

14708
justice and fair play would supply the moral element to the secret. You will pardon this justification of an impulsive move from the reading of this article, and as doubtless in your public capacity you are treated to the expression of quite other kinds of impulses you will pardon this, with its accompanying good wishes from your old friend.

C. R. Williamson