SONS OF SCOTLAND DINE TOGETHER

St. Andrew's Society Marks Patron Saint's Day

T. H. PURDOM HONORED
Rev. Messrs. Geggie, Beattie and MacGregor

Answering the shrill call of the bagpipes, 200 sons of Scotland gathered at the Teumess House last night and enjoyed an evening of conviviality around the banquet tables laden with haggis, roasted bubbling, haddock, and other mysterious "dishes" beloved from Green Gables to John O'Groats. Yesterday being St. Andrew's day and the 62nd anniversary of St. Andrew's Society in London, the patron saint of Scotland was honored by a flood of eloquence which could not be accounted for in the "bit gold" of prohibition times which was supplied. It was a gathering of the McDonalds, the Camerons, the Frasers and all the other clans and was marked by a spirit of congeniality only found on such an occasion.

T. H. Purdom, K. C., proved a most capable toastmaster and never for a moment allowed interest in the proceedings to lag. Following the suppers, spread some of the best orators of the city were called upon to toast the King, the empire, the Dominion and dear old Scotland. Interspersed between the addresses were selections from the bagpipes and songs which carried the auditor back to Bonnie Gassie and the Highlands of Sir Walter Scott's native heath.

One of the pleasing events of the evening was the presentation to T. H. Purdom, veteran member of the society, of the St. Andrew's Jewel in recognition of the services he had rendered. An illuminated address, read by Rowland Munro, accompanied the gift and outlined the part which Mr. Purdom had played in the society during the past 42 years, and particularly a few years ago when it became reorganized. The recipient of the jewel, in thanking the Scots for the honor which they had conferred on him, became reminiscent and spoke of the old days when St. Andrew's Society was in its youth.

REAL HAGGIES.
The meal which was prepared was the equal of any that could be prepared in Scotland. True there were not the invigorating stimulants of other years or other shores, but there was real Scotch haggis for an appetizer, cauldron haggis, followed by the piece de resistance, roasted bubbling, haddock, "haggis" with "hickies" and later by bakes, short shottbread and other essentials of a true Scotch banquet. With the inner man satisfied, the outer man smoking fragrant cigars, all that was needed was wit and wisdom, and these were provided in the sparkling addresses of the speakers.

Greetings were read from several American and Canadian societies, and bits of good old Scottish poetry were included, which created a sense of applause. Detroit, Buffalo and Albany sent their messages, as did the following Dominion cities: Winnipeg, Montreal, Kingston, Windsor, Hamilton and Quebec.

Of the three ministers who were speakers on the evening's program, Rev. Andrew L. Geggie, of Toronto, was privileged to read the opening toast, that of "Scotland." Rev. Mr. Geggie betrayed his Highland origin in a broad brogue and his capacity for Scotch humor in the fund of stories which he told with telling effect. In eloquent terms he described the glories of Scotland, the place which her sons had made for themselves in all parts of the world and the predominant characteristics which made Scotland a name to be conjured with.

In his opening remarks he stated that there were only two classes of people in the world, the Scotch and those that wished they were Scotch. He was proud to be a Scot and glad to discover that a Beattie could also be a Scotchman, as Rev. William Beattie had proved himself to be his own Scotch speech, Scotland, he said, was the foundation of the British Empire, as could be proved by a glance at the position of St. Andrew's Cross in the Union Jack.

Though small geographically, Scotland was big in the affections of her people, said Mr. Geggie. No land was there that was so cherished in the hearts of her sons and daughters as Scotland is in the affections of her offspring. Scotland was big in aspirations, in influence and in achievement of national ideals. Her people, though not wealthy, and living on humble fare, were characterized by great qualities. They had conquered stubborn people and stubborn soil and had cultivated their virtues on Scotch porridge, as well as Scotch grit and determination.

Because of the wealth of personality of her people she had been made the butt for the jokes, ribes and leers of other peoples, but it usually happened that it was the Scotchman, who, through his ability to turn a joke, laughed last and best. Scotland was one of the nations that could afford to be laughed at because it could always stand a joke at its own expense and give back in full measure.

In conclusion Mr. Geggie pleaded for a larger independence of thought in Canada and urged no man to be tied to political party, but to use his own intelligence in matters of public concern. This spirit of independence was as characteristic among the Scots as was their honesty and integrity. A Scotchman's word was always as good as his bond and that was one of the secrets of their success in adapting themselves to any country or any situation which they came in contact with.

among the people. What the world needed was the same attitude which existed in Scotch communities—that a man will never go back on his word. Before the Washington or any other conference could bring about world peace there must be a world brotherhood, in which black, yellow and white people would all be treated as equals. If it were left to the democracy of any nation he was certain that there would be no wars whatever.

