Officers of the Local Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

Proposed Convention to Consider the Question of Unemployed Printers.

Several Organizations to Ask Eight-Hour Day on May 1-General Industrial News.

The building laborers' unions have decided to meet in Labor Hall on alternate Mondays.

The meeting of wage-earners to be held in Labor Hall on Wednesday evening promises to be largely attended. The question of organizing various trades will be discussed. All who are interested are invited to be present.

Trades and Labor Council meets on Tuesday evening. All new delegates should be present. Several important committees are to be appointed. Very few city bricklayers are working at the present time. This has been one of the driest seasons for some time.

The Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners held an interesting meeting this week. The following are the officers for the ensuing term: President, Charles Pierce; vice-president, W. Spry; secretary, James Crawford; financial secretary, J. Aust; treasurer, R. H. Hessel; trustee, William Spry; sergeant-at-arms, J. Gerry; delegates to Trades and Labor Council, Ed. Aust, R. H. Hessel and John Nicol.

The Tailors' Union has issued a very attractive calendar, in which special attention is called to the union label. A ladies' auxiliary in connection with the B. of R. T. will be organized in this city next month.

GENERAL LABOR NOTES.

Typographical unions are to be formed at St. Cloud and Mankato, Minn.

New York laundry employees won 10 to 15 per cent increase in a number of establishments.

An effort is being made to amalgamate the paperhangers and painters and decorators.

Nine new unions have been gained by the Building Trades Union of America.

The building trades of Cleveland, O., set now working eight hours a day.

The Leadville miners of Leadville, Col., will now appear as a daily.

The national convention of the United Garment Workers has been set for a second Monday in February.

Give K. of L. carpenters' unions of Chicago have affiliated with the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

Shoemakers of St. Paul are preparing to demand an increase in wages.

The union has a membership of over 200.

The headquarters of the American Federation of Labor have been transferred from Indianapolis to Washington.

Indianapolis garment workers have accepted a 10 per cent reduction in wages, conditioned on permanent employment.

The Troy, N. Y., girls who manufacture shirts, collars and cuffs have won their long strike. They went out last July.

The printers' trouble at Kansas City still continues, and President Prescott has about given up trying to effect a settlement.

In Cincinnati sweat shops the average weekly earnings of a family of six, making cloaks, is but $9.30—a little over $1.30 per week each.

The painters and decorators of Detroit have secured the pledge of nearly every employer for an eight-hour day at the opening of the coming season.

The long continuance of the strike in the glass factories has left the warehouses empty and created a great demand. The men expect to have a busy season.

A Chicago saloonkeeper was fined $125 and cost for selling cigars from a box bearing a bogus label. Two other individuals were arrested for selling counterfeit labels.

Ed in Maine the "new woman" is even running the railroad crossing tender out of his job. Quite a number of railroads are said to have hired women for just such jobs.

A publisher in Cleveland who pleaded guilty to the charge of using the label of the Allied Printing Trades' Council without authority was fined $50 and costs by a police justice.

The mayor of San Francisco has notified the Trades Assembly of that city that organized labor will be represented on the committee to be appointed to prepare a new city charter.

The scale difficulty between the Cundingham Printing Company of St. Paul, and Typographical Union No. 30, was mutually adjusted last week.

The trouble had been pending for several months.

A movement is afoot to organize a miners' union at Rat Portage, Ont., which will take in all the miners in the district. The American Federation of Labor organizer is helping the movement.

An effort is being made to organize the street railway employees of Cincinnati, Covington and Newport. It is said that notice has been served on the employees of the Cincinnati lines that any man joining the proposed union will be discharged.

Statistics compiled by Labor Commissioner Ruehrwein, of Ohio, from 1,338 industrial establishments in 46 States and Territories, show that 52,442 less hands were employed in July, 1896, than in July, 1892, and that $19,214,488 less is paid in wages annually.

Disappointed by the action of the convention of the American Federation of Labor in postponing a general demand for the eight-hour work day another year, several national and international organizations are combining with the purpose of making the demand on May 1, 1897.

George W. Perkins has compiled a record of the cigar product of the United States for the month of October, 1896, together with the record of the first four months of the present fiscal year. The total for October last shows a decrease of 37,954,169, and for the longer period a decrease of 110,082,900.

The printers' union at Birmingham, Ala., was disappointed that the recent international convention at Colorado Springs took no measure for the help of the unemployed, principally those compositors who have been displaced by machines, and has issued circulars to all unions in the country, inviting the sending of delegates to an informal convention for the special purpose of considering the matter.

