COLLEGIATE CADETS win the war and save the coun Must Save Canada. "These German men, of whom I have been telling you," she said, "are the kind from whom you must save Canada. Our first duty is to supply our troops. Your business as women is to get more recruits. You say you couldn't ask a man to enlist? If you saw your boy in danger of drowning or falling to his death or in some other local danger, would you hesitate to call upon the first man you saw to come to his aid? Our men are over there and they can't come back unless we get men to go over and back them up. Not one of them will come back. I am speaking as the mother of three sons who are over there. "Do all you can. Cut down expenses. Cut out frivolities. Take the places of men to let them go. I tell you, if you do not take up your burden as you should, your men will not come back." PHYSICAL EXERCISES

Many of the Boys Are Now Out Working on the

In spite of the fact that many of he older members were absent, the cadets of the London Collegiate Institute made an excellent showing when they came up for their annual inspec-tion before Capt. A. C. Barclay, organizer and inspector of cadet corps for Military District No. 1 at Victoria Park yesterday afternoon.

Starting from the collegiate grounds, the cadets, headed by their bugle band, paraded down Dundas and up Richmond streets to the park, and there went through the various manoeuvres required by the inspecting officer. Although the total strength of the corps is about 100, of all ranks, nearly one-third of the members have accepted positions on farms, and as a consequence were unable to be present at the inspection. Three or four were also absent on sick leave, so that when Company Commander Ernest Dennis lined up his men the total strength on parade was 66, of all ranks.

Made Fine Showing.

When it is considered that many of those absent were the older boys in the corps, and that they left about a month ago, new officers, and non-commissioned officers had to be trained and taught their new duties, the work of the collegiate lads seems all the more remarkable, and great cedit is due Capt. J. J. Syme, cadet instructor at the collegiate, for the results he has obtained in spite of difficulties.

While the members of the corps were put through squad, platoon and comtunity to promote its use among my friends, as I can speak truthfully and enthusiastically as to its merits.

He emphasized the necessity of excelling in physical training saving that the emphasized the necessity of excelling in physical training, saying that the idea was not to make boys into soldiers, but to make them strong and healthy physically in order that they might be strong and healthy mentally. At the conclusion of his remarks he was given three rousing cheers and a "tiger" by the cadets. Principal Rogers and Cadet Instructor Capt. Syme also spoke briefly.

Capt. Barclay has shown great interest in the progress of the cadets throughout Western Ontario, and especially in the cadet corps in this city, and has done much to make their work a success. Since he has taken charge of the work here, many new corps have been established, and much has been done to obtain accommodation for the work of the cadets in this district.
