DISCUSSING THE REPORT.

WHAT IS THOUGHT OF THE WELLINGTON ESPLANADE SCHEME.

The Document had Not been Generally Read, and Criticism was Limited—The Boat Race Calls off a Good Deal of Interest—Generous to the Railways.

The publication yesterday of Mr. Wellington's report on the Esplanade is the first detail of the water front difficulty given to the public. Everybody who has read the report agrees on one point at least—that it is the work of a clever man. Up to yesterday afternoon, however, comparatively few, The World found, had read the report through. It was too long a document to start at the beginning of the day's business, and many citizens reserved it till the evening, when they would have time to go through it. Besides the town was too wrapt up in the boat race to think of more serious matters.

Mr. W. T. Jennings, Construction Manager for the C.P.R., was found at his office with a heap of business about him which he and his secretary were progressing with. "I have not read Mr. Wellington's report yet," said he, "but I have a World in my pocket and I intend to read it this evening. Not having read the report you cannot expect me to give an opinion on it."

Mr. Edmund Wragge, Local Manager of the Grand Trunk railway, was in Montreal yesterday. His secretary, however, despatched him two copies of The World, so that when he returns to town on Thursday he will be in a position to express an opinion if he feels so inclined.

Generous to the Railway Companies.

Mr. Hugh Blain, a member of the Esplanade Committee of the Board of Trade, had the advantage of studying the report before it appeared in print. This put him in a position to give an opinion on it when called upon. He picked up a copy of The World which lay on his desk, glanced over the report again and said: "Mr. Wellington's report is decidedly in favor of the railway companies. I mean by that that the propositions which it contains are very generous towards the railway companies. I am not objecting to its being generous. I think if we expect to arrive at a final settlement with the railways we want to treat them generously. I think that the proposition favoring the building of the viaduct by the city is very favorable toward the companies, and I think the city can afford to accept it. We are a wealthy corporation, having the means of getting money at a very small interest. The railway companies are both rather impecunious and would have to pay a higher rate for money than we would. The city is, therefore, in the best position to make the outlay in accordance with the recommendation of the report.

"The estimated cost of building the viaduct is somewhat under the figures we had been calculating on. Mr. Wellington's figures are $2,600,000 odd, while we had been figuring on $4,000,000 and even over that. I think the citizens will be pleased to know that it is to cost less than $3,000,000. This report has done one thing which we may be quite satisfied with—it has demonstrated to the citizens that the scheme is quite feasible and practicable. We have never been in a position to say that before; and while we may all be inclined to suggest modifications of the scheme as proposed in the report I think as a whole it will receive the approval of the great bulk of the citizens, and especially those holding suburban property.

"As to the waterside park the engineer has said very little about it. This idea can be elaborated and a very beautiful spot can be made alongside the water's edge. I think his opinions on the Parliament Building lot are sound. If the station were taken up on that block the north half would be worth as much as the whole block is now. I think also that his recommendation to run the Grand Trunk's four tracks up the west side of the Don, the Grand Trunk to branch off at Gerrard-street, is an extremely important one. It would absolutely solve the whole Don difficulty."

A Very Able Document.

Mr. Robert Jaffray said: "I have no hesitation in saying that I think Mr. Wellington's report is a wonderfully able one. It gives the best solution of the question to the people of Toronto that they have yet had. I think if the viaduct can be constructed agreeably that it will be beneficial to both the railways and the city. As to the waterside park scheme I think it is a good one. A park on the shore of the Bay and an improved access to the Island would go a long way toward making Toronto one of the handsomest cities on the continent."

Mr. Arthur White, District General Freight Agent, had not read the report when called on last night. He looked over a synopsis of it, however, and said: "The scheme here proposed is not at all favorable to the Grand Trunk Railway. We have all the terminal facilities we want now and there is ample protection to life and limb afforded. I do not think that the city can force the Grand Trunk into accepting such a scheme. The railway companies are to pay $36,000 a year for the use of the viaduct, $18,000 each, I suppose, and in addition to paying this amount the Grand Trunk is to be called upon to surrender a great deal of valuable property. I would favor the building of ramps. They would cost much less and would serve all practical purposes. We certainly want a new station, but $500,000 is a good deal to set apart for it. Mr. Wellington appears to be pretty big in his figures. The scheme as a whole, however, is one which I think the C.P.R. can take very little objection to. This man's idea seems to be to recoup Van Horne for the money he has already expended on the front."

Around the City Hall.

Mayor Clarke: "You cannot expect me to give you an opinion when the city has asked Col. Gzowski to report on a similar scheme!"

City Solicitor Biggar: "It is a beautiful scheme if it is practicable."

Ald. Hewitt: "I would like to know if the Ontario Government would be willing to surrender the site of the old Parliament buildings. I kind of think they would not. I believe the estimate of cost is too low."

Ald. Shaw: "I have read the report. It is a very comprehensive scheme and cannot be passed upon in a breath."

