

GOOD MATERIAL FOR INTERN'L COURT JUDGES

Final Establishment of World Tribunal Assured by Ratification of 24 States.

Geneva, Sept. 9.—Nominations for the 15 judges of the International Court of Justice, which have been made by most of the national delegations at the Hague Court of Arbitration, are said to assure plenty of excellent material to choose from when the election is reached toward the end of the programme of the second annual session of the League of Nations Assembly which opens here tomorrow.

Final establishment of the world tribunal has been assured by the ratification of the protocol by more than the 24 states required to make that act valid and there is every reason to believe, officials say, that the court will be in action before the end of the present year.

Two Americans, Elibu Root and Dr. Roscoe Pound, appear among the judicial candidates submitted. Mr. Root has been nominated by three countries—Italy, Brazil and Bolivia. The Presiding Justiceship thus may fall to a national whose government is not represented in the League of Nations.

The other nominations present a number of interesting features. Each country may nominate four candidates, but two of these must belong to other nationalities. Great Britain has only made one nomination—that of Viscount Robert Finlay—and this example has been followed by her dependencies.

Few other countries have failed to make use of their full right of nomination in a number of instances. This right has been employed to accentuate the solidarity of various racial or regional groups, as those of Scandinavia, South America and the Little Entente of middle Europe.

Thus the Swedes have nominated two of their own countrymen, a Norwegian and a Dane; the Norwegians, a Dane and a Swede besides their own two men, and the Danes, a Swede and a Norwegian in addition to two Danes. The list of nominations submitted by the Czechoslovak group consists of one Czech-Slovakian, one Jugo-Slavian, one Rumanian and one Greek.

Prior to the establishment of the International Court of Justice, a number of important political questions will come before the Assembly. Foremost among these is the Tacna-Arica dispute which Bolivia has requested to have put on the agenda. Chile has given notice that her delegates will move the previous question when this item is reached, their contention being that the matter involved does not fall within the jurisdiction of the League of Nations as outlined by the covenant. Chile is said to have taken a very determined stand. A number of the smaller nations, on the other hand, are desirous of having similar controversies adjudicated by League action.

The Danes are seeking a chance of appeal from the decision of the council to have their complaints against Jugoslavia and Greece referred to the Council of Ambassadors instead of to the League. The Vilna and the Aland Island disputes also will come before the session in one form or another. It is not expected that the division of Silesia will come up for discussion, and it is safe to assume that Germany will not be admitted until it is too late for her to raise it.

Several of the reports to be submitted, like those of the Temporary Disarmament Commission, the Advisory Committee on the Traffic in Opium and the provisional Economic and Financial Commission must necessarily lead to references to the American attitude toward the League and suggestions for future action or inaction in relation to this attitude.

Other reports of the same kind, which will provide the bulk of the business to be transacted, are as follows:

By the Council on the conclusions of the Committee on Amendments to the Covenant by the committee appointed to examine the scope of the treaty registration clause of the Covenant; by the International Blockade Commission; by the Advisory Committee on Communications and Transit; by the International Conference on the Traffic in Women and Children; by the committee appointed to investigate the workings of the Secretariat and the Labor Office; by the Committee on the Allocation of Expenses and by the Council on the proposed international co-ordination of intellectual work.

Four non-permanent members of the Council, to serve for another year, are to be elected before the Assembly adjourns and this may provide a spirited contest, particularly over the seat held for two years by Belgium. The little country of King Albert feels that its part in the great war entitles it to remain in the Council so long as questions relating to the Treaty of Versailles remain unsettled, while other countries feel that Belgium should not give way to some other nation in order to make the Council as widely representative as possible.

BRITISH SHIP BEARING BODIES TO THE STATES

Those Who Met Death in Collapse of Great Dirigible on Way Home.

Plymouth, England, Sept. 9.—The British warship Dauntless slowly steamed out of Plymouth harbor 1 1/2 hours after the explosion of the rigid airship which bore the bodies of the four men who lost their lives in the disaster which befell the giant dirigible ZR-3 at Heli two weeks ago.

As the funeral ship started on its voyage to New York, the guns of the outer harbor fortifications boomed a farewell in honor of the United States airmen who, a few weeks ago, were anticipating a return home aboard the new airship.

The bodies of only fourteen will reach the United States, however, as the wish of Commander Emory Cole to be buried at sea will be complied with. The body of the sixteenth United States victim, that of John C. Hancock, will be buried in London. He was born in England, and his parents are residents of London.

A naval guard of 200 men, the superintendent of the dockyard, three commissioned officers from each ship in the harbor and representatives of each flotilla of the naval establishment participated in the transfer of the bodies from the train to the cruiser. All flags were flying at half mast.

Thousands of people thronged the hill-slopes and watched the memorable scene as the Dauntless steamed out to the booming of guns. As she plowed slowly down the harbor, every commissioned war vessel in the harbor manned ship.

Many floral tributes were placed on the caskets before the vessel sailed. Among them being wreaths from the deputy mayor of Plymouth in the name of the inhabitants of the city, from the Pilgrims and from the naval, military and air forces.

Exhibition Was Well Attended Yesterday

Attendance About Up to Last Year's Figures — Orphans Guests of Management.

