Place on Wednesday.

William Kincade was instantly killed near the Narrows on Wednesday was brought to the city in a letter from He stated, however, that on Wednesday morning he and his father started from home - the deceased having resided with his son for some time - to chop some wood. In the course of the morning they separated and the younger man never saw his father alive the one momentary triumph of His again. When they parted Mr. Kincade, sr., turned up an old wood road. His son kept to the main road. Soon afterward the young man was startled by hearing the report of a rifle, apparently coming from the direction in which his father had set out. Fearing that some accident had happened he back and turned up the road which his father had taken. Before he had gone far the young man was horrifled to see his father lying face downward at the side of the road. On reaching the body Mr. Kincade found that a bullet had passed through his father's heart and that life was extinct. The fatal shot, Mr. Kincade's letter states further, was fired by Stanley Fanjoy, who, seeing the deceased through the bushes had taken him for a moose and fired. Further details of the affair and the action subsequently taken are lacking. Both of the deceased's daughters are residents of Maine. One is living in Portland and is unmarried. The other is married and lives in Bangor. The second son referred to is a citizen of Portland, Me. FOUND ALIVE

MONOHGAHELA CITY, Pa., Nov. 17 -John Nicola, one of the miners supposed to have been killed in the explosion at the Braznell coal mine Wednesday, was discovered tonight alive in his shanty and suffering from only a few bruises. On Wednesday he was checked off by the timekeeper to go into the mine with the others, but for some reason he remained above and was hurt by flying debris. When the explosion occurred, thinking only of his own injuries, he went to his shanty and has been there ever since. The discovery of Nicola reduces the death list to seven, the bodies of all of whom have been recovered.

Husband Wanted to Know If She Desired to Return.

FREDERICTON, N. B., Nov. 18 .-Officer Rideout got a letter recently, with a photo enclosed, asking him to locate a missing wife, and immediately started in to find the woman. She was said to be the wife of George Ferguson of St. John. This morning Ferguson came here. He is a man of fairly large proportions, a South African veteran, and says with some pride that he rode alongside of the King at the coronation ceremonies as sergeant-major of the Canadian scouts, with whom he saw active service in South Africa. Ferguson draws a pension of 75 cents per day, and is a native of Glasgow, Scotland. Ferguson came here in respont to a telegram from Officer Ride that Mrs. Ferguson had been located at a place of ill-repute about three miles above the city. The policeman and Ferguson waited about the C. P. R. train this morning, fearing that the missing woman might take that train for St. John, but they waited in vain. Then the officer and the much-frustrat-ed husband, who has lately toured about all of Nova Scotia looking for his wife, took a carriage and drove to the road house. It was learned there that Mrs.Ferguson left on the 9 o'clock train last night for St. John. Mrs. Ferguson, when called upon by Officer Rideout, said that she had been a sporting girl before she was married and she had not got over it yet. Mr. Ferguson says he only wants to see his wife and speak to her for a moment, and find out for sure whether she wants to return to him or not.