The following are the newly-elected officers of the Winnipeg Trades and Labor Council: President, J. H. Mason; vice-president, Mr. R. Underwood; secretary-treasurer, Mr. W. W. White; statistician, Mr. J. Osborne; sergeant-at-arms, Mr. George Clark; chairman of legislative committee, Mr. J. Appleton; chairman of municipal committee, Mr. Wm. Small; chairman educational committee, Mr. A. G. Brown; chairman of organization committee, Mr. W. J. Hodgkin.

The Poets.

On His Blindness.

When I consider how my light is Ere half my days, in this dark world and wide,
And that one talent which is death to hide
Lodged with me useless, though my soul more bent
To serve than master of my Maker, and
My true account, lest he returning chide—
"Doth God exact day-labor, light denied?"
I fondly ask. But Patience, to prevent
That murmur, soon replies: God doth not need
Either our works, or our own gifts: who gives
His talent? He gives it who gives the light
Speedy o'er land and ocean without rest:
They also serve who only stand and wait.

The Far Away Country.

Far away's the country where I desire to go,
Far away's the country where the blue roses grow;
Far away's the country, and very far away,
And who would travel thither must go 'twixt night and day.
Far away's the country, and, O, the seas are wild
That you must voyage over, grown man or child;
O'er leagues of land and water a weary while you'll go,
Before you find the country where the blue roses grow.
But, O and O, the roses are very strange and fair,
You'd travel far to see them, and one might die to wear;
Yet far away's the country and perilous the sea,
And some may think far fairer the red rose on her tree.
Far away's the country, and strange the way to fare,
Far away's the country—and would that I were there!
It's on and o'er past Whinnay Moor,
And you shall pluck blue roses the day that you are dead.

How Weary Is Our Heart?

Of kings and courts; of kingly, courtly ways
In which the life of man is bought and sold;
How weary is our heart these many days!
Of ceremonious embassies that hold Parley with Hell in fine and slyken phrase,
How weary is our heart these many days!
Of wavering counselors neither hot nor cold,
Whom from His mouth God speweth, be it told,
How weary is our heart these many days!

Yea, for the raveled night is round the lands,
And sick are we of all the imperial story.
The tramp of Power, and its long trail of pain;
The mighty brows in the meanest arts grown hoary;
The mighty hands,
That in the dear, affronted name of Peace,
Bind down a people to be racked and slain;
The emulous armies waxing without cease,
All-puissant all in vain;
The pacts and leagues to murder by delays,
And the dumb throngs that on the dead thrones gaze;
The common loveless lust of territory,
The Hips that only babble of their mart,
While to the night the shrieking hamlets blaze;
The bought allegiance and the purchased praise,
False honor and shameful glory:
Of all the evil whereof this is part,
How weary is our heart these many days!

Heart Disease Kills.

Relief in 30 Minutes.

The most pronounced symptoms of heart disease are palpitation, or fluttering of the heart, shortness of breath, weak or irregular pulse, smothering spells, swelling of feet or ankles, nightmare, spells of hunger or exhaustion. The brain may be congested, causing headaches, dizziness or vertigo. In short, whenever the heart flutters, or tires out easily, aches or palpitates, it is diseased, and treatment is imperative. Dr. Agnew's Heart Cure has saved thousands of lives. It absolutely never fails to give perfect relief in 30 minutes, and to cure radically.

MRS. ORMISTON CHANT, of London, has been sent by the International Armenian Committee in London, of which society Lady Henry Somerset is secretary, to locate a refuge for Armenian refugees near the border between Bulgaria and Turkey. White Ribbons in all countries will contribute.

A LIVELY old lady of 100 years named Sarah Thomas provides excitement for the town of Llanelly, in Wales. She possesses all her faculties, but has to be locked up in her bedroom at night, as she is a dangerous woman when she is awake. She sends her on her birthday as many shillings as she has lived years.

LILLIE has a hundred-year-old woman who has not only obtained all her life from wine, beer and liquor, but has also never smoked a pipe. She drinks bouillon and occasionally tea. She is descended from a merchant who is still celebrated in Lille as "Père Quarante Deux," having been the father of 42 children in Louis XV's time.

A CLAIM is put forward that the czar is to some extent a Scotsman. Czar Paul, when in London, is said to have fallen in love with Miss MacGregor, a young lady noted for her beauty, who happened to be riding her bicycle with the czar. He married her privately, so the story goes, and she was the mother of Nicholas I. The present czar would, therefore, be her great-grandson.

ONE brilliant Western woman living at Forest Heights, near Minneapolis, should not be despised. Having ordered some provisions to be sent home in the afternoon and finding that after all the waiter could not get out, she pinned a note on the door to inform the delivery man where he could find the key. The next morning, however, there were no groceries there; neither was there any silverware or other easily portable valuables.

