I examined my change and found that each cake was stemped with the name of a town and of a manufacture authorized by the government. The cakes of soap were worth 14 cents each. After-wards in my travel I frequently received similar change. Many of the cakes showed signs of having been in the wash tub, but that, I discovered, was not at all uncom-mon. Provided the stamp was not oblit-erated, the soap did not lose any value as currency. Occasionally a man would borrow a cake of a friend, wash his hands and re-turn it with thanks.