SUICIDED OFF THE IRISH COAST.

James Ready, a Toronto Man, Jumps Into the Sea and is Drowned.

The steamer Canopus, a cattle boat, which reached Montreal on Saturday, was the scene of a suicide while en route, the victim being James Ready, a Toronto man. Some three weeks ago he had shipped for London with a cargo of cattle for the English market. On Saturday two weeks ago, as the Canopus, on which he was returning home, was breasting the Irish coast he threw himself overboard. The steamer stopped and every effort was made to save the unfortunate man, but before he could be reached he had sunk for the last time. Ready's widow and two children reside in Toronto.

Guard Well the Little Ones.

In passing along Simcoe-street yesterday The World counted no less than eight baby carriages outside the free medical dispensary. This would argue the fact that the little ones were within with their mothers for treatment. According to the medical men there is a great deal of sickness just now among children, and the mortality is large. The principal troubles are dysentery and croup, caused in the first place by the unexpected heated term and the following milder weather.

For comfortable foot wear there has been nothing introduced that is equal to a fine cashmere sock. It has all the advantages of a wool sock, without its disadvantages. In that it will not shrink nor get harsh with wear. We have imported a specially fine line, which the maker guarantees both color and lasting qualities. A. White, 65 King-street west. NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

Opening of the Canada Central Exhibition—The Copyright Bill.

OTTAWA, Sept. 9.—The city is full of visitors to-day, the occasion being the opening of the Canada Central Exhibition. At 2 o'clock this afternoon it was formally opened by Hon. John Carling, assisted by the Commissiones of Agriculture from Ontario and Quebec.

Sir John Macdonald leaves to-night for Toronto to open the exhibition there.

Hon. G. E. Foster and wife have returned from their bridal tour.

It is said that there is great likelihood of the Imperial Parliament rejecting the Copyright Bill passed by the Canadian Parliament last session.

Elliott, the farmer who was hurt yesterday by a mad bull, will recover. His condition is improving.

BAD BOB M'CULLOUGH.

Stabs James Whiteley at Hamilton—A Brakeman Seriously Injured.

HAMILTON, Sept. 9.—Bob McCullough, who has an unenviable police record and was released only last month from a three years' term in the penitentiary, last night went to the house of James Whiteley, where "Dublin Jane," Bob's mistress, was living and demanded to see the woman. Whiteley refused and angered at his resistance Bob drew his knife and stabbed him below the shoulder blade. The knife glanced upwards and pierced one of the lungs. McCullough did not make any effort to shake the dust of the city from off his feet, but calmly laid himself down to rest in a vacant lot in Burlington-street, where he was found at 4.30 this morning. The prisoner was brought before the magistrate this morning, and in the absence of Whiteley was remanded for eight days. Whiteley will probably recover.

James Houghton, G.T.R. fireman, while shunting in the yard yesterday morning slipped on the step and fell on the roadbed, his left leg going under the wheels of the engine. His foot was terribly crushed. The young man was picked up and removed to the hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate the foot above the ankle.

The boy John Douglas, who had his skull fractured by being kicked by a horse on Saturday afternoon, is lying at the city hospital in a critical condition and the medical men have little hope of his recovery.

Dr. Miles O'Reilly, youngest son of Judge O'Reilly of this city, died last evening in Paris, Ont., aged 52. The interment will take place here to-morrow afternoon.

A BOGUS LORD

Fools the Dakota People and Turns Out to Be a Common Forger.

FARGO, N. D., Sept. 9.—A sensation was caused here yesterday by the arrest of a young man who for two weeks or more has been supposed to be a brother of the Duke of Durham. On his arrival he registered as Robert Morris of London, but soon avowed his noble origin, stating that owing to family troubles he was taking a tour of the world. His income he stated to be $50,000 a year and spent money lavishly. He first appeared at Mayville and exhibited letters of introduction from Cornelius Vanderbilt and other eastern gentlemen to the Dalrymples and other wealthy families. He speedily got into the best society and lived high. A week ago he left for the west, announcing his departure for Japan. However, he stopped at Jamestown, and on Friday night returned. As he was about to board the west bound train yesterday morning he was arrested by Inspector Mitchell of the London police for the forgery of £1500. His real name is Oswal Riddele. Of the money he had barely £40. He is 23 years old, and it is said his father is in an English prison for forgery.

HELD UP.

Highwaymen Near St. Thomas Relieve Fred Locke of $330—Fatal Accident.

ST. THOMAS, Sept. 9.—Mrs. Esther Wilcox while returning from St. Thomas market Saturday night was thrown from her buggy and her skull crushed on a stone. She lived a few hours.

Fred Locke was held up by highwaymen a mile from this city last night and relieved of $330.

George McCollum of Mapleton was chloroformed and relieved of $9 last night.

A watch, $40 in money and other articles were stolen from the house of James Davidson last night.

BURGLARY AT WOODSTOCK.