SOUTH AFRICAN millionaires who have returned to England are building magnificent dwellings in London. Mr. Beit, the stock broker, has built a palace near Grosvenor Gate, and Barney Barnato, the diamond merchant, has built a most pretentious private building in England in Park Lane. J. B. Robinson has been satisfied to purchase a house in Park Lane, Piccadilly.

A STRANGE case of mistaken identity has come to light in Belfast. A few months ago a young man in a state of collapse from carbolic acid poisoning was found in the Royal Hospital. At the inquest the father and mother of a young clerk named Naan identified the remains as that of his son, and the body was interred in the family burying ground in the county Fermanagh. What was their surprise to get a letter last week from their supposed dead child, who is living in Florida, and doing well.

THE results of the last French census, just published, show that there is no sign of recovery in the birth rate. The total increase in the population of France since 1891 is only 175,027, while the number of foreigners in France is decreasing. The large towns are growing slightly at the expense of the smaller towns and the rural districts. The inhabitants have increased in 24 departments and decreased in 60 departments. The Minister of the Interior, M. Barthou, notes an increase of emigration, but is compelled to confess the marked tendency of the population to remain stationary as to numbers.

REV. JOHN ROSCOE has a most encouraging story to tell of the development of Uganda. We read of good roads, postal facilities, and—most amazing of all—Parliamentary institutions. The procedure in "Kampala Lukiko"—i.e., Parliament House—is said largely to follow that of the English Parliament. So the Mother of Free Parliaments has another child—even if it is "only a little one." The king is pleased to know the reformed character. He is learning to read and write, looks favorably on Christianity, and drinks nothing but milk. The result is stated to be what we, says the Westminster Gazette, can well believe—that he no longer gets intoxicated.

MAR LODGE, the new Highland residence of the Duke of Fife, is in striking contrast with the old country houses of England and Scotland. It is modern in all senses of the word, even to the lighting and heating of it by electricity. The house is pleasantly sited in Mar Forest, in the Valley of the Dee, and replaces the ancient mansion which was destroyed by fire a year ago last July. It was built of coral colored granite, quarried on the Duke's estate, Scotch fir from Mar Forest, and cut on the spot. The upper part of the gables are half timber, the spaces being plastered and banded with an outer coating of crushed quartz from the Cairngorm Mountains. The roofs are made of red English tiles. The house is built with two projecting glass por-ned in the form of a crescent, and is surrounded on all sides with verandas. When the Duke and his friends go hunting deer in the surrounding forests they will find comfortable quarters after a hard day's work in Mar Lodge. The interior is simple, and is finished with a view to extreme ease and convenience for those fortunate enough to be able to use it. Mar Forest is one of the best deer preserves in Scotland, and the Duke is very fond of the sport. The Queen laid the corner stone about a year ago.

EVOLUTIONISTS are not having everything their own way, but meet from time to time with protests from keen and profound thinkers and observers. One of the latest to demur against their claims is Lord Kelvin. Here are his strong and suggestive words: "I have always felt that the hypothesis of natural selection does not contain the true theory of evolution. If evolution there has been in biology, I feel profoundly convinced that the argument of design has been greatly too much lost sight of in recent biological speculations. I am, however, powerfully struck by the intelligent and benevolent design he around us, and if ever perplexities, whether metaphysical or scientific, turn us away from them for a time, they come back upon us with irresistible force, showing us through nature the influence of a free will, and teaching us that all living things depend on one everlasting Creator and Ruler."

Women's Weakness.

Female Complaints Combined With Kidney Troubles Are Fatal.

LUCKY WOMAN ESCAPED

Consented to Try Dodd's Kidney Pills. The Premier of Proprietary Medicines, and is Now Strong and Well—One Box Cured Her.

Warkenton, Ont., Jan. 14.—Half a dollar saved a woman's life in this town not many months ago—only last August, to be exact.

Half a dollar is the price of a box of DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS. Other than these far-famed and justly-famed pills was enough to put Mrs. Elwena Aday on her feet, when she was very ill with female complaint, combined with kidney trouble.

With this example in view, why should there be a single woman in Canada tottering on the brink of the grave, or going about her work dragged down, dispirited, despondent and "Père Quarante Deux?"

Kidney diseases are fatal. They mean slow death, if not cured. And this is a cure, and is the price of these lines to demonstrate it. Here is Mrs. Aday's testimonial:

Gentlemen—I have been troubled with complaint called women's weakness and kidney trouble. I read of the many cures DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS had done. I consented to try them. I have used one box, and I am completely cured. No pains or backaches have returned. I can now highly recommend them to all women. You may publish this so as to help others.

To Make Plain Food Savory.

Hints for Giving Delicate Flavors to Many of the Common-Place Dishes.

