VISITING A TURK'S HAREM.

This Turk Has Only Nine Wives, but He gian't Through Marrying Yet;

Mrs. M. A. Crosley of this city, wife of the pastor of the Central Universa-tist Church, while in Turkey recently country which she has visited twena country which are an order ty times and more enjoyed the rare ty times and more enjoyed the rare experience of being admitted to the experience of a wealthy official. luxurious harem of a wealthy official.
"The first thing to do," said Mrs.
Crosley, "if one wishes to see the inside of a harem, is to secure a permit, or, as foreigners like to call it, an invitation. Knowing that we would be welcomed to the home of the official our whole party went there in carriages. I sent in my card by the servant at the door and it was carried to the first wife, who is really the head of the household. By and by word was sent back by the servants to admit us and we were brought into a reception room. "Our party consisted only of women, as, of course, no men are allowed to enter the harems. In some homes eunuchs are employed to take charge, but only female servants were used in this home. While we were admiring the beautiful furniture, the coverings of which were of silk, heavily embroidered, the official's wives came in to meet us. There were nine of them and they ranged from a woman apparently 50 years old to the last wife, a beautiful dark girl of 16. They were dressed in the loose flowing robes of their country, the lower part of the costume consisting of wide trousers gathered at the ankle. The trousers were so full, however, as to have almost the appearance of skirts. "Our clothes at once attracted the attenion of the women, as we were, I believe, the first party of foreigners they had ever really come in contact with, although they must have seen others as they passed through the streets in their closed carriages.

"They took off our bonnets and examined them curiously and we had to explain how all our garments were made and worn. Any piece of jewelry at once caught their attention and in return they showed us their ornaments, many of them of great value.

"Through an interpreter, a lady I had remembered to take with us, we conversed quite freely and pleasantly. It is the custom whenever foreigners call on the native women to take them presents and we had come prepared in this respect. We gave them beautiful flowers, bright colored ribbons and other gay presents we knew wo-men would like to have, for strangely enough feminine likes in regard to pretty things seem to be the same the world over. Our gifts made them happy and they treated us with the greatest courtesy. "It is the Turkish custom to offer every one cigarettes and of course they were pretsented to us. We all took one, for to have refused would have been a serious breach of etiquetta. We were a so tasked to smoke the naghlich, a kind of pipe where the smoke is drawn through a glass bowl filled with water into the mouth by means of a long rubber tube. The Turkish women divide their time between their needle work and the naghlich or "hubble bubble,' as the English call it. We declined the treat, saying we much preferred the cigarettes, which made excellent souvenirs anyway. "One of the wives, a beautiful Caucasian woman, could speak French fluently, and this made our visit more interesting, as several of the party could thus talk to her. She invited us to go over the house and pointed out all rooms including the dining rooms of the wives and also of the master of the house. This latter room was fixed up so that the husband might entertain a great many of his friends at once. All of the wives never gather with him in the dining room, however, as Turkish custom decrees that not more than one wife shall share the husband's meal at a time with him. "Just as we were leaving the harem the Caucasian woman took me to one side and asked confidentially if I knew some beautiful girls who would likely suit her hust and as he desired another wife. I told her I had seen so few Turkish women I could not make a selection and that I feared no American girl would wish to become the tenth wife. This answer, although intended as a jest, was taken seriously by the wife, who was not able to understand this aversion to being chosen so late. "Girls in Turkey are married very young-between 12 and 15 being the usual ages. The girl who is not married by the time she is 16 is looked upon with wonder. In our party were two girls, each a little over 20. inmates of the harem discovered they were not married and were surprised beyond utterance. 'Why, how old are you? they inquired. 'And not married?' they would say when told the girl's ages. Nor could they understands how such a thing as a girl live ing to be 20 years old without married could come to pass."

Little Etiquette Points.

When you meet a gentleman you know on the street in company with another gentleman, you must bow to the gentleman you know only. The other gentleman will acknowledge the bow to his friend by lifting his hat. If a man steps aside to let you pass, a bow is sufficient thanks. If he opens a door or gate you should thank

A large number of notes of congratulation received by a bridegroom are from ladies. It is not, however, considered good form for a young lady to write notes of congratulations to her men friends. Congratulations may be spoken, but written congratulations from young girls are not expected. Notes written by a bride or bridegroom in response to good wishes should be very brief—simply expressing thanks. . If a young lady is stopping with a friend it is customary to have her name written on the cards of the lady,

Special to The Planet. Rond Eau, Friday morning, Aug. 9 -Interest in to-day's yachting race nas developed amazingly and some ardent champions of the respective boats are volunteering to speculate upon the outcome entries, are assured and press confidence in the outcome. The competing boats will be:-

"Enterprise," Commodora Wm. Fel-"Outlaw," Commodore Charles E.

Beeston. "Baden-Powell," Commodore W. R. Phillimore.

It is impossible as yet to record definitely the personnel of the respective crews. There will be three judges. It is probable that E. B. Jones, of Chat-nam, will be selected as one of the number. The morning broke with a decidedly stiff breeze blowing, which has abated but little at the time of writing. The blow has badly knocked out the calculations of last evening's prophets and leaves the result a delicious uncertainty. It was generally conceded that with very light wind the Baden-Powell would walk away with the other contestants and secure an easy victory. In a heavy sea and stiff breeze her relative travelling powers are much debated, but her dauntless skipper shows no lack of confidence in her abilities. The blow brought joy to the hearts of those who back the Enterprise. Her splendid sailing qualities in such weather are well known and this morning she is regarded with much