The Thieves Secure $450 in Cash and a Big Bundle of Notes.

WOODSTOCK, Sept. 9.—Some time between Saturday night and Sunday morning burglars entered the store of W. C. McLeod, hardware merchant, and ransacked the vault which was a poor one and easily opened. The burglars secured $450 in cash and notes amounting to $25,000 or $35,000.

Ambrose Hayward was fined $100 this morning for violation of the Crooks Act.

Johns Hopkins University in Distress.

BALTIMORE, Sept., 9.—Johns Hopkins University, the pride of the city and State, is in want and distress. From the proud position which a magnificent endowment and a princely income gave it, the university has fallen to a place where the salaries of its teachers must be cut and its trustees must pass the hat and beg for money, hoping against hope that no further cuts may become necessary, hopeless of widening its usefulness over the broad fields contemplated by its founder. Johns Hopkins gave to this university almost £4,000,000, and an income amounting to hundreds of thousands. He had earned this money honestly, and he bestowed it nobly. Out of it all there can now be found a pile of school buildings, a breadth of farm land that is worth no more than when he died and a pile of worthless paper representing shares in a bankrupt railroad. The munificent endowment and the princely income have melted away under the hand of a railroad wrecker.

Nine of the Baltic's Crew Arrested.

OWEN SOUND, Sept. 9.—Detective Murray of Toronto has been here for the past week looking up the Baltic case in company with Detective Pearce, and the result was the arrest on Friday evening of nine more of the Baltic's crew. The prisoners were brought before the magistrates this morning but were remanded for a week, the Crown not being prepared to proceed with the case. The name of the victim of the alleged outrage is said to be Charles Lambley, not Owens as previously reported.

Belleville News.

BELLEVILLE, Sept. 9.—John Beaudry, 16 years old of Radcliffe, was drowned in a small lake in that township one day last week.

Patrick Eustace, formerly of Belleville, was found dead in bed at Rochester, N.Y., this morning.

For sending watered milk to the Ashley cheese factory Thomas Wicket of Thurlow was to-day fined $5.

Yielding to the Strikers.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—In addition to the dock companies, which have already acceded to the terms of the strikers, a number of other companies to-day signified their willingness to grant the demands of the men. The fund for the benefit of the striking workmen was augmented to-day by subscriptions amounting to £1500. Leaders of the strike conferred with Cardinal Manning this morning.

A Tug Burned.

COURTWRIGHT, Sept. 9.—About one mile below here, at 7 this morning, the tug Folger took fire and burned to the water's edge. The flames spread so rapidly that the crew had a narrow escape, although the boat headed for the shore immediately on the fire being discovered. The boat was insured for half her value.

A JERSEY BRUTE'S CRIME.

SHOCKING MURDER OF MILLER LECONEY'S NIECE.

The Woman Found Lying in a Pool of Blood with Her Throat Cut from Ear to Ear—Evidences of a Desperate Struggle—An Arrest on Suspicion.

CAMDEN, N. J., Sept. 9.—This morning at Leconey's mill two miles from Merchantville, Annie Elizabeth Leconey, the 28-year-old niece and housekeeper of Chalkley Leconey, the miller, was murdered by a brute, who first attempted to outrage her and who also committed robbery. This morning Annie prepared breakfast for her uncle and a colored farm hand. They ate about 6 o'clock and went out into a field to work. The niece remained alone in the house waiting for another colored farm hand, Frank Lingo, to come for breakfast. Lingo did not appear in the field, but shortly after 7 o'clock a girl residing on a neighboring her back on the floor between an old-fashioned settee and the stove was Annie, her head on the settee cushion, which had been dragged off on the floor. Her throat was cut from ear to ear and by the side of her head was a keen edged butcher knife with a sharp point with which the crime had evidently been committed. The knife had been taken from a lot of table and kitchen knives farm ran to the field announcing that she had been at the house and had seen Annie lying on the floor with her throat cut. The miller hastened to the house. Lying on a dresser in the room. The cushion and the carpet were saturated with blood and the life fluid had soaked through the floor seams and trickled down in a pool on the cellar floor.

It was evident that Miss Leconey had fought desperately with the murderer. Her clothing was nearly torn off. Her resistance to the brute's attempts probably caused him to take her life. After committing the crime the murderer went up-stairs and ransacked the bedrooms for money. From Mr. Leconey's room a box containing $200 in bills was taken; underneath the box was a wallet containing $240 and two bags of silver and currency, but these were not disturbed. The murdered woman had all her savings amounting to $426, in a trunk in Mr. Leconey's room, but the money was not stolen.

Frank Lingo was arrested this afternoon while at work on the Harn farm, a mile from the scene of the murder. He made no resistance. He was searched but nothing criminating was found. He is known to have left his home at 5 o'clock this morning to go to work on the Harn farm. He arrived at the farm at 6.15 o'clock and did not leave there until his arrest. Detective Burr thinks Lingo is not guilty. Lingo is 30 years old, married and resides at Homesteadville. He has worked on the Leconey farm at intervals since June.

