Gods in his heaven,
All's rights with the world.
—BROWNING.

If you trust in God and yourself you can surmount every obstacle. Do not yield to restless anxiety. One must not always be asking what may happen to one in life, but one must advance fearlessly and bravely.
—(PRINCE BISMARCK.)

—Only those communications to which the writers are willing to have their names appended in print will be published in these columns. Neither the writing nor the publication of anonymous letters can be justified.

—At Ottawa we pay a high price for a low down Government.

—What does Sir Adolphe Caron know that gives him such power over Sir John Thompson and his political associates?

—Hon. Wilfrid Laurier starts for his tour in the Northwest on Aug. 20. The Liberal leader will have for his companion Mr. S. A. Fisher, of Knowlton.

—If Parliament had been promptly called after last January the members would not be sweating in the heat at Ottawa now, endeavoring to do the work of a month in a day or two.

—The president of the Manitoba Conservative Association says that the members of his party in that Province will have nothing to do with the Patrons. Probably not; but if Patrons are elected, and if the Conservatives are much in the minority, as in Ontario, we will have the friends of the president claiming that Patron and Conservative are interchangeable terms!

—There are some people who profess to believe that no person can sympathize with the workmen in their struggles to get fair play from the grasping Mr. Pullman and at the same time be ready to condemn the lawless spirits who engage in the diabolical work of wrecking railway trains. It will be found that the people who most strongly condemn all lawlessness, whether by strikers or others, are the respectable workmen. The gratuitous assumptions of those who argue otherwise are most offensive.

—Prof. Drummond wrote the "Ascent of Man," a remarkable work that has a wide circulation. The professor is also a believer in the ascent of woman. In a speech at Haddo House, Lord Aberdeen's place, the other day, he remarked that "woman had been put through a marvelous discipline during the long night of history to teach her the virtues of unselfishness, tenderness, patience, compassion and love, so that she might become the teacher of the world; and it was quite certain, by all the laws of science and all the traditions of the world's past, that the great factor in the future evolution of society must be the ascent of woman."

THE COST OF NATIONAL DEGRADATION.

The Montreal Witness suggests that Parliament should inquire into the contract system, so as to ascertain just how much each contractor for Dominion Government work is expected to pay to the election funds of the men now in power.

If anyone proposes such a motion it will be voted down by the men who refused to investigate the charges made against Sir Adolphe Caron, who was one of the handlers of the gigantic Quebec corruption fund. Perhaps an easier way of getting at the truth would be to ask for the name of the contractor who has done business with the Government in the last twelve years who has not been much overpaid in order that he, in turn, might contribute to the Conservative election fund. Has there been one contractor who has not been enabled to collect more than his agreement called for, in order that he might be able to bleed for the benefit of the political leaders in power?

Many contractors have been investigated in Parliament, but so far no contract has been discovered in recent years that was carried out with a sole regard to the public interests. When the Quebec harbor works scandal became a subject of inquiry before the courts, it was found, on the authority of Judge Rose, that $117,000 passed over from Mr. Connolly and his fellow contractors to Mr. McGreevy, M.P., who was the bosom companion of the Dominion Minister of Public Works, and at the same time treasurer and confidential agent of the Conservative leaders. Another case of bleeding the public to provide election funds was revealed recently. The Lake St. John Railway, of which Senator Ross was president, applied for aid. Subsidies to the amount of $262,000 were paid to the company. The president handed $25,000 to Sir Adolphe Caron, the Postmaster-General, who in turn paid this sum to Mr. Thomas McGreevy, the treasurer of the Conservative election fund. The money thus obtained was spent to defeat legitimate tariff reform in this country. And when a motion was made that the whole expenditure should be investigated, and the proper relation of contractors to the Government, and the Government to the people decided on, Sir John Thompson called upon his majority to vote down all inquiry. Sir Adolphe Caron, it is understood, threatened to go into rebellion unless this was done.

Just as these unsavory revelations were being made came the announcement that, through handing over the management of the Caran bridge at Montreal to Mr. St. Louis, a notorious political boss, the country had been fleeced out of several hundred thousand dollars. The pay rolls were stuffed, false statements of material purchased were prepared, the grossest of jobbery prevailed, and the Government at Ottawa directly and indirectly profited by the inquiry.

