(By Daniel.)

New York, Oct. 7.—Giants they truly were today—Giants in the devastating, unmercenary spirit, determination and aggressiveness, colossal in the defensive quality which came with the retirement of Fred Toney and the entry of Jess Barnes in the third inning. It was the inevitable that tidal wave of hits and tallies which carried the Giants to an eight-run lead in the seventh round, and crushed the Yankees for the day. It was the inevitable, after two days of pent-up fury and disappointment, and the Yankees faced the raging flood of defeat like the stalwart, stout-hearted boat which they are.

Drives from the bats of the Giants seared grass tops, looped over the infield and went crashing to the distant reaches of the outfield, but the Yankees took their punishment without flinching. Their pitching collapsed, but their aggressiveness and their cohesion never for a moment deserted them. They left the field with heads high. What a game for the Giants to win after two dismal failures. Only the day before they had been held to just two singles. In the opening clash they had been stonewalled with only five hits.

Shawkey Hammered.

Two days of undeveloped potentialities, two days of unguessed self-renewal and utter helplessness and then, breaking in like fire, it was with Berserker madness that the McGraw combination sent Bob Shawkey into retreat in their glorious comeback in the third inning, drove both Jack Quinn and Rip Collins from the mound in that scabbing record-breaking seventh, and piled hit upon hit against Tom Rogers in the eighth. It was a hit-crazy, run-thirsty, rip-roaring, rumpusous lot of Giants who gathered twenty-seven hits and made world series history again.

New Hit Record.

Never before had a team gathered so many hits drives in a battle for the world title. That was one record by a margin of something like five hits. Never before had a club made eight runs in one inning in the baseball classic. Never before had a player performed the feat of Ross Young, who cracked out a double and triple in one round. And only once before had a team collected thirteen runs. That mark was set in the series of 1911 and, strangely enough, against the very club which tied it yesterday. It was 8 to 3 when the Athletics defeated the Giants in the final game in Philadelphia and took the title by four games to two and after the Giants had won the opening contest. Thirteen runs of the Giants today and the lead in scoring by a margin of two over the twice triumphant American leaguers. The veterans George Burns, Frank Snyder, Edie Meusel, Young, Frisch, even Barnes himself, with Johnny Bevington, all took a part in the slaughter of Yankee pitchers.

Burns The Hero.

To Burns, who had been in many another fight for the world title, went the leading honors with the champions, a triple in the fourth inning, then two singles, and finally a double-four hits for seven bases and a steal of second thrown in, made a grand showing of the great center fielder. His was a glory well deserved and widely acclaimed for when the popularity of ball players is appreciated none will find greater favor than this quiet, gentlemanly, efficient master of grace on defense and drive attack.

Snyder was an invincible who failed to hit only once. Four times he drove the ball out of reach of the Yankees and four times his hits were singles. Then there was Meusel with two singles and a double, Rawlings and Barnes with two hits each, and last but not least the overcasten Frisch who had a perfect day with the bat. The fourthman slash got two singles and three passes. The Yankee pitchers did seem to be inclined to pitch to the hitting hero of the Giants. He (See also page 7)

SIR ROBERT BORDEN MEMBER OF BRITISH COMMISSION TO WASHINGTON ARMS CONFERENCE

Entire British Delegation Will Consist of About Sixty Men Including Advisers and Experts — Majority Sail for Washington, October 26th Aboard Olympic.

London, Oct. 7.—With the virtual completion of the British delegation to the Washington conference on limitation of armaments the Government has reached final stage in preparations for the trip to America. The five men now most likely to be included in the commission are Arthur Balfour, Lord Lee, Sir Robert Borden, of Canada, representative of India—Chosen more for sentimental than for other reasons—and George Foster Pearce, of Australia who will take the place of Premier Hughes the sixth member of the delegation probably will represent the Home Government but no decision has yet been made regarding which one of the Cabinet members will be the choice. It seems to revolve about Winston Churchill, Worthington Evans and Gordon Howart. It is difficult because

CRERAR HAS FEW OUTSIDE OF WEST

Perceptible Swing to Gov't Most Discouraging to Leader of Opposition.

Special to The Standard.
Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 7.—Polling day has been announced for Tuesday, December 6th, with nominations on November 22nd. This is in line with the government's desire for a campaign as lengthy as possible, its feeling being that under a campaign of emotional politics its policies will steadily gain in public support. Already it is believed there has been a perceptible swing toward the government throughout all of the provinces. Even in Quebec, which many ministerialists believed to be a forlorn hope, predictions are now being made that the government will carry twenty seats.

Oppositions Lost.

A significant feature of the contest thus far is the slowness of both opposition in getting candidates. While the government has ninety per cent. of the candidates already in the field, Mr. Crerar has few candidates outside of the West, and the rural ratings in Ontario. Thus far, he has not a single standard bearer in British Columbia, none in Quebec, no more than one or two in the Maritime Provinces and not one representative in a single city in the whole Dominion. His appeal, so far as candidates are concerned, is thus far to the farmers alone.

