

expansion could carry the Canadian economy far beyond the high watermarks heretofore attained. With wisdom, courage, self-discipline, self-reliance and forbearance, we can, if given peace, look forward to an era of sustained growth outstripping that of any comparable nation of the world. The message which I should like to convey to Canadians at the threshold of this new year and decade, therefore, is a challenge in simple terms: "Work and Save".

---

S/A