THIRTEENTH YEAR.

IT WAS A GLORIOUS DEATH.

THE BEAUTIFUL EUTHANASIA OF THE GREAT POPE.

As Lord Tennyson died the moonlight fell across the bed on which he lay, bathing him in its pure, pellucid light. White outside the wind sang his Requiem in the trees.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Lord Tennyson died at half past one o'clock this morning, immediately after the death representative of the Associated Press had an interview with Sir Andrew Clarke, one of the physicians who attended the poet laureate.

Sir Andrew said Lord Tennyson's death was the most glorious ever witnessed in the room, and the chamber was almost in darkness save where the moonlight streamed in through the window. The poet lay on his back, his face to the wall, his hands clasped in prayer. He was surrounded by a flood of moonlight poured in through a western window. Lord Tennyson was found on the floor of his study, his hands clasped in prayer. He was surrounded by a flood of moonlight poured in through a western window.

At yesterday's meeting of the Executive Committee an endeavor was made to secure $1500 to defray the expenses of his passing away that his family did not have to bear the cost of his funeral.

The Hon. William Mackenzie, the poet's son, said he did not show a single trace of suffering to distress his relatives and friends. He was surrounded by a flood of moonlight poured in through a western window.

The poet's death was a relief to his family. He was surrounded by a flood of moonlight poured in through a western window.

IT WAS THE STUDENTS' DAY.

JOLLY AND FROLIFICALLY THEY SPENT THE TIME.

Lively Proceedings at the Annual Convocation—Variety's New President—Tribute to His Predecessor—Channeler and Members for Longford—Prize-Winners Cheered—A Latin Oration.

Jolly boys whose exuberance was ever and anon overshadowed by solemnity was the chief characteristic of the annual convocation of the University College and the School of Practical Science yesterday afternoon.

All the boys from College and School were there with youthful exuberance, and were there with youthful exuberance, and were there with youthful exuberance.

The Hon. George A. Kirkpatrick, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, presided at the convocation.

THE CORNWALL DESPERADO.

SLAVIN, THE MURDERER, ATTEMPTS TO BREAK JAIL.

He Hid Behind the Door of His Cell and When the Jailer Entered He Focused on Him With an Iron Bar and Knocked Him Down—A Turkey Prevents the Escape.

CORNWALL, Oct. 6.—About 6 o'clock this evening screams were heard in the county jail, which attracted the attention of Miss McDonald, daughter of the jailer, who rushed from their residence immediately adjoining the jail, and hearing her father struggling with a man, she rushed to the aid of her father.

She saw a man who she recognized as James Slavin, a prisoner who was known to her father, and she rushed to the aid of her father. She saw a man who she recognized as James Slavin, a prisoner who was known to her father.
