Mr. chu pe was surely going to drop in a us, when he felt so ridiculous over that snowball assault that he passed on. He has come here a good deal of late, and who knows how much he is interested in me. Besides, he is very friendly with Vinnie, and it will be a good thing to have her out of the way."

Vinnie paused with a sharp gasp, but she did not linger nor turn back. Mr. Thorpe—Warren Thorpe! He, then, was the unseen owner of the hat that had been her target. Her lips quivered as she reached the street.

"I didn't know, I never guessed!" she breathed in a troubled way. "Oh! of course I will tell him it was only frolic and fun. And Althea has set her cap for him? Why, she is five years older than Warren — Mr. Thorpe."

Staunch little soul that she was, Vinnie thought of Warren Thorpe with the intensity of genuine liking. He had made several evening calls at the Dodge home and had been just as attentive to Vinnie as to the widow and her daughter. A rising young lawyer and a hard student, he had seemed to enjoy the bright, natural ways of Vinnie. She was quite a singer, and many a venomous glance Vinnie had received from the basilisk eyes of her cousin while revelling in a duet with Warren Thorpe.

"He is worth saying good-by to—the only one I care for in Mayville," reflected Vinnie. "I will stop at his office on my way to the trolley. And I'll tell him how sorry I am, that I turned him aside from seeing Althea," and a sudden jealous pang made Vinnie feel uncomfortable as well as unhappy.

Vinnie went up the stairs of the business block down town. Warren Thorpe looked up with a welcome smile on his open, handsome face and arose to his feet quickly as the forlorn little figure came into the room.

"Why, Vinnie!" he exclaimed, clasping her hand warmly, "are you going traveling?"

"Yes, please, Warren—I mean Mr Thorpe. I can't get along with Aunt Mary, and I think it's better I should go back to Cousin Ophelia's, and oh! I mustn't forget—it was me who knocked off your hat with that snowball."

If he has few financial worries he may spend quite some time in the East; there is much to attract him. There is the social life in the big hotels, where all is luxurious comfort; winter sports such as hockey, skiing, skating, sleigh riding and tobogganing to indulge in, or to watch, if he so prefers, the round of the theatres to make, where he will hear the tunes that will be popular for the year, or see the plays that will be discussed at most civilized dinner tables:

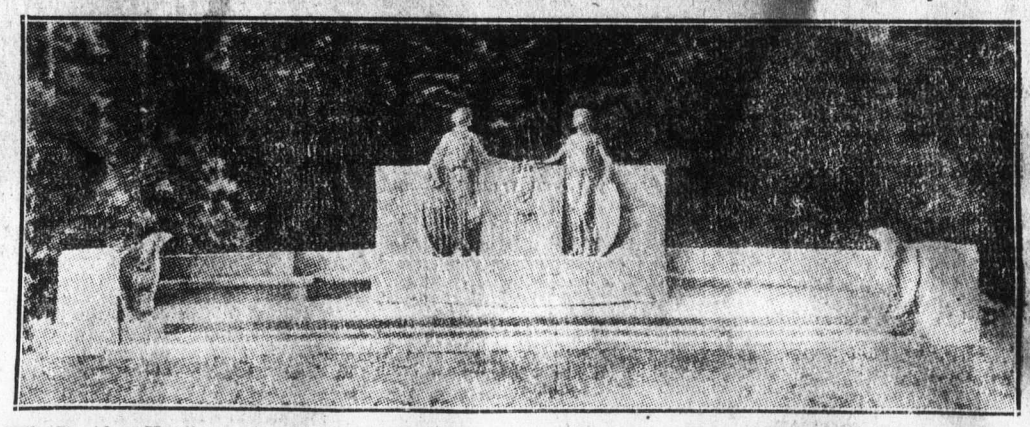
and if he has brought friend wife, there are the shops to visit, though many a man has found this a costly pastime, more so perhaps, than poker or the races.

However, from every angle, the season in the East is rich and pleasant. That side of the continent is a magnet for holiday seekers and it is at that particular time that the ancient provinces reclaim their sons, if only for the briefest of visits. This year it will have visitors galore.

The Canadian Pacific Railway announce that many inquiries and requests for reservations have already been made at their agencies throughout western Canada. This would indicate the likelihood of a huge volume of traffic moving in an easterly direction this December. A portion of it will no doubt move straight through to the British Isles and the Continent, as many settlers are originally from those places. The Canadian Pacific will run special trains from all western centres, connecting directly with their Atlantic liners, sailing from the winter port of Saint John, N.B., and the larger ports in northern Europe.

But the great portion of the traffic will be ... for Eastern Canada and the company will facilitate its movement by offering special train services and special tourist cars that will obviate the necessity of change at any point along the route, and further than this, special excursion rates will be given. These conditions will prevail from December 5th to January 5th, and will be effective from all stations in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Unveiling The "Altar of Peace" at Vancouver



The President Harding International Good-Will Memorial located in Stanley Park, Vancouver and erected by Kiwanis International through the voluntary subscriptions of its 95,000 members in the United States and Canada, was unveiled by John H. Moss, president Kiwanis International on September 16th in the presence of a large gathering of both United States and Canadian government officials and members of Kiwanis.

The memorial was designed by Charles Marega, a well known Italian sculptor of Vancouver. When the scheme was first decided upon, it was the intention of the American Kiwanis Clubs to raise the funds on their side of the border and to present the memorial to Canada. Canadian Kiwanis, however, insisted upon contributing towards the fund and the memorial was thus erected by the joint efforts of the United States and Canadian clubs.

At the unveiling ceremony, the Dominion Government was represented by Hon. Dr. J. H. King and Dr. G. T. Harding, brother of the late president. United States Kiwanis was represented by International President John H. Moss, and International Past Presidents Victor S. Johnson and Edmund F. Arras. The Canadian Pacific Railway was represented by Frank W. Peters, General Superintendent at Vancouver. Several of the United States delegates stayed over at Banff and Lake Louise and other points in the Canadian Pacific Rockies before proceeding to Vancouver. The memorial itself is throughout a made-in-Canada product, being designed by Canadians and made of Canadian materials and by Canadian labor.

The site of the memorial is the spot where the late President Harding made his last public speech, when just before he died in 1923 he visited Canada. Warren G. Harding, late president of the U. S. A. was a chartered member of the Kiwanis Club at Marion, Ohio, his home town.

An extract from the speech made by the Chief Executive of the United States on that occasion, written in bronze for the memorial, and the possible text of many a murmured prayer of hope of the cosmopolitan tourist who reads it as he passes through the park, is as follows:

"What an object lesson of peace is shown today by our two countries to all the world. No grim-faced fortifications mark our frontiers, no huge battleships patrol our dividing waters, no stealthy spies lurk our tranquil border hamlets. Only a scrap of paper, recording hardly more than a simple understanding safeguards lives and properties on the Great Lakes, and only humble mileposts mark the inviolable boundary-line for thousands of miles through farm and forest.

"Our protection is in our fraternity, our armor is our faith, and the tie that binds, more firmly each year, is ever-increasing acquaintance and comradeship through interchange of citizens; and the compact is not perishable parchment, but of fair and honorable dealing, which, God grant, shall continue for all time."

The memorial, which is known as "The Altar of Peace," has been referred to as the only material symbol of fortification, outside of milestones, to outline the invisible demarkation of the thousands of miles of border line separating the two countries from the Atlantic to the Pacific.
