

POETRY.

MY WIFE--MY CAT--AND ME!

Let winter come with chilling look,
And strip the summer bowser;
He cannot rob me of my book,
Or philosophic hour;

VARIETIES.

EXCELLENT JUDGMENT.—In Dr. Tucker's election at St. John's College, when the President (it was in the time of the Puritans) would call upon him to have regard to the golly, the master answered, that no one should have a greater regard to the golly than himself, but he was determined to choose none but scholars.

O'CONNOR DONS.—The princely family of O'Connor, which is descended from Rodrick O'Connor, the last King of Ireland of the Milesian race, was subdivided into three branches, which were distinguished from each other by surnames affixed to their names.

Crime of sleeping in the Open Air.—In copying the following paragraph from the London papers, we would ask it is not disgraceful to a country calling itself Christian, that men should be subjected to sleeping in the open air, and actually punished because they have no where to lay their heads?

PROOF OF DEATH.—A subscriber to one of the Eastern papers, a few years ago, being sadly in arrears for the same, promised the editor that, if his life was spared to a certain day, he would, without fail, discharge his bill.

STUTTERING.—It is said, that among the numerous cases of stuttering, rarely, or no instance has been known of a female who has been afflicted with the unfortunate malady.

A TRUE TOPER.—When Quin, the actor, first saw Westminster bridge, he exclaimed, "O that my mouth were the centre arch, while the stream ran clear!"

JONES'S

PERMANENT WRITING BOOK, WITH PATRONISED BY HIS MAJESTY. THE object which the author has in view in presenting the Permanent Writing Book to the Public, is the promulgation of the system of instruction, whereby the useful and ornamental art of Writing may be acquired in a much shorter space of time than what is usually employed in what may not improperly be termed the old school; to gain time, by a proper use of it, is, in learning to write, as in any other pursuit, a matter of no little consequence; and although the author by no means professes to put all his pupils into possession of an elegant and expeditious style of writing in the short space of half a dozen lessons, yet he presumes that, from the mode of arrangement he has adopted, his pupils will arrive at a proficiency commensurate with their attention and perseverance, in a far shorter period than heretofore.

The arrangement of the Permanent Writing Book is such as to render it plain and simple to the lowest capacity; and those who wish to learn or improve themselves in writing, without the intervention of a master, it will be found admirably calculated, conducting them gradually from the formation of the simplest stroke to the most complex. To ladies' establishments and private families it will be found of considerable advantage, as it will afford to governesses and teachers a sure guide by which to proceed in the advancement of their pupils.

There is no advantage attending the Permanent Writing Book, which is its very great excellence, being that it is so easy of use, and of any other paper than what is contained in the Book itself, during the whole course of instruction; this property, from which the Book derives its name of Permanent, depends upon the use of a peculiar description of paper for the purpose of practising upon, making use of pure water instead of Ink, and which allows of any number of copies being written, without in the least impairing its capacity for receiving a fresh series.

To say more in regard to a system, which from the powerful patronage and extensive circulation it has already received, would be to repeat the same, would be useless, further than to recommend it to the notice of a liberal Public.

Each Copy Book contains ample instructions, and may be had upon application to the Subscribers, who are specially appointed by the Patentee to vend the same in the North American Provinces. Price 7s. 6d. in half Bindings, or 10s. full Bound. JOHN McMILLAN, Prince Wm-street. WILLIAM REYNOLDS, Market-square, St. John, N. B. Oct. 18, 1831.

SAINT JOHN FOUNDRY.