Dr. Hugh Stevenson, in replying to the toast of Canada, told the infinite possibilities of this Dominion and urged a realization of responsibility of Canadians to develop the natural resources of the country. He predicted that in a few years Canada would be the center for world trade.

Mayor E. S. Little responded in a fitting manner to the toast of "The City of London," and touched upon the duty of every citizen to make the Forest City great in the future. Among the guests of the evening were delegates from the St. George's and Irish societies, and they replied to the toasts of "Kindred Societies." T. H. Purdom, the toastmaster, gave the final speech of the evening on the fair subject of "The Ladies."

Enlivening the evening with spirited selections were several of Scotland's talented artists. Piper McAllister played "Pibroch" or "Donald Dhu" as the big crowd of men filed into the room and took their seats around the tables. In splendid voice, AT. G. McCulloch sang "Blue Bonnets Over the Border," and was heartily cheered. The trio of Messrs. Anderson, Ballantyne and McCulloch made the hit of the evening when they rendered "Duncan Gray Cam' Here Woo," and Mr. Ballantyne honored the gathering with a song, "The Lass Frae Glesca Toon." A much-appreciated Scotch reading was given by John Keiman.

V.O.N. REQUEST LAID OVER TO NEXT YEAR

Minority Meeting of No. 1 Committee Takes Action on Petition for Grant.

At a minority meeting of No. 1 committee of the City Council, held yesterday afternoon, little business was disposed of and several questions were laid over.

City Clerk Baker was instructed to prepare the by-law which will increase the number of subdivisions from 77 to 90, and rearrange the boundaries of the same. The clerk will submit the by-law at the next meeting of the Council.

The Victorian Order of Nurses requested a grant and the matter was laid over for the next Council to deal with.

Fire Chief Aitken asked permission to purchase 60 new waterproof hats, and this was granted.

Several requests were received for the installation of electric lights. Market Clerk Baker suggested that lights be installed in the vegetable pavilion on the market, as this is used by motorists for parking cars at night.

DOGS ARE POISONED IN WHOLESALE LOTS

Of Five Yesterday Two Die From Effects; Police Asked to Act.

No less than five dogs, some valuable, were poisoned in the city yesterday by paris green. Two of the dogs died from the effects. One of the canines, a spaniel, owned by Mayor Little, valued at $50, was one of the poisoned dogs, but its life was saved.

During the past few days various reports of dogs being poisoned have been received by the Humane Society, and the work appears to be becoming more prevalent. The dogs found yesterday were in various parts of the city, which is evidence that the poisoners are not working in only one part.

The local police will be asked to aid the local Humane Society in rounding up the perpetrators. Citizens who find dogs suffering from poison are asked to communicate with George Tustin, local humane inspector, and the animals will be cared for. Mr. Tustin saved the life of three of the dogs yesterday. The dog hospital is at No. 3 Victoria street.

"Y" CLASS EXECUTIVE.

Election of an executive for the business men's class of the Y. M. C. A. resulted as follows: C. R. Rowntree, F. E. Harley, T. W. McFarland, Dr. J. S. Schram and Edgar Jetties. These five men will meet shortly to appoint a president.

YOUR EYES AND YOUR HEALTH

If your eyes are normal they daily require 40 per cent. of all your nervous energy. If abnormal they require more, which means eyestrain, which is nerve waste, which lowers your resistance to disease.

That is why you should have your eyes examined. That's why glasses frequently produce almost unbelievable results in improving health—by stopping the waste of nervous energy.

These cases need the most careful attention possible and should be looked after by an optometrist of wide experience. We have had sixteen years' experience and have made a special study of this branch of ocular defect. Call to-day and let us, after a careful examination, fit you with the correct glasses for your particular trouble.

ALD. WENIGE PROMISES MORE "PEP" AT HALL

Addressing McClary's Employees He Assures Them He Will Waste No Time In Getting Results.

Ald. G. A. Wenige addressed McClary's employees at the downtown plant at noon yesterday.

In asking them to support his candidacy for the mayoralty, Alderman Wenige pointed out that London needs action in the City Council. More pep and less piffle. He assured his hearers that he would give them results from the day he takes the oath of office.

Greater civic efficiency will result in a lower tax rate, he asserted, and lower taxes will mean lower rents. He also stated that he would guarantee that citizens would not be made the victim of rate increases by private corporations holding a monopoly on a public utility, and that he would administer the mayor's office for the greatest good of the greatest number.
