That Voice of Yours.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

How often the spell of beauty is rudely broken by coarse loud talking! How often you are irresistibly drawn to a plain unassuming woman whose soft silvery tones render her positively attractive! In the social circle how pleasant it is to hear a woman talk in that low key which always characterizes the true lady. Lamb.

Two young girls standing in front of me in a trolley the other day were talking to each other in a perfectly natural manner. Their voices were pleasant, natural young voices.

A third girl, who was evidently known to one of these girls but not to the other, got on the car. She greeted her friend and was duly introduced to the other girl.

They talked as if they had not met in their mouths.

The three then took up the conversation but oh, what a difference there was in the manner of the first two! If I had had my eyes shut I would have known that something had happened.

All their pleasant, natural tones were gone. They talked as if they were strangers. A third girl, who was evidently known to one of these girls but not to the other, got on the car. She greeted her friend and was duly introduced to the other girl.

They talked as if they had not met in their mouths.

The three then took up the conversation but oh, what a difference there was in the manner of the first two! If I had had my eyes shut I would have known that something had happened.

person from the voice. And how seldom you are entirely mistaken! Did you ever, for instance, find one of those rough, uneducated, uncontrolled voices dressed in anything but the latest and loudest and cheapest of styles? Sometimes, however, the voice stands for a past rather than a present personality. You know what they say about the eyes and mouth. The mouth shows what you are, the eyes what you might have been. In the same way, I think, you will occasionally find people whose voices still reflect the good blood and good upbringing from which they themselves have fallen away.

His Voice Refused to Forget. For instance, I know a man who over the telephone impresses you most favourably. His voice is so charming and he has that rare gift. A laugh you long to hear again. When you see him you find a loose lipped body and a general suggestion of the taint of grossness. I asked someone about his history and found that he was from a splendid family. The voice alone refused to forget.

A good voice is the best of introductions to any society. Add to this a good carriage, good grooming and poise of manner and you need not dread that bugbear of so many of us, meeting new people.

And the best of it is that none of these things are like our faces. Thrust upon us. They are things we can get for ourselves, if we will, in its fullest sense.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

The Monroe doctrine is an invisible line which was erected in 1823 by President James Monroe in order to prevent the South American republics from being sold at public auction. It has been maintained in a good state of repair until recently, but is now considerably run down and needs some new barbed wire and a few stout posts, particularly along the Mexican border.

At the time this doctrine of "hands off in South America" was formulated, several of the Spanish colonies on the American continent had revolted with a loud noise and begun action for a divorce. This was very trying to Spain, which was short of money and could not borrow anything at the bank without having two signers. The United States had recognized some of these colonies as fragment and independent nations, and when France proposed to bring over a few boatloads of first line troops in carmine pants and restore them to Spain, so that she could take up a few of her overdrats, President Monroe sent word to France that any interference by foreign governments in the affairs of the American continents would be resisted by our standing army of 9,000 men. This caused France to recede in an apologetic tone of voice, and permitted the South American revolution to flourish faster than the sale of rubber plantation stocks in the land of the free.

Always able to piece out a two-day oration with a pedigree of the Monroe doctrine and a burst of defiance to the world powers.

The Monroe doctrine is one of the most useful articles which Congress has in its possession. Whenever a stout-lunged filibuster is in progress in the Senate and the speaker has run out of public documents, fearless editorials and extracts from the North American Review, he is always able to piece out a two-day oration with a pedigree of the Monroe doctrine and a burst of defiance to the world powers. A great many senators who otherwise would not know this doctrine from Lincoln's address at Gettysburg are thus able to locate it without hunting laboriously through a '978 encyclopedia. Some of the best speeches ever made in Congress have been those which began with a denunciation of the pork barrel and wound up thirty-six hours later with an impassioned map in bas-relief of the Monroe doctrine, leaving the opposition scattered around on settees in a state of demoralized dishevelment.

It is likely that this country will defend the Monroe doctrine so long as there is any of it left. It is a part of our life insurance policy, and has no cash surrender value.

Your Boys and Girls.

When putting baby to bed after the last evening feeding, which ought to be at seven or seven-thirty, rub his back and see that all the neck hands are dry and comfortable. Leave him in a dark, well ventilated room and do not again feed him until he awakes and is hungry. You will find that a well-nourished baby will sleep all night without awakening.

Before mixing his milk put a well washed bottle, nipple, funnel, table-spoon and teaspoon on the stove in a pan of cold water and let them all come to a boil. This is the only way to be sure the articles are sterilized.

What a Gas Range Means for You, Mrs. Housekeeper.

The gas range is a muscle saver and a step saver. Think of the many tons of coal you used in that coal range, and how you have had to handle it all twice; first, carrying it up out of the cellar; then, from the kitchen to the ash barrel.

No more soot to wipe away; no more ashes to cart away; no more wood to fetch; no more coal dust; no more smoke and no more reason why the kitchen cannot be kept as clean and as orderly as the parlor. The gas range means just this.

Saves 50 Per Cent of Kitchen Cares. Half of the labor in the house is caused by dust from the coal range. Every time it smokes, no matter how good the draught may be, clouds of ashes rise and settle on the furniture. It eliminates Hard Work. Use a gas range and you will live better, you will play better, and you will work better because the use of the gas range eliminates the tedium of carrying coal, ashes and the chopping of kindling, as well as the drudgery of cleaning up a lot of dirt, and, best of all, for the cook it makes it unnecessary for her to stand over a hot stove from two to three hours a day.

Shipwrecked Crew at Trepassy.

Mr. H. W. LeMessurier, C.M.G., Deputy Minister of Customs, had a message from the Sub-Collector at Trepassy last night stating that a Newfoundland vessel on her way to this port had put in there and landed the crew of the steamer William Edwards, which foundered off Cape Pine on Monday last. The ill-fated steamer was bound to St. John's with a load of coal at the time. The shipwrecked crew will reach the city by to-morrow morning's train.

CONDITIONS IN VIENNA.

AMSTERDAM, May 16. The Cologne Gazette, commenting on the report made by Dr. Mathius Erzenburger, leader of the Clerical Centre Party, in the Reichstag, as to the discouraging conditions in Vienna, says the report has created deep pessimism in Germany regarding Austria. Dr. Erzenburger visited Vienna with a view to accelerating peace.

PIT-PROP CASE.—The evidence of William Quick, surveyor of lumber, chief witness for the defence in the case of Peltham vs. Hessler and Co., was continued at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon till 6 when the further hearing was postponed till Friday morning.

A Job for Every Man.

New York Sun.—It is already conceded that out of this war will undoubtedly proceed a more general recognition of the power of the State to organize industry and to supervise, even conduct it for the good of all. England, for example, in which for ages the greatest wealth and luxury has existed side by side with the most miserable poverty and squalor, is never going back to her traditional policy of laissez faire. A nation able to support five million men in the field, care for their dependents at home, see that its industries are so organized that there is a job for every man and a man for every job, and that the man does the job and the job supports the man, is not going back to the days of longshoremen's strikes and out of work parades.

CIVIC BOARD MEETS.

The weekly session of the Civic Board will be held to-night.

Joffre is a Methemician

London Daily Chronicle: General Joffre, had he not chosen the army as a profession, might have been a professor of mathematics, and the new French War Minister, M. Painleve, is one of the most brilliant of contemporary mathematicians. As a boy, indeed, he was a mathematical prodigy, and before he entered politics he had written several books on advanced mathematical problems. Mathematical calculation and applied science will probably prove the most important factors in ending the world war, and the Allies have now a galaxy of scientific brains in their service.
