tended to show all vessels had been no violation of conditions imposed on subs. by President Wilson's last note to Germany. Further reports are to be sent the President by the navy department as fast as they are received.

Within Battles.

A battle was formerly a thing of hours and a few square miles; it took its name from a town, and sometimes, when no town was near, from some handy object, Chrysler's Farm, Gaines' Mill, Pittsburg Landing, Shiloh Church. Now a battle is what a campaign used to be, a thing of months, stretching over an expanse of territory, the course of a river, perhaps a province. The battle of Champaign was an incident of what? The battle of the Somme. What was a battle before this extraordinary war such battle, as that of the Somme. stadt, but were unable to stay the advance of the Austrians and Germans. Honoured by Social Gathering Last Night. Rev. J. S. Sutherland was the guest of honour at a social gathering in the Presbyterian Hall last night which was attended by a large number of the congregation. Mr. R. A. Templeton occupied the chair and in a brief address referred very touchingly to the departure of Mr. Sutherland, who had worked so hard for St. Andrews' congregation. Mr. C. V. Hudson on behalf of the members read a beautifully worded address and presented the rev. gentleman with a costly piece of furniture.

The S. S. Neptpne, Capt. Burgess, reached port last evening from the Labrador mail service, having gone as far north as Hopedale. The Neptune left here Sept. 14th and was out in the big storm of the 24th but came through with little or no damage. Stormy weather with dense fog was experienced for the whole 24 days and not since November, 1911, when the S. S. Solway took about the same time to get as far north as Cartwright and return, were weather conditions so severe. Capt. Burgess, whose knowledge of the Labrador coast ranks him high among our master mariners, had to exercise all his skill as a navigator to bring his ship through without accident. Much delay was experienced in picking up the fishing crews at the various ports of call, most of whom belonged to Conception Bay. The total number of passengers was 230; she also brought a large freight, including a big shipment of oil. care Mrs. Richard Duni Faston, Miss Eliza,