The murdered woman was of exemplary habits and very popular among her neighbors. Her parents reside at Waverly, O. She acted as housekeeper for her uncle, Henry Leconey, who ran the mills until his death last spring. He left an estate of $25,000 and she had a claim against it for 7 years' service as housekeeper. It is said Chalkley Leconey disputed this claim, but so far as known they never quarrelled.

ROBBED THE CURE.

Burglary at St. Isidore, Que.—Found Drowned—A Court Martial.

QUEBEC, Sept. 9.—Robbers entered the Presbytery at St. Isidore, County Dorchester during Friday night or Saturday morning and carried off some $400 which Cure Danglon happened to have in his room. There is no trace of the thieves.

The body of an unknown man was found at Beauport on Saturday. An inquest was held to-day. A verdict of "found drowned" was returned.

A court-martial was held on board the Bellerophon to-day into an alleged breach of discipline by a lieutenant of H.M.S. Tourmaline.

Seventeen men deserted while the Pylades and Tourmaline were in Montreal.

A Singular Upheaval.

APPLETON, Wis., Sept. 9.—There was a remarkable occurrence at the mills of the paper company at the combined locks Saturday. From some cause there was an upheaval of rock upon which the mills are located, throwing the mill walls out of plumb, cracking a great wall of stone and cement 20 feet thick and making a saddleback several hundred feet long and six inches higher. In the bedock beneath the mill an artisian well 200 feet away has dried up.

Ten Miners Drowned.

DENVER, Col., Sept. 9.—An abandoned mine adjoining the White Ash coal mine near here has for months been full of water. To-day the water burst through into the White Ash mine, filling it with mud and water. Ten miners are known to have been in the White Ash at the time and not one could have lived five minutes afterwards. It will take nearly three weeks to reach their bodies.

Home Again.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone returned to England to-day from Paris.

City Hall Small Talk.

The Board of Works sub-committee in the matter of the new street into Queen's Park meets to-day.

The Mayor and Chairman Carlyle of the Local Board of Health visited the pest holes along the old channel of the Don yesterday.

There was to have been a meeting yesterday of a sub-committee of the Markets and Health in the matter of the new market bylaw but there was no quorum, Ald. Frankland and Hewitt being the only members on hand.

City Clerk Blevins yesterday received a letter from the Provincial Secretary asking how the taxes on that slip of land to Greenwood's sideline to be taken in by the city was to be apportioned. Should the proclamation issue before Oct. 1 the assessors will value the properties and assess them at the general city rate. If after it is proposed to assess them on the general city rate at the county valuation.

City Solicitor Biggar, Assessment Commissioner Maughan, City Treasurer Coady and the Mayor were in joint consultation over the Drill Shed matter yesterday morning, with a view of determining how much money over and above the $100,000 bylaw the city would have to put up.

There is to be a meeting of the Board of Works on Thursday to discuss among other things the Mayne system of sewage.

The Mayor has instructed City Solicitor Biggar to draw up a bylaw expropriating the line of the new street, which, under the agreement with the University, is to be opened into Queen's Park. It is to extend from St. George-street to the drive a little north of Harbord-street.

The interminable Dundas-street bridges was the subject of another conference between Assessment Commissioner Maughan and Ald. Woods yesterday.

All business at the hall will be practically suspended for the next two weeks. This of course does not include the Board of Works, which could not pass a week without admiring themselves.

Adams' Tutti Frutti for a cough.

BEFORE THE COUNTY JUDGE.

The Victoria-street Extension Matter—The University Authorities Interested.

Judge McDougall was supposed to hear appeals against the decisions of the Court of Revision yesterday morning, but press of other business prevented him from giving an extended sitting to the civic business, the court being finally adjourned for two weeks.

In the matter of the Victoria-street extension appeals nothing was done in order that residents on the street from Shuter to Gould be notified to attend to show cause why they also should not be asked to pay for the improvement.

The appeal against the assessment for the extension of Park-road from Bloor-street to the Crescent was also extended.

A lengthy argument took place on the liability of the University authorities to pay for pavements on the roadways facing their properties. The Court of Revision said yes, and the County Judge is now asked to say "no." The case will be further argued a month from date.

The appeal in the matter of the Arthur-street extension will be heard on the 24th.

MRS. ELLIOTT MAY RECOVER.

Why Did Not the Officers Obtain a Statement from the Woman?

Mrs. Elliott continues in much the same state in the General Hospital but with a slight shade of improvement. It is hinted that influence is at work to prevent the woman's ante-mortem statement being taken and the crown officers are being censured for not having had it secured already. Dr. McFarlane, who has charge of the case, however, told The World last night that the patient's condition is such that the giving of an ante-mortem statement by her at present would mean her death, as it would but weigh upon her mind and crush her spirits. As it is she is improving and for the first time in many weeks the doctor is slightly hopeful that the woman will pull through.

