'Save the bay' day planned

A Save the Bay Day will be held again Saturday Feb. 2 at UNB. Organizers hope to focus public attention on possible increases in acid rain in New Brunswick if an oil refinery is built at Eastport, Maine.

The refinery, proposed by the Pittston Coal Company, has drawn fire from environmentalists on both sides of the border for several years. At Save the Bay Day in November 1978, participants discussed the threat of oil spills on Passamaquoddy Bay if supertankers were allowed through Head Harbour Passage to supply the refinery.

This year's speakers will include well known Maine environmentalist "Doc" Hodgins scheduled from 9:30 - 10:30 a.m. and Fundy Royal MP Robert Corbett, speaking from 11 a.m. until noon.

UNB geographer Gary Whiteford set up the session which will meet in the auditorium of Marshall d'Avray Hall on the Fredericton campus.

Prof. Whiteford is convinced that large parts of New Brunswick would be vulnerable to acid rain caused by emissions from an Eastport refinery. Acid rain can kill plant and animal life in susceptible lakes and ponds.

The Canadian government's decision to bar supertankers from Head Harbour Passage appears to have had no impact on Pittston's efforts to win approval for the refinery, Prof. Whiteford said.

Miller to lecture

P.J. Miller chairman of the department of educational foundations at the University of Alberta, will deliver a lecture entitled Educational Theory: Luxury or Necessity? at UNB on Thursday Feb. 7 at 7 p.m. in the second floor auditorium of Marshall d'Avray Hall.

Dr. Miller who has studied at the London School of Economics and holds a Phd in education from the University of Alberta, has written extensively on the history and development of childhood. He was also a pioneer in conducting research into the education of women.

The lecture which is open to the public is sponsored by UNB's faculty of education.

Dr. Miller will also conduct a seminar entitled Recent Interpretations in the History of Childhood during his visit to UNB. The seminar will be held Friday Feb. 8, at 3 p.m. in Room 212 of Marshall d'Avray Hall, and is open to the public.

Crowe will speak

Dr. Frederick E. Crowe, S.J., Professor of Systematic Theology and former President of Regis College, Toronto, will deliver this year's annual Aquinas Lecture at St. Thomas University on Monday, Jan. 28 at 8 p.m. in the Edmund Casey Hall Auditorium. Dr. Crowe's lecture is entitled "The Modern Balancing Act: Tradition vs. Innovation." The public is invited to attend.

A native of New Brunswick and an alumnus of the University of New Brunswick (B.Sc 1934) Father

Crowe received his doctorate in theology from the Gregorian University, Rome in 1953. He also holds honorary doctorates from Saint Marys University Halifax, and from Trinity College, Toronto.

Father Crowe served as President of Regis College from 1969-1972. He served as president of the Canadian Theological Society in 1974-75.

Father Crowe is author of three books and numerous articles which have appeared in both scholarly and popular journals.

What is leisure?

Hi, my name is Leroy Leisure. I will be appearing in the Brunswickan to give you, the reader some ideas and thoughts about leisure.

You may be asking yourself "What is leisure?" Leisure can mean different things to different people. When asked what leisure meant to them, some seven-eight year-olds had an amusing variety of answers.

"It is a break in the skin."
"Something you carry a dog around on."
"Doing things"

When the same question was asked to some fellow university students the following suggestions were made: "Rating the guys at McConnel Hall," "Hanging around the SUB," watching Another World", "Anything but work," "Drinking beer and watching football" and "Free time in which i can play." You may not have any idea what leisure is or if it has a place in your life. I hope that over the next few weeks I will help you become aware of your leisure lifestyle.

Rock of the 70s

1975: Led Zeppelin toured on the heels of their double album "Physical Graffiti". Elton John's career reached a peak; and Bad Company emerged as a supergroup.

1976: Disco was in its formative stages, not yet reaching the point of absurdity. Blackmore left Deep Purple for the greener pastures of Rainbow. Ted Nugent was becoming popular in the west and Ian Hunter was enjoying a solo career away from Mott the Hoople. Paul McCartney made a triumphant tour of the states.

1977: The Punk movement got under way with the Sex Pistols, "God Save The Queen" and "Anarchy in The U.K." They were followed by the likes of the Vibrators shortly thereafter. Disco was becoming a major problem; and ELP launched the largest and most significant tour in history, complete with a sixty piece orchestra. Lynyrd Skynyrd's plane crashed, killing singer ronnie Van Zant and guitarist Steve Gaines.

1978: A second California Jam was held, highlighting the year. This one featured Aerosmith, Heart, Nugent and many others. New Wave music was on the upswing, gaining a sizeable following.

1979: Disco shows signs of winding down; ELP breaks up; and Paul McCartney enters the Guinness book of records as most prolific song writer in history.

Looking ahead to the 80's another revolution in music is likely to take place. Present superstars and relative newcomers such as Elvis Costello and the Cars wil probably be the most influential bands inspiring the stars of tomorrow. Of course it is quite impossible to accurately predict the coming changes in music, though it will be interesting to see just what happens.

A LITTLE SOMETHING FOR MY WIFE. NOT TOO NICE. I HAVEN'T BEEN UP TO ANYTHING.