Yesterday was another good day at the Exhibition a good crowd being in attendance. Up to Thursday the attendance had been about the same as 1920 and with fine weather and a good crowd today the Fair promises to be a success. The attractions will all be on hand today and none of the booths will be dismantled before ten o'clock tonight, so that today's visitors will have just as good a chance to see the show as those who attended earlier in the week.

Yesterday afternoon, Prof. Bonetto pulled off a new stunt. He made the highest ascent yet made and when he got away up in the air started a smoke screen under cover of which he launched himself on the parachute. He landed in Courtenay Bay.

During the last two days the children in the several orphanages have been the guests of the management and they have certainly enjoyed the different attractions.

The prize for the best decorated booth was divided between Manchester Robertson Allison Ltd. and T. S. Simms Ltd.

A feature yesterday afternoon was the parade of the prize winners in the live stock division and some fine animals were in the parade.

GREEKS FIGHT TURKS ON FIELDS HISTORICAL

Midas, Alexander the Great and Other War Lords Among Early Contestants.

Angora, Sept. 8.—The Asia Minor campaign of the Greeks to break the power of the Turks, the decisive battle of which may take place near this city, is staged on fields among the richest in the world with battle memorials. Midas, Alexander the Great, Zenobia of Palmyra the Romans of Augustus and Caracalla, Mithradates, Cyrus the Great, Harun-al-Raschid and a host of others passed here with their armies, robbing and plundering, sometimes stopping to build fortresses and castles making the place a stronghold and transportation centre midway between Persia and the sea.

The fortune of war may have it that General Ismet Pasha will deliver a battle on the plains of Chibukabad to the north of this city, on the very plains where Tamurlana, with his Mongol hordes, in 1396 defeated Bayesid, the latter marching from Constantinople to stop the Mongols.

The advance of the Greeks is through a thinly settled country of treeless, rolling ranges of limestone mountains, two to four thousand feet in height, rising dry and hot out of well high waterless malarial valleys. At dawn and sunset the face of the country is mantled with a velvet screen of rose coloring which the traveler learns to love and almost repays for the stifling heat and dust of broad day, hardly untempered by the scorching winds that blow steadily across the limitless, bare distances.

"Ours is rather an unhappy country in summer," explained a Turkish army doctor at one of the halts along the railway to Angora, where the soldiers were poisoning and filling in the well after taking a last supply of water. "I spend my days and nights feeding quinine," he added. "About here only Turks, sheep and shepherd dogs can live."

Nearer Angora, in the districts distant from the valleys through which pass the railway, however, are sometimes discovered villages and towns seeming like little paradises by contrast. They are planted in valleys beside streams or springs of living water which the heat of summer does not entirely devour. Seen from the mountain tops as the traveler approaches, with their lofty poplar trees and green gardens and white mosque, there is a brief hour that they are but mirages seen in the desert countries.

Once in a long while the valley is made fertile by abundance of water, as at Tachluk and there are seen silvery olive trees quivering in the heat, delicious grassy prospects, horn larks with cardinal red tops twittering by the roadside, green and brown saybirds, darling magpies with handsome black and white bodies, pink sweet Williams peeping from the bushes and, if the season be not too far advanced, ripe melon patches and orchards of white and red cherries.

Travels Three Miles in Engineless Monoplane

Berlin, Sept. 8.—A report from Herbe-Cassel, Prussia, said that an engineer named Klemperer succeeded in travelling five kilometres (3 1/4 miles) in a monoplane without an engine, covering the distance in 25 minutes. He is said to have started from a point 230 metres high and to have maintained that level about ten minutes.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 8.—To me the writing into our constitution of the eighteenth amendment was unpardonable," said Right Rev. Thomas F. "The saloons were going; the church was making headway against what evil there was in liquor. To my mind it was nothing short of hysteria that put over a restriction which could not hope to suppress that evil."

American Grain Cornering Serious Situation Lake Rates Advance Chicago Demand Increase.

New York, Sept. 8.—No freight rates at the first session today, in the second of a series of meetings called by W. J. Lovell, president of the Emergency Freight Corporation, to smooth out the ties attending cargo carrier operations on intercoastal and trans-routes.

There was a full representation of the North Atlantic Continent, conference of steamship operators hearing in the United States Board Building, 45 Broadway, representatives attending. The subject of discussion was the effects of the competition of conference operators by independent and gulf ports.

The situation in the grain trade was described as exceedingly bad, the operators of the North Atlantic range suffering greatly from inroads of their northern and eastern competitors.

Definite action was deferred until Wednesday, the tariff on small commodity only was fixed. Canadian representatives at the conference were Messrs. Marlan, C. F. O. E. and Dougherty, of the Canada Line.

Vacation is Over. Again the school bell rings a ring and at noon, again with thousands the hardest kind of work has begun, the renewal of mental and physical strain to accept the most rugged.

The little girl that a short ago had roses in her cheeks, a little boy whose lips were then you would have insisted that they had been kissed by strawberries, already lost something of the luster of health.

Now is a time when many of them should be given a tonic, which prevent such serious troubles. There is so highly to be recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla, which cleans the nerves, perfects digestion, assimilation. It aids mental development by building up the whole system. Equally good as a medicinal ration are Hood's Pills, which were adapted for both children and adults. In small doses they are gentle laxative, in larger doses they are cathartic.