The good cook is known largely by her success, her relishes and the flavor she manages to give even ordinary viands. It may not require culinary genius to make partridge a dainty dish, but certainly high order of talent is necessary to make baked beans unusually tempting. Here are a few new ideas which the housewife or housewife who is struggling to impart fine flavors to plain food:

Put sugar in water used for basting meats of all kinds. It adds a flavor, especially to veal. Three tablespoonfuls of freshly made Japan tea with a pinch of nutmeg imparts a delicate flavor to apple pie. A cup of sweet cream added to Boston baked beans during the last hour of their baking will improve them.

To the water in which fish is boiled add a cup of elder vinegar, especially if the fish is a salt one. Shrimps all kinds of fish sauce with a dash of lemon. When baking fish, place on top thin slices of salt pork. This both bastes the fish and improves its flavor.

To give an appetizing flavor to a broiled beefsteak, rub a cut onion over the hot plate with the butter.

To improve sweetbreads and give them a fine flavor, soak them in mild lemon juice water an hour, and then broil 20 minutes in beef stock.

Snow cake made with arrowroot flour is greatly superior to that made with the ordinary wheat flour.

When using vanilla for flavoring add half a teaspoonful of peach extract. A dash of black pepper greatly improves vanilla ice cream. Chocolate is greatly improved by adding a teaspoonful of strong coffee just before serving.

DEATH FROM SUFFOCATION.

Almost a Fatality But for Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart Disease.

Story of a Northwest Lady.

A death to be dreaded is that from suffocation, and yet this is one of the usual phases of heart disease. Mrs. J. L. Miller, of Whitewood, N. W. T., came as near this dangerous point as an unprecedented event. Lord Huntly, she says, "I was much afflicted with heart failure, in fact I could not sleep or lie down for fear of suffocation. I tried the doctors in this section of the country, but they failed to give me relief. A local druggist recommended Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart. I tried it, and with the result that I immediately secured ease that I did not know before, and after taking further doses of the medicine the trouble altogether left me. It is not too much to say that it saved my life."

The election of the Marquis of Huntly as Lord Rector of the Aberdeen University for the third time is an unprecedented event. Lord Huntly succeeded Mr. Goschen in 1887, and has attended closely to the business of the office.

Church Saloon.

A London Vicar Runs a Public House.

Bar Stocked With Intoxicants—Billiards Played on Sunday.

London "Today" warmly supports Rev. P. Denison, of Notting Hill, who has recently established a workmen's club with a drink-bar attached. In the current number there is a report of an interview with the reverend gentleman, and a description of the club. When Mr. Denison's young man arrived and asked to see the club, the vicar said heartily: "I am just going there myself to get some tobacco—some Westward Ho! which is my favorite brand—and I will take you with me and honor you with membership for the night."

"Have you received many letters of condemnation?" asked the interviewer. "I have received letters from lots of people from one who thinks I should receive the forty stripes save none, and from another who has conceived the notion that I would best serve the church if I tarried at Jericho until my beard grew. One letter reached me from Mary Ann, who lives in the south of London. It was marked 'private.' I read it as far as the salacious part, and then I put it away. I have put it in a place which I will not let any one see. The Bishop of Chester," said Mr. Denison, "has shown a kindly interest in the club, and has asked me to occasionally let him know how it succeeds. The Bishop of Peterborough has also sent a kind letter, and would have put in an appearance at the opening if a death had not occurred in his family. We have some curious critics," he assured the interviewer. "One gentleman, who wore a coat which, I have heard, cost 40 guineas, wanted people not to do this, that and the other, and joined the other Sabatarians who are so angry because we have beer and skittles on a Sunday night. There is no limit to the bigotry of some people. 'Now, you know,' said the vicar, 'you cannot answer these people. Some of them are very funny, but perhaps the funniest are those who do not object to the drinking, but wish to draw the line at skittles on the Sunday.'"

We are refusing members every day. Let me tell you how and where we stand. I have advanced the capital, and, therefore, it is practically my show until this has been replaced by the money of the members."

"Inside the club," writes the interviewer, "nothing is hidden away, and in general appearance it does not differ in the least from the ordinary back-street public house. On the shelves of the bar, brightly-colored and boldly labeled, and I did not miss the name of a single popular drink."

In answer to the question, "Do you, so far as the law is concerned, enjoy all the privileges of a West End club?" We do—and more. We play billiards on Sunday, and they don't. Assuredly the vicar of St. Michael's and All Angels has not lived in vain.

Quackery is always discovering remedies which will act upon the germs of disease directly and kill them. But no discovery has ever yet been approved by doctors which will cure consumption that way. Germs can only be killed by making the body strong enough to overcome them, and the early use of such a remedy as Scott's Emulsion is one of the helps. In the daily warfare man keeps up, he wins best, who is provided with the needed strength, such as Scott's Emulsion supplies.