In the Police Court yesterday Henry Parry, her alleged betrayer and cause of her present trouble, was arraigned but no evidense could be taken owing to the woman's condition. Mr. Badgerow stated that she had already made a statement inflicting Parry, and in view of this the magistrate refused Lawyer Bigelow's application for bail and sent the prisoner back to jail for a week.

It is understood that the Criminal Court is not the only one Parry will be tried in. He is a member of Orient Lodge A. F. and A. M. and as Mrs. Elliott is the widow of a mason who died in good standing, if found guilty of the offence charged he will be united with masonic penalties in addition to criminal.

THE "DETROIT EXTENSION."

The C. P.'s New Connection to be Open by the End of the Year.

The Canadian Pacific's line from London to Windsor, well known as the "Detroit extension," is being constructed rapidly. The rails will be all laid, it is expected, within the next month or six weeks.

The new line will be opened at the end of the year and will connect at Detroit with the Wabash system particularly. It will be 112 miles long and will form a connecting link on the C. P. R. between Chicago and the Atlantic. When it is opened through trains will be run from St. John (N.B.) to Chicago. The opening of this line is of significance to Toronto, as it will improve the service both east and west.

It will also have a tendency to increase the speed of transcontinental trains. These trains on all transcontinental systems go from centre to centre in regular unison, and any connections tending to accelerate the trains on a part of their eastward and westward journey affect the speed of the whole. Before the C.P.R. was built the average speed of the transcontinental passenger trains was 19½ miles an hour. Now the speed is raised to between 25 and 27 miles an hour, and it is within easy possibility to increase this rate of speed.

Around Osgoode Hall.

The Chancery Divisional Court yesterday set aside the verdict in favor of the plaintiff in the case of Jane McNinch of Grimsby against William M. Merritt, a farmer of the township of Mersey, in Essex, given at the last Hamilton Assizes for $1000 damages. The action was brought for damages for breach of promise of marriage and seduction, but the claim on the latter count was abandoned before trial. The court held there was not sufficient corroborative evidence to warrant the verdict.

Argument in the Haldimand election case began at 10 o'clock yesterday morning in Osgoode Hall before Mr. Justice Falconbridge and lasted to 1.30 p.m. Mr. D'Alton McCarthy, Q.C., appeared for Dr. Montague and Mr. A. B. Aylesworth for Mr. Colter. Judgment will be given this morning at the opening of the Civil Assizes.

Mr. John Bain, Q.C., was taken suddenly ill yesterday in the Court of Appeal during the argument of an appeal and was compelled to leave the room.

In the Police Court.

In the Police Court yesterday Andy Wilson and Wesley Graham, two East End roughs, were charged with viciously assaulting Policemen Bond and Leonard on Saturday evening. Wilson was fined $1.50 and costs and Graham was fined a similar amount and sent to jail for 60 days, he being the worst of the two. Joseph Liner, a suspected crook, who while drunk was arrested was fined $50 and costs or 12 days; he took the latter. Wm. H. Dean, the young printer who eloped with 15-year-old Marian Atkinson, was asked to plead to a charge of seduction. He elected to be tried by a jury, and a remand was made until Thursday. John Anderson was committed for trial for feloniously wounding his mistress, Lizzie McGarry.

A. H. Harris Promoted.

A. H. Harris has been appointed General Freight Agent (G. T. R.), through traffic, with offices at Detroit. The office of Assistant General Freight Agent of through traffic which Mr. Harris has for some time past so successfully filled in Buffalo, has been abolished, and he assumes the management of the entire east and west bound freight business of the Grand Trunk in the United States. Mr. Harris entered the service of the Grand Trunk in August, 1874, as secretary to Traffic Manager John L. Sargent. In August, 1887, he was appointed Assistant Division Freight Agent at Hamilton and was promoted to the office he has held in Buffalo, in July, 1888.

The Hibernians' First Church Parade.

Sunday morning the officers and members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, an organization but recently formed in this city, composed of Irish Catholics, to the number of about 100, assembled at their hall and headed by the O'Connell Band proceeded to St. Mary's Church, where they were received by Very Rev. F. P. Rooney, V.G., administrator, and chaplain of the division of the A. O. H. in this city. His Lordship celebrated mass, at which the members received Holy Communion. The officers and members of Div. No. 1, Ancient Order of Hibernians, have every reason to congratulate themselves on their general appearance as well as upon the success that attended their first annual church parade.

Decorate Your Houses for the Fair.

Throughout Ontario the crops are abundant. This fact will tend to impart not only a hopeful feeling to the country but will have a wholesome effect upon our great exhibition which opens this week. It is indeed a time for jubilation. Let Toronto plume herself to welcome the visitors that will pour upon us, and let the visitants one and all take home Quinn's Macintosh coats, neckties, silk handkerchiefs, gloves and umbrellas.

Meeting the Mutes.

