A Toronto Housekeeper Claims the Furniture and Appeals to Law.

Belleville, Oct. 13.—A case of considerable interest is likely to be tried at the coming chancery sittings. James Haggerman has entered an action against Deborah Annie Clapp for $1000 for alleged fraudulant retention of goods alleged to be owned by the plaintiff. Both parties lived in Belleville, Mrs. Clapp acting in the capacity of housekeeper. Both the parties agreed to go to Toronto, where Mrs. Clapp proposed to keep boarders. It was not long before a disagreement arose and the plaintiff came to Belleville on a visit. Haggerman now claims that the household effects belonged to him and that it was his money which paid for them. The defendant does not deny this, but claims that the made her a present of the furniture, among which is an elegant plane and many costly pieces of decorative art. She further claims that he agreed to pay her $4 a week during the time to beauties at the above the search of the angle in the agreed to pay her $4 a week during the time to beauties at the alleger. "I would just like to say," remarked a ember of the Gardeners and Florists Club to The World yesterday, "that that resolu-tion you published on Saturday touching the ion you published on Saturday touching the Government House business was not the one which really was adopted. The club passed a resolution unanimously regretting extremely that the Ontario Government should see fit to appoint a practical machinist as head gardener at Government House, particularly in view of the fact that there are so many killed gardeners in the province just aching for the negition. for the position.

"To tell the truth it is a Gibson job. The new gardener is named Strickland and until he got where he is he was with the Wanzer Company in Hamilton. He was promised a sit under Government and it fell through, but he had to be provided for, and he was a gardener forthwith. That resolution was proposed by a Reformer and seconded by one, so you see it was not a political dodge." THE GROCERS BIG GUILD.

How the Wholesale Men are Putting the The retail grocers of the city are up in arms against the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild. For some time the power of the latter is alleged to have gradually become more irksome. In its from a present a comment of the sound in the grasp are about fifteen staple articles, but at the last meeting of the guild in Quebec steps were taken to put all grades of sugar, starch and even woodenware, it is said, under the control of the combine. Hitherto the combine has only regulated the utilize this sugars. woodenware as a combine has only regulated the price of white sugars.

It was also decided to amend the terms of credit. Four months' goods to be charged to three months, 80, days to a mouth and discounts cut down to 32 per cent, per annum. These changes mean at least a loss of 140. per cent, and a month's time to the retail dealer.

These have been the last straws to break the camel's back and when the Retail Grocers' Association met last night nearly the whole time of the session was occupied in discussing the matter. The attendance was much larger than usual and the speeches were couched in language which infimated that the retailers meant nugliness.

A physician was sorely perplexed some weeks ago when he was asked by a well-known lawyer for a "Habeas Corpus" for the delivery of the body of one of his friends from the toils of disease and suffering.

The physician, after considerable hesitation with modern improvements. C. C. Baines, 21 yer's sick friend.

The doctor arrived at the patient's house while the lawyer was there and made a careful diagnosis of the malady.

The doctor, when asked both by the patient and his lawyer friend his opinion, smiled and quickly replied: "I will issue the 'Habeas Cornus' at once as that our patient may be Corpus' at once, so that our patient may be relieved from imprisonment.

"But, doctor," said the lawyer, "your mode of obtaining a "Habeas Corpus' is a long and tedious one and often attended with too much red tapeism."

long and tedious one and often attended with too much red tapeism."

"My mode of procedure," replied the doctor. "Is quite as expeditious as any you could adopt in your regular course of legal work for the release of a prisoner. Your friend here is a prisoner bound with the chain of nervousness. This chain has many links which, when strongly forged, are difficult to break. Some of these links are Insomnis or sleeplessness, unrest, irritability, lassitude, dizziness and headache. All these dangerous links I propose to break up with that simple yet extremely effective remedy—Paine's Celery Compound. When these links are broken our friend is free, and then can go on and build up such a constitution that disease cannot readily attack again if moderate care be observed. I have used this great disease cannot readily attack again it moderate care be observed. I have used this great accentific preparation in my practice for some time for all forms of nervous complaints and have prescribed it with great success for Dyspepsia and Indigestion, and have always left my patients happy and healthy."

have always left my patients happy and bealthy."

"I am aware of the fact," said the doctor, "that some physicians for the sake of upholding false college theories and medical stiquet, are really afraid to even speak of Paine's Celeny Compound, but they know in their learts that it is the remedy for the masses. I say, sir, away with false custom and chiquet." Life is too precious, and doctors should be honest and fearless."

The lawyer's friend was in a very short time able to resume his duties in the Division Court again, and now firmly believes the most effective "Habeas Corpus" the sick man can have granted him is Faine's Celery Compound.

This treatment has been indiscriminately used by ignorant persons, without regard to system, and consequently without success.

Faradicism is useful only as a tonic or stimulant to the system as in general debility, while Galvanism is the true system employed in medicine, and should not be confounded with any form of belt or attachments, which are perfectly useless, it being impossible to generate or apply electricity in this way.

The Market Record of that city says: "Their complaint is that the visible supply table does not contain all the wheat here, and so they say that the Northwest is working them.
