

78. R.C. Lindsay to Devonshire, August 13, 1919, D.E.A.
74-A-1926.
79. Devonshire to Lindsay, August 25, 1919, D.E.A. 74-A-1926.
80. Pope to Governor-General's Secretary, October 21, 1919;
L.H. Davies to Milner, October 27, 1919, D.E.A.
74-A-1926.
81. Sifton to Borden, May 8, 1919, D.E.A. 74-A-1926.
82. Milner to Devonshire, August 21, 1919, D.E.A. 74-A-1926.
83. Devonshire to Milner, September 9, 1919, Canada House
Records C12/73.
84. Milner to Devonshire, October 11, 1919, D.E.A. 74-A-1926.
85. Circular letter from Arthur Fontaine, October 8, 1919,
D.E.A. 74-A-1926.
86. Canada, Department of External Affairs, Labour Convention and General Principles, p. 5.
87. Circular letter from Arthur Fontaine, October 8, 1919,
D.E.A. 74-A-1926.
88. Ibid.
89. W.A. Riddell, World Security by Conference, p. 16.
90. This objection was unjustified, as later events were to prove. At the Second (Genoa) International Labour Conference, for example, Canada and Great Britain voted differently on an issue of "vital importance to the Empire". Solano, Op.Cit., pp. XXXI-XXXII.
91. W.A. Riddell, "Canada and the First Year of the I.L.O.",
Labour Gazette (December, 1919), p. 1259.
92. "League of Nations International Labour Conference",
Labour Gazette (December, 1919), pp. 1427-1428.
93. Riddell, "Canada and the First Year of the I.L.O.",
p. 1260.