Mr. King, strangely enough, is not much better off. Not expecting an election, although clamoring for one, this announcement of a contest caught him utterly unprepared and the indications are that he is having the utmost difficulty in getting men into the field. This is particularly true of Ontario, where the declamatory ranks of his party find themselves without leadership and are endeavoring to bargain with the farmers as to which party should contest this riding and that.

Mr. King, however, according to all reports, intends concentrating his campaign in the Maritime Provinces and in Quebec. His attempt to abandon his low tariff platform in the East has practically made it impossible for him to face the West and as he cannot get to British Columbia without passing through the Prairies and does not hope for more than half a dozen seats in Ontario, he will likely confine his fight to east of the Ottawa river.

"Fatty" Arrested For Violation of The Volstead Act

San Francisco, Oct. 7.—Roscoe Arbuckle, comical movie comedian, had a new trouble to worry about tonight. He came here this morning for arrangement on charge of having caused the death of Virginia Rappe. But just as he stepped from the court room, after his arraignment had been postponed, and ordered a taxi to take him to his brother's home, a prohibition agent stepped up and told him that he had violated the Volstead law. "That so?" inquired atty.

Island Has All of Candidates

Special to The Standard
Charlottetown, P. E. I., Oct. 7.—J. J. Hughes was nominated for Kings at the Liberal convention today in Georgetown. The Liberals and Conservatives have now all their candidates in the field for the Island.

The cabinet again discussed conference in its Friday session. It is reliably stated that, although the British Government will suggest no alterations in agenda, the impression is growing that the issues outside of the programme, such as mandates and possibly war debts will eventually be considered. Some irritation has been caused by the expression of Premier Hughes, of Australia, regarding separate representation for Australia in which he was quoted as saying that America "slammed the door." It is believed here that President Harding purposely rejected issuing a direct invitation to the colonies because of the fear of the cry "six votes to one" which might have been raised. Despatches from Melbourne indicate that Pearce accompanied by three officials, will leave for Washington next week.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC

The unavoidable delay in the transfer and re-organization of The Standard has made it impossible to issue a newspaper of the quality the new owners have in mind.

The Standard asks the indulgence of its patrons until such time as the re-organization is completed and news service re-established, when it is expected to have a new sheet second to none in the maritime provinces.

At Least 30,000 London People on Hand Today to Welcome Dublin Delegation.

TAKE NO CHANCES ON LONDON FOOD

Peace Emissaries Bringing Their Own Cuisine, Cooks, Waiters and Such Like.

London, Oct. 7.—British delegates to the Irish Peace Conference, it is authoritatively stated, will be the Premier, Austen Chamberlain, Lord Birkenhead, Sir Hamar Greenwood and Worthington-Evans. Most elaborate preparations have been made for the reception of Sinn Fein delegates who are expected to arrive at six o'clock Saturday evening. Irish organizations will combine in the demonstration in which at least 30,000 people will take part.

Assessing of Non-Residents

At a largely attended meeting held in the Glen Falls school house last evening at which Councilor Jeremiah Donovan presided, a bill providing for its object the assessing non-residents working in the parish of Simonds, was drawn up and adopted and will be presented at the next session of the house for legislation. The bill is modelled on similar legislation now in force in the city of St. John.

After His View of Actual Conditions at the Sydney Mines He Addressed 4,000 Electors—Spoke in Defence of Shipbuilding Programme — By Solving the Tariff Problem He Asserted Could the Unemployment Problem be Solved.

(Special to The Standard)
Sydney, C. B., Oct. 7.—Right Hon. Arthur Meighen spent today in Glace Bay and Sydney, the very stronghold of the coal, iron and steel industry of Nova Scotia, where organized labor is strong and includes in its ranks a most radical element, but where the sentiment in favor of protection is a powerful factor and Government supporters are confidently hoping to elect their candidates to the House of Commons. The Prime Minister arrived in Sydney this morning, visited the local headquarters of his party, inspected the Dominion Iron and Steel Company's plant and inspected the harbor. Later in the day he visited Glace Bay, in area the largest town in Canada, a seaport, and the centre of a district in which are situated some 25 coal mines.

Visits Mine

Mr. Meighen availed himself to the full of the opportunity afforded him by his visit to Glace Bay to visit one of the mines and to get into personal touch with the men who take out the coal. Accompanied by Hon. Andre Fauteux, the Solicitor General and J. B. Baxter, the Minister of Customs, he descended the shaft of Dominion Colliery No. 2, probably the largest producing mine of the district. Equipped with a gavel lamp and wearing a long coat and a newswater hat, the Premier explored the workings, 1100 feet below the surface of the ground, with much interest. He inquired the methods by which the coal was mined and the conditions under which the miners worked, and observed with interest the magnitude of the seam. Upon returning to the upper air the Premier was the guest at dinner of a veteran mine worker of Glace Bay, Robert Cuddeba, who had taken coal out of many of the mines of Western and Eastern Canada.

Addresses Large Meeting

After his view of actual conditions in the mining region, the Prime Minister spoke to an audience of Glace Bay, Robert Cuddeba, who had taken coal out of many of the mines of Western and Eastern Canada.