Let it be remembered that this wholesale thieving from the people of Canada was resolved on after the McGreevy-Langevin exposure, and when the Ministers at Ottawa knew full well the danger to public interests from laxity of management and from the condoning of wrongdoing. The contractors seemed to have evened up matters by liberal subscriptions to aid in winning elections then pending. But how many thousands they paid out, and how much of the money stuck to the fingers of the men who handled the boodle, will never be known, as the moment an investigation was resolved on the contractor burned his books, and thus destroyed all trace of the disposal of the ill-gotten gains.

As usual, an attempt is being made to shoulder the blame of the evil-doing on wicked overseers. The politicians who profited by the rascalities, and who ought to have so managed the work that the people would have received honest value for their money, are inclined to wash their hands clean of the whole affair. Just as, after conniving with McGreevy and Connolly, and accepting many thousands of dollars of their money to help to retain power, they offered these men up as a sacrifice to palliate wrongdoing in high places, so they now seem inclined to shirk responsibility for the robbery of the public in the latest scandalous job. The Montreal Star, which has generally supported the Government, calls for the punishment of some one and asks, "Do the Ministers imagine that Canadians will forever be content to be bribed with their own money?" adding that "if the Conservative party can only live by such means it is time for decent men to wash their hands of the party." Our contemporary should know that it was only by such means that the elections of 1887 and 1891 and the succeeding bye-elections were carried. Surely honest men, whether Liberals or Conservatives, are now ready to vote for a change. Recent experience has certainly proved that it is useless to attempt to change the methods without changing the men. They are inseparable, and besides the chief sinners have publicly gloried in the success of the wholesale speculation of public money and the triumph of the system of robbing the electors with one hand and bribing them with the other.

MARRIAGE AND SUCCESS.

It is said that Cecil Rhodes, the diamond mine owner and political boss of South Africa, is not only a bachelor, but insists on surrounding himself with bachelors. He will have none but unmarried men on his personal and domestic staff. Any of the subordinates who marries is dismissed. Marriage spoils a man's career—destroys singleness of aim—is his motto. Undoubtedly Cecil Rhodes has been a successful business man, and he is a power in South African politics. But we take leave to doubt that he is a better man because, for the reasons here set forth, he refuses to become a complete man. Marriage does not spoil a man's career, if properly gone about. It need not destroy his singleness of aim or in any way spoil his prospects. Indeed, there are thousands of successful men in every civilized country who owe their all to their wives—who were nothing till they married, and would have made no headway in the world but for the inspiring counsel and cheerful assistance of their life companions. Mr. Rhodes may live to discover, as many a cynical bachelor has done, that money and political success are not the only concomitants to true happiness. We care not what success he meets with, the man who fails to cultivate the domestic side of his nature is always to be pitied.

A STARTLING PETITION

By the United States Government Against Thirty Railroads—A Combine Alleged.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 17.—A petition in equity was filed in the United States Circuit Court here yesterday of a startling character. The petition is instigated by Attorney-General Olney, and is directed against the Southern Pacific Railroad Company and 36 other railroad companies, besides many noted railroad people. If the suit is successful it will affect every railroad in the United States. It is stated that the effect will be to make every corporation now a part of the Southern Pacific Company operate under a separate management and make void all monopoly of freight and passenger traffic. The defendants are charged with conspiring to restrain trade between several States.

THE STEWART CASE.

Mr. Stewart Pays a Visit to Pictou—Congratulated by His Many Friends on His Restoration to Health.

Pictou, N. S., July 16.—Good news sometimes travels as fast as bad news, which is proverbially fast. Many people here knew that Mr. Allan Stewart, of Springfield, P. E. I., had been for many years afflicted with kidney disease and gravel. It was known, too, that last year he was so bad that public opinion put him down as likely to die soon. Mr. Stewart fooled public opinion, though, for he began using Dodd's Kidney Pills, and ten boxes of them completely cured him. When he paid a flying visit to this city a few days ago he received many hearty congratulations on his restoration to health and improved appearance. Dodd's Kidney Pills have never yet failed to cure in this part of the Dominion.