Mr. Robert Matheson, Superintendent of the Deaf and Dumb Institute at Belleville, arrived in the city last evening. To-morrow morning he will meet 200 pupils of the institute who have been enjoying their vacation and conduct them to Belleville. Toronto is the collecting depot for the western country.

FANTASMA AT THE GRAND.

A Play That Should Draw During Fair Week—Some New Attractions.

So long as Manager O. B. Sheppard continues to put such attractions on the boards as those he has opened this dramatic season with, he may confidently expect and will deservedly receive the appreciation and patronage of theatre-goers. If "A Gold Mine," the Grand's opening attraction, was as fine a piece of high comedy as has yet been presented, in "Phantasma"—Hanlon's new Phantasma—possesses merit of another kind, but in degree as high. Its wealth of scenery, its fun, and the ever green moral of good prevailing over evil which runs through the absurdities and the beauties of Phantasma, all are well known to Toronto people and all in past seasons have been duly appreciated.

This year there are some special features. Eugene O'Rourke as Zamaliel, King of the Realm of Heads, sings "The Seven Ages" in a baritone that might be creditable to grand opera. There were the usual hitches in the shifting of scenery always incident to a first night, but these were far less frequent than ordinarily, and it is only fair to say that, considering the rapid change of scenery, the stage machinery last night worked well.

The plot of the play, if it can be said to have any plot, is that Arthur (J. H. Smiley) is in love with Lena (Ida Maussey). His rival, Zamaliel, brings powers supernatural to aid him in his suit. He is opposed by the fairy queen Fantasma (Rose Forte), who helps the cause of the devoted Arthur, and in the end, after innumerable difficulties, defeats Zamaliel. William Hanlon takes the part of Lena's father.

In the funny element of Fantasma Mons. Louis Pizzarello as Pico is ably assisted by Pico, jr. (Little Tootsey), who introduces such songs as "Where Did You Get That Hat," etc. The principals are otherwise well supported. "Fantasma" will be the attraction at the Grand during the week, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

"Lost in New York" at the Toronto.

"Lost in New York" drew a fair sized audience to the Toronto Opera House last night. This is the first time Miles & Barton's New York success has been presented in Toronto; it is a novelty here and will no doubt be well attended during the remainder of the week.

The principal feature of the play is the realistic water scene in the third act. A view of the east water front of the Empire City is seen, and in the middle is a river of real water.

"Lost in New York" will be on the boards all week with matinees Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday afternoons.

WORK BY THE W. C. T. U.

What Has Been Done During the Year—Election of Officers.

The sixteenth annual meeting of the Central W.C.T.U. was held yesterday afternoon in Association Hall. President Mrs. Shaw occupied the chair. Favorable reports were presented by the evangelistic, railroad, Sabbath observance, sailors' and scientific temperance instruction superintendents. The corresponding secretary reported that Mrs. Wells was appointed Bible woman Nov. 19 and continued in that capacity, making on an average 10 visits daily among the poor, until June 24. Mrs. Hooker read a paper in which she strongly advocated that ladies do their shopping in such hours so that merchants may close their places of business on Saturday afternoon. The treasurer reported the spending of $265 in alleviating the sufferings of the needy, leaving a balance of a few dollars on hand.

These officers were elected:

President—Mrs. Shaw.
Vice-Presidents—Mrs. Hooker, Mrs. Cowan, Mrs. Bastedo, Mrs. Finch, Mrs. Smellie.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. Robertson.

The treasurer and superintendents for the various departments will be elected next meeting. During the year 32 regular business meetings have been held and 48 new members have been enrolled.

Eastern No. 2 W. C. T. U.

The annual meeting of the Eastern No. 2 W. C. T. U. was held in All Saints' schoolroom yesterday and was largely attended. These officers were elected: President, Mrs. Lucas; Vice-President, Mrs. J. Spence; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Crawford; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Coates; Treasurer, Mrs. Galley. Superintendents—Railroad, Mrs. Angus; Journal and Unfermented Wine, Mrs. Walker; Press, Mrs. Brick and Mrs Grassick; Franchise and Petition, Mrs. J. CASES FOR THE CORONER.

PAT BROPHY'S DEATH IN THE YARD OF THE MODEL LODGING HOUSE.

He Expires Shortly after Being Expelled from the Building by Proprietor Nelson—A Woman Expires in the Patrol Wagon En-Route to Headquarters

Two dead bodies lie in the City Morgue. The first to enter the house of the friendless dead was that of Patrick Brophy, for many years one of the best known characters around St. Lawrence Market. Until Pat Boylan's hotel was closed up he did the odd chores around the bar, sleeping in the cellar at nights. Between times he earned many a quarter assisting Weighmaster Dunn to keep the farmers from weighing in their horses with their loads of hay, and in other respects was a generally useful man to the butchers.

