1 "This morning arr. Brig. Hodge from Nicholson with an account of a severe Battle having taken place between the Indians of Kentucky and the Americans under Genl. Harrison; the latter lost 3 Colours killed, and a number of other principal officers; the Indians took place at the dead hour of the Night, the Americans having been led into security by a supposed friendly intercourse between the Chiefs bearing a white flag the Evening before. This dear bought experience may hereafter be of salutary service to the Americans. The winter, up to the present hour, has passed over without experiencing any frost at all to speak of; the Fields, strange as it may appear, those protected from the North winds, particularly wear now a beautiful green, no Snow having
