der'd me to Verfailles. I fuppofe, with a Defign that I fhould not tell Tales; there I ftay'd with my other ftarving Manafacturers for about a Month, and, like them, was difmifs'd without being pay'd; and glad we are all to get to Old England, without a Shilling in our Pockets, after almost three Years continual Service in the Manufactory of Verfailles. I cannot help in concluding to draw a Parallel between two contemporary Families, the Craggs in England, and the Laws in France.

The first descended from an obfcure Race in the Bishoprick of Durham, should, in the Father and Son, blaze like a Comet in the Meridian of London, for a few Years, and disappear without leaving any of the Name behind them.