Yesterday morning about 9.50 a man came over to Headquarters from the Model Lodging House and reported to the police that there was a man lying sick at that resort and the proprietor wanted him removed. The messenger was sent across to the health office for a hospital pass, but it appears did not go. At 7 o'clock in the evening business led Detective Slemin to visit the Model, and he there found Pat Brophy to all appearance dying. He hurried to Headquarters and got the ambulance sent up to have him removed to the Hospital. When the ambulance arrived, however, Brophy was found not in the house but in the yard where Proprietor Nelson had flung him to die. The death rattle was in his throat when Policeman Fyfe, the driver of the ambulance, bent over him, and before he could be lifted into it Pat Brophy was dead.

The officer took the ambulance back to Headquarters and the patrol wagon drove to the Model and conveyed the remains to the Morgue, where Coroner Johnson will hold an inquest at 3 o'clock this afternoon. A searching inquiry will be made as to the circumstances surrounding the unfortunate man's death, and Nelson will be asked to explain why he allowed him to die like a dog in his yard. At 10.30 two half brothers of the deceased called at the Morgue and identified the body, which they will claim for burial after the inquest.

She Died in the Patrol Wagon.

It was just 10 o'clock when a man named David McCleary dropped into Headquarters to report that there was a drunken woman lying on Jarvis-street, near Richmond. A gang of loafers were trying to hustle her into a lane but he had chased them off, and came down to tell the police. Policeman Phillips was sent up, and he found the woman as stated. He signalled for the patrol wagon and it was speedily on the scene. The insensible bundle of human flesh was tossed into the vehicle and a few minutes later lay on the floor at Headquarters without sense or motion. There were present Acting-Inspector Somerville, Sergeant Hales, Policeman Phillips and Matron Webb. It took but a few moments for them to see that the woman, if not actually dead, was so far gone as to render medical assistance a pressing necessity. Dr. Sweetnam was telephoned for but he was out, and after a short delay Dr. King's services were secured.

Meanwhile the matron had forced open the mouth of the woman and poured a few drops of whisky down her throat, but with no result. A mirror was held to the nostrils and mouth, but no moisture from her breath shadowed the surface of the glass. In fact before Dr. King arrived it was the unanimous opinion of all that the woman was a corpse. Dr. King, as soon as he saw the body and had felt the pulse, pronounced the woman dead, but could of course assign no reason for her death. The patrol wagon was once more summoned and for a second time that night started on its melancholy journey to the Morgue.

While the body lay stretched on the floor of the station awaiting removal, poor old May McGrath was landed in for drunkenness. She did not see the body at first, but began her usual trick of prancing round before marching up to the desk to be slated. The moment she saw the corpse she straightened right up and became sober as a judge. "Holy Moses," she said, "and is the poor creature dead? Oh, Blessed Virgin, did you ever see the like?" With this she raised the Irish keen with such strength as to make the drunks in the cage below positively howl with terror. After some difficulty the living drunk was locked up.

There was considerable doubt as to the identity of the woman whose body lies in the Morgue. Her age was apparently about 35, her hair black, features fairly regular, and face rather dissipated. The figure was small, well shaped and clad in the poorest description of garments. It was not until 12.30 last night that Patrol Sergeant Johnston identified the remains as those of Alice Tinning. Coroner Johnson will hold an inquest at 8 o'clock to-night.

In searching around Jarvis-street last night for some clue to the woman's identity The World found a homeless family composed of a mother and four small children seated on the steps of one of the hovels which adorned this thoroughfare, below Queen-street. They had been evicted that day from their little cottage in rear of Spilling's cigar factory by McCleary, the man who had first brought the news of Alice Tinning's condition to Headquarters. The three elder children were sleeping on an improvised bed, while the mother was nursing the youngest, a 13-month old infant.

DR. HUNTER ON SUNDAY CARS.

Mr. Hemming Says the Preacher Did not Answer the Real Argument.

EDITOR WORLD: It was perhaps with a little surprise that the congregation in the Carlton-street Methodist Church, assembled on Sunday evening for the purpose of listening to a sermon on Sunday street cars, heard the pastor give out as his text: "The Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath," these being the words used by Christ in defence of His disciples' action of plucking ears of corn on the Seventh Day. To most people these words would suggest themselves as being particularly apt for the text of one advocating rather than opposing the proposed Sunday car service. The Doctor prefaced his remarks by saying that a gentleman had told him that Sunday cars in Toronto were only a question of time, and he therefore proposed, with the assistance of other ministers, to do all in his power to avert "the inevitable."

Leaving the religious and moral aspects of the question to be discussed on some future occasion Dr. Hunter confined himself to what he evidently considered the phase upon which the question will have to be decided, namely, the utilitarian. Having already given my opinion on this question, there will no doubt be a feeling amongst your readers that my judgment is biassed and that my only object is to find fault with the arguments adduced. I shall therefore endeavor to the utmost not to overstate anything I heard. Bringing together the different heads into which the preacher divided his subject, his whole argument was this: "That one day out of the seven is required by man for the rest both of his body and mind, and further, that such rest being requisite to keep in their normal condition man's physical and mental capabilities it is to the advantage of the city and state to see that he obtains it."

To prove these truths Dr. Hunter read numerous passages from distinguished writers, speakers, public men and employers of labor of the present time and of past generations, of Canadian, American, British and European fame, displaying a wonderful amount of research on his part, making very interesting matter to listen to. But here his arguments ended before he had said anything which was not actually more in defence of Sunday cars than against them. Perhaps the most important argument in favor of cheap Sunday locomotion is the granting to the public an opportunity for the obtaining of rest. The term rest, it must not be forgotten, will apply very differently in different cases, according to the work at which the subject may be occupied during the week. In large cities, especially in summer, the most advantageous form is generally conceded to be a total change of scene and air, which is only obtainable by means of some kind of conveyance.

The whole of the Doctor's argument therefore we will apply to our side of the question and balance the thousands (of citizens) that we will benefit against the tens (of car drivers) that he is speaking for. And still further will we increase the ratio in our favor by reminding the preacher that as soon as the street cars are run on Sunday, employing, say 100 men at the outside, that many hundreds of grooms and cab drivers will not be required, and will have an opportunity to rest and attend divine worship. Nor must it be forgotten that these grooms and cab drivers under the present system are compelled to work seven days out of every week, while the conductors and drivers of the street cars would not be allowed to work more than six days, and it is generally conceded that each man's turn for Sunday work would come but once a month. While the citizens of Toronto are determined to have the service they are just as resolute that the employes of the car company will not be abused, and it has always been understood that the same act that would allow the company to run cars on Sunday would restrict them in their treatment of their men and horses.

But what about the many other uses to which the cars would be put, such as attending church, visiting relatives at a distance, coming from railway stations, going on urgent messages, in cases of sickness, helping infirm people out, &c.? None of these were answered except in such sweeping statements as "I know that church goers would not patronize the cars." "There is absolutely no necessity for Sunday cars," "Sunday cars are not a necessity even in London or Paris," which, to my mind at least, were more damaging than otherwise to his side of the question, more especially when not accompanied by some kind of argument in their favor. To inveigh also against the boats plying between the island and city as a source of immorality and profligacy is scarcely likely to help the cause. What we had hoped to hear and what we are still looking for is a dispassionate reply from the pulpit to the many reasons stated some time ago in The World by the laymen of this city for their demand of a proper Sunday car service. Silence can only mean want of material. But what are you doing, Mr. Editor, now that the council is sitting again in not making the Mayor and aldermen pledge themselves to put the question to popular vote in January next?

A FATAL FIRE AT ALBANY.

SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION IN A RAG WAREHOUSE.

The Employes Cut off from the Stairways by the Quickly Spreading Flames and Forced to Jump for Their Lives—The Pecuniary Loss $80,000.

ALBANY, Sept. 9.—P. J. McArdle's large rag and general paper stock warehouse was totally destroyed by fire this afternoon, the origin of which was the spontaneous combustion of a pile of rags on the third story. So quickly did the fire spread through the grease saturated building that the employes, consisting of some 14 women and girls at work in the sorting room and 10 men and boys in the office or about the building, were forced to jump for their lives. The majority leaped to the roof of a neighboring house and escaped.

Carrie Swartz, who weighs over 200 pounds, jumped through into the yard and crashed through the roof of an outhouse, breaking her arm, several ribs and sustaining internal injuries.

Mrs. Ellen Mack jumped from the fourth story, a distance of 60 feet, and fell upon a pile of scrap iron. She fractured her left wrist and received numerous cuts about the face and head besides several burns. Her condition is critical.

Richard Gamble, a bookkeeper, went to the top of the building just before the fire began and his escape was cut off. In his endeavor to avoid the flames he fell through the shaft and was badly cut and bruised, but the inhalation of the flame was the direct cause of his death at 6.30.

Mrs. Ellen Frank, who jumped from the fourth floor, and Mrs. Ellen McShane, who fell through the elevator shaft, sustained fractures of the limbs and severe bruises but not necessarily fatal injuries. Several others received severe injuries. Loss about $80,000, insured.

Autumn.

With shy brown eyes she comes again,
With hair a sunny, silken skein,
As full of light as golden rod;
Love in her voice, love in her nod.
She treads so softly no one knows
The time she comes, the time she goes.

The grass is brown, the leaves begin
Their gold and crimson dyes to win.
Each cricket sings as loud as ten
To drown the noisy locust, when
You come, O maid, to bid us cry
To Summer sweet a long good-by.

And when you go the leaves are gone;
The aster's farewell scent is flown;
Poor Cupid puts away his wings,
And close to cosy corners clings.
The rude wind ushers, with a shout,
The Winter in, the Autumn out.

There's sadness in her shy brown eyes,
Though gay her gown with tawny dyes;
Love's in her voice—but telling most
Of one who's loved, but loved and lost.
She treads so softly no one knows
The time she comes, the time she goes.